CANADA OFFERS TO AID U.N. IN KOREA

$40-a-Month Pension Plan Offered

Age Limit of 70 Years Urged On Commons, Suggest Contributions

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL

OTTAWA, June 28—(CP)—A $40-a-month pension to persons 70 and over regardless of means was proposed today by the parliamentary committee on old-age security as the most suitable retirement plan for Canada.

The committee expressed the view that a pension of $40 a month also should be paid to needy persons between 65 and 70.

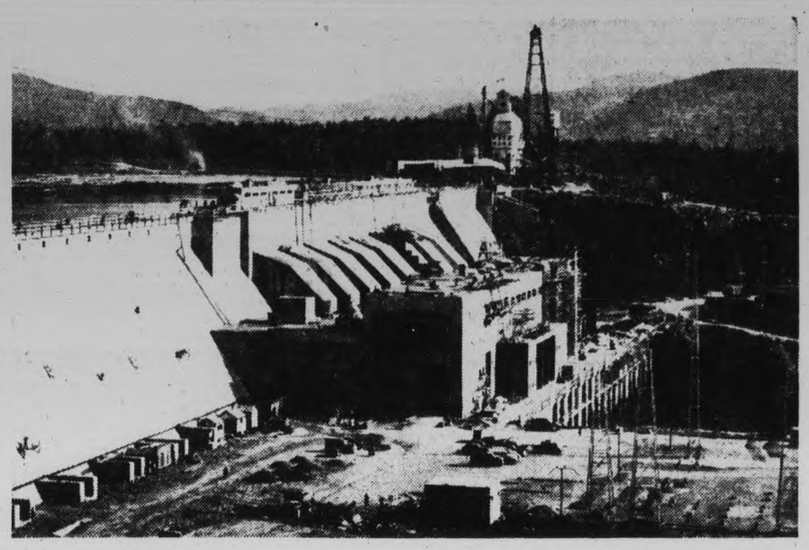
In a report tabled in the Commons, the joint Senate-Commons committee said it favored a "universal pay-as-you go system applicable to all persons in Canada, 70 and over."

It favored abolition of the means test from the present old-age pension program, as far as those 70 and over are concerned, and the assumption by the Federal Government of full responsibility for financing and administering this project.

Suggest Contributions

The committee suggested that part of the cost of the plan could be financed through contributions by employers and employees.

As for the 65-69 group, the committee "favored a joint arrangement in which the provinces would co-operate both as to the administration of the program and as to sharing the costs involved." Only needy persons in this group would be given a pension.



At present, the Federal Government pays 75 per cent of the cost of $40-a-month pensions to needy persons 70 and over. The provinces pay the remainder. Some of them make a supplementary payment, bringing the pensions in those provinces to $50 a month.

To obtain a pension, a person must prove his need and show that he has lived in Canada for 20 years. The committee said it would not recommend any change in the residence requirement.

ONE OF THE LARGEST power projects ever undertaken by Ontario Hydro, the Des Joachims development on the Ottawa River, 38 miles from Pembroke was officially opened by Premier Leslie M. Frost and Hydro Chairman Robert H. Saunders today. Two of its eight units, with a capacity of 120,000 horsepower, were brought into operation during the opening ceremony. Four more units, representing an additional 240,000 horsepower will be brought into service progressively during the remaining months this year. This view shows the massive main dam and powerhouse at Des Joachims.

Des Joachims Power Plant Opened Today

DES JOACHIMS, Que., June 28 (CP)—The giant Des Joachims power development, second only to the Queenston plant in the Ontario Hydro network, was officially opened today.

Premiers Frost of Ontario and Provincial Treasurer Gagnon, of Quebec, were on hand as two of Des Joachims' eight units were put in motion, with an immediate capacity of 120,000 horsepower.

Ultimate output of the $75,775,000 project on the Ottawa River, 38 miles upstream from Pembroke, is 480,000 hoursepower.

Des Joachims is the third Ontario hydro development put into service in 15 days. The 56,500-horsepower plant at Tunnel on the Mississagi River was brought in June 14. A week ago today the Pine Portage development on the Nipigon River started producing 80,000 of its 160,000-horsepower capacity.

Unparalleled Feat

Robert H. Saunders, Hydro Commission chairman, said the opening of the three projects in 15 days is unparalleled in 44 years of Ontario hydro, history.

The 216,500-hoursepower initial capacity of Des Joachims, Pine Portage and Tunnel combined was more than twice as much power as had been made available from new construction on any previous occasion during a similar period

Four more of Des Joachims' units, providing an additional 240,000 horsepower, will be brought into service progressively during the rest of 1950. All eight will be in service early in 1951, Mr. Saunders said.

The main dam, said Mr. Saunders, closes three channels of the Ottawa River and extends from the Ontario to the Quebec shoreline. The structure is 2,400 feet long, with a maximum height of 180 feet above sound rock.

Britain Places Pacific Navy At Disposal Of U.S. Leaders

LONDON, June 28—(AP)—Prime Minister Attlee announced Britain has decided to place its naval forces in Japanese waters at the disposal of the United States to support American action in South Korea.

Attlee said the British Naval forces were offered for immediate use. He made the announcement in the House of Commons.

"I need scarcely say that the Prime Minister speaks for all parties in the House when he makes this announcement," Winston Churchill, leader of the Conservative opposition, said.

"We shall do our best to give him any support he needs in what seems to me an inescapable duty."

Attlee said British forces around Japan "are almost the same as those of the U.S. naval forces."

Carry Out Obligations

The announcement came in response to Churchill's question "whether the naval forces we have on the spot are such as are necessary to make a substantial contribution, relative to American forces."

Attlee said it is "certain that this country will carry out its obligations to the United Nations."

He observed Britain is "already carrying a heavy burden in holding the line in southeast Asia," where British troops are engaged in fighting Communist-led guerrillas in Malaya.

He said the British cabinet feels that Russia will not intervene to touch off a global conflict because she definitely does not want war.

British naval forces are in Japanese waters on summer exercises. They include two cruisers, the Belfast and Jamaica, both armed with six-inch naval rifles; seven destroyers, two frigates, a minesweeper patrol vessel and one other auxiliary ship.

The light fleet aircraft carrier, Triumph, is at Hong Kong, British bastion off the coast of China about 1,000 miles to the southwest of Korea.

N.Z. Expects King Before June '52

WELLINGTON, N. Z., June 28 (Reuters)—The King will probably make a Royal visit to New Zealand before June, 1952, Governor-General Sir Bernard Freyberg indicated today.

Reading the speech from the throne at the ceremonial opening of the parliamentary session, the Governor-General said he had intended relinquishing his appointment after his normal five-year term which ends next May.

However, the Prime Minister had asked him to remain for a further term "during the course of which it is earnestly hoped the Royal visit will take place."

The throne speech said there were reasons for optimism about New Zealand's economic future.

Conditions favored expansion of farm production, and increased exports would provide the necessary exchange to buy more imports both of consumer goods and raw materials for development of local manufactures.

All Parties Support Gov't Move

Praise U.S. Action, Uphold Need For Acting Quickly

OTTAWA, June 28—(CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson, warmly applauded by the Commons today vigorously supported American armed intervention in Korea and said Canada will confer with her United Nations partners to see what aid she herself can offer.

Applause came from all quarters of the Chamber as Mr. Pearson praised the "admirable dispatch and decisiveness" with which the United States had recognized "a special responsibility" in the Pacific.

In his initial statement, made after a conference of key Cabinet ministers, he made no mention of what Canada proposes to do other than to offer vocal support to the US action and to the United Nations Security Council's support of it.

But in answer to a direct question from Gordon Graydon (PC-Peel((the minister said:

"We have not yet received last night's Security Council resolution formally although we have seen its text. But I can assure you that we will be conferring through the United Nations with other members as to what part we can best play in the restoration of peace."

Both Mr. Pearson and Mr. Graydon expressed the hope the American action will produce a swift return to peace in Korea.

Stand United

Mr. Graydon was applauded when he said that in any question of peace and war Canada's Parliament stood united and all party differences fade away.

Stanley Knowles, acting CCF Leader, said his party welcomed the steps that had been taken.

His group would support any action that the present situation called for, "not by any one power, but through the collective action of the United Nations, prompted by the desire for the maintenance of peace."

Mr. Pearson's statement included both President Truman's announcement of intervention and the Security Council's call for suport of that action by UN members. The House pounded desks in applause several times, once when the minister said he was sure "all members will applaud

Uphold Padlock Law

MONTREAL, June 28 — (CP) — Quebec's Padlock Law, first drafted in 1937 and known in the law books as "an act to protect the province against Communistic propaganda," was upheld today by Superior Court. The Act was attacked by a property owner. Mr. Justice F. T. Collins, giving the judgment, said the Padlock Law is a legally constituted enactment and adopted within the legislating powers of the Quebec Legislature as set up by the British North America Act.

Wreck Blamed On Train Crew's Bad Judgment

CARLETON PLACE, June 28 (CP)—A coroner's jury Tuesday night blamed the "bad judgment" of an entire train crew for the death of two men in a freight-train wreck at nearby Ashton station.

The wreck occurred during a heavy snowstorm last March 18 when a west-bound freight plowed into the rear cars of an east-bound train standing half-in and halfout of the Ashton siding. Two Canadian Pacific Railway trains were involved.

Witnesses testified that the east-bound train had stopped with about 15 freight cars still on the main line in order to uncouple one car to be left at Ashton.

The inquest had been adjourned from March 21 to allow brakeman Thomas C. Gilmer of Ottawa lone survivor of the west-bound's front-end crew, to testify. He suffered serious injuries in the wreck that claimed the lives of engineer Travers Short and fireman George H. Hannan, both of Ottawa.

Mr. Gilmer testified that his crew was expecting to find the east-bound freight standing in the Ashton siding and that the east-bound engine flashed its headlights signalling that the main line was clear as the west-bound train approached.

Pick Up Speed

The west-bound freight, travelling at about 20 miles an hour, began to pick up speed after receiving the clear signal just before the crash.

Under cross-examination Mr. Gilmer said the conductor of a train must signal with lighted fuses 1,500 feet ahead on a clear night and 3,000 feet under foggy conditions "or have the rear brakeman carry this out."

Previous evidence was that the conductor on the east-bound train left his rear van and noticed his train was not clear of the main line. He was unable to signal his engineer as the engine was not in sight and returned to the caboose to get a fuse signal but was unable to light it before the west-bound train arrived.

U.S. Navy Gets 2nd Task Force

PEARL HARBOR, June 28 — (AP)—The United States Navy moved swiftly today to put together a second hard-hitting Pacific task force to enforce stiffening American policy against Communist aggression in the Far East.

The existing seventh task fleet prepared to carry out President Truman's orders to defend Formosa, Chinese Nationalist stronghold, from Red invasion.

The 20-ship Seventh, spearheaded by the 27,000-ton aircraft carrier Valley Forge, was transferred to the operational command of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of all U.S. forces in the Far East. Some of its units sailed from Hong Kong, presumably for Formosan waters. The Valley Forge was in Hong Kong last week.

Pacific fleet headquarters said the 27,000-ton carrier Philippine Sea will be the nucleus for the new task force which will be based on Pearl Harbor. Like the Valley Forge, she will carry the navy's new Gruman Panther jet fighters.

The Philippine Sea task force will include two cruisers, a squadron of destroyers and a full seatrain of supply ships, to permit long-range missions if necessary.

Red Troops Break Through A Wide Gap In South Korean Defences

Seoul And Airfield Fall To Invaders As U.S. Bombers Active; MacArthur Sends In First Soldiers

TOKYO, June 28—(CP)—North Korean spearheads which captured Seoul punched a wide gap in South Korean defences running across the peninsula, military sources said today. The last breakthrough decimated or cut off in the Imjin River area at least four South Korean divisions and outflanked two strongly pressed divisions holding the line from Chungchon, 60 miles northeast of Seoul, to the east coast. Military sources said the rugged country in south eastern Korea may make it possible for some new defence line to be established pivoting on Chungji 75 miles southeast of Seoul.

Meanwhile the first American foot soldiers went into the South Korean shooting war as US airmen blasted six heavy Russian-built tanks and lost two planes in crashes. The first ground detachment was a Signal Corps outfit.

The signal men were dispatched by Gen. Douglas MacArthur to set up a field headquarters somewhere in the south of Korea.

Seoul's airfield 16 miles to the west, was also reported in enemy hands.

New Regime

Communists quickly began broadcasting from Seoul, introduced Lee Sun Yup, defence minister of the northern regime, as the new mayor of Seoul. In the broadcast Lee even ordered Seoul schools to re-open today.

The US Far East Air Force announced its jet fighters and light bombers effectively attacked North Korean positions northwest of Seoul.

A summary said troop concentrations, truck convoys and railroad yards near Munsan, 35 miles north-west of Seoul, were bombed. It said one American F-32 fighter and a B-20 light bomber were reported destroyed on the ground by strafing of the Russian-made North Korean planes.

Trying To Reform

O. H. P. King, Associated Press correspondent, reported from Suwon, 20 miles south of Seoul, that that the defence forces were trying to reform just north of Su-

Cashier Identifies Constable's Slayer

MONTREAL, June 28 (CP)—A 19-year-old bank cashier last night said that Thomas Rossler is the man who last month shot and killed an RCMP constable during an attempted bank hold-up here

"I'm sure that's the man," cashier Doris Paris said when confronted with the 45-year-old ex-convict at police headquarters.

Twelve other witnesses also paraded before the identification lineup and picked Rossler as the murder suspect. They included bank employees and bystanders who saw the gunman run out of the bank and shoot two men who tried to cut off his path of escape

One of them, constable Alex Gamman, died 35 hours later from a single bullet wound above the heart. The other, bank manager Stanley Bickley, was shot in the left leg.

8 Zoot-Suiters Get 4 Months Of Hard Labor

KITCHENER, June 28 (CP) — Eight of 15 members of a zoot-suit gang who pleaded guilty to charges of unlawful assembly last week today were sentenced to four months at hard labor by Magistrate H. R. Polson. Four of the group had also pleaden guilty to charges of carrying offensive weapons.

The seven other members, including one who pleaded guilty to carrying an offensive weapon, were given sentences of 30 days at hard labor.

Charges were laid after Kitchener police June 17 halted a trip to Crystal Beach on Lake Erie by the stripe-clad gang.

Four other members of the gang have elected trial by higher court.

Sentenced to four months were: Frank Gehl, George Degan, Douglas Smyth, Charles Degan, George Olinski, Frederick Smythe, Bertram Mills and John Gastonowich.

Thirty day sentences were given to Donald Schaus, Donald Bokert, Kenneth Wiles, Donald Cousineau, Edward Frame, Alfred Betts and F. March.

Gehl, Smythe, March and the two Degaus had pleaded guilty to carrying offensive weapons.

Allow Doctor To Practise

CONCORD, NH, June 28 (AP) —Dr. Hermann N. Sander, country physician, today won back from the State Board of Registration in Medicine his right to practise.

The board restored his licence to practice, which it suspended after he was acquitted March 9 of a murder charge in the death of a dying cancer patient, Mrs. Abbie Borroto, 59.

At his trial the prosecution contended Dr. Sander administered a deadly quantity of air into Mrs. Borroto's veins. The defence satisfied a jury the woman already was dead before the injection.

Commissioners Meet

OTTAWA, June 28 —(CP)— Canada's high commissioner in London will meet with other Commonwealth representatives Thursday in a conference termed by a government official as a "frank discussion of Commonwealth policy in Korea."

Call UK Troops To Deliver Meat

LONDON, June 28 (AP) — The government called out troops today to handle deliveries of meat after 1,000 drivers quit work at Smithfield Market, a central distributing market, because of a wage dispute.

Many London butcher shops were without supplies. Indications were that a portion of next week's ration would be available only in the form of canned meat.

The strike was called in protest against alleged delay in negotiations over wage increases.

Post Office Gives Hearing In Mail Suspect Cases

OTTAWA, June 28 (CP) — Brokers suspected of using the mails for fraudulent purposes will be given a hearing in the future by the Post Office before mailing privileges are denied to them, Postmaster-general Rinfret announced Tuesday in the Commons.

A three-man board has been established by the Post Office department to investigate complaints that the mails are being used by brokers and stock promotion companies for illegal purposes.

The Board, composed of the director of administration, the chief Post Office inspector and the department's solicitor, will hear evidence from alleged offenders before the Postmaster-general decides whether they should be denied mailing privileges.

Establishment of the board follows the department's recent action in denying use of the mails to a group of Toronto brokerage firms.

Mr. Rinfret said he and Justice Minister Garson conferred with C. P. McTague, counsel for the Ontario Brokers Association, and discussed a new procedure to consider charges of misuse of the mails. Mr. McTague agreed to the suggestion that a departmental board be established to investigate complaints and report to the Postmaster-general.

Mr. Rinfret said that while the procedure had been worked out with respect to use of the mails by brokers and others in similar business, the same formula could not be applied to service and other clubs whose mailing privileges were stopped because of the sending of lottery tickets.

A relaxation here would mean that lottery tickets could continue to be mailed until after the lottery date.

U.S. May Re-instate Frankie Filchock

MONTREAL, June 28 (CP). — Frankie Filchock, star quarterback of the Dominion champion Montreal Alouettes, may be reinstated in United States football circles, it was announced here today following conferences between Bert Bell, Commissioner of the National Football League, and President Leo Dandurand of the Alouettes.

Dandurand said Filchock will be given a private hearing by Bell early in July.

Flingin' Frankie was suspended by the American body four years ago after allegedly failing to report a bribe offered him while he was a member of New York Giants.

RED DRIVE IN KOREA—Arrow on the map shows how North Korean forces drove through Uijongbu corridor to the suburbs of Seoul which it is reported they have captured for the third time. Other Reds apparently fought their way earlier to a point 10 miles southwest of Seoul in an attempt to encircle the city. U.S. Air Force flights were cancelled to Seoul indicating Kimpo airport (3) may have fallen to the Reds.

Friendly Gin Rummy Game Ends In Cabbie's Death

TORONTO, June 28 (CP)—A "friendly" gin rummy game in a westend taxi office ended in death today for Keith Hunter 31-year-old cab driver, and a murder charge against Jack Robertson, 28. Robertson was remanded to July 5.

Hunter, a native of Pennfield Ridge, N.B., died from three stab wounds in the chest and back.

Hunter was reported to have died because of the turn of the jack of spades and a disputed $3 "pot." Police arrested Robertson at his home an hour after the incident. The accused man produced from the inside of his kitchen stove a bloody hunting knife believed to have been the death weapon, police said.

Cab drivers said they began the card game about 3 a.m. in the back of the taxi office at Gwynne and Queen Streets. Despite the insistence of the drivers that it was a "private" game, Robertson insisted on sitting in.

The argument ensued as Robertson dealt the cards two at a time and faced up the jack of spades, which Hunter claimed should have been dealt to his hand. The dispute carried out into the street and ended in a scuffle, Roberston let.

Later, police said, Robertson returned to the scene and another exchange took place, after which Hunter staggered into the taxi office and collapsed. He died soon after being taken to hospital.

UN Requests Arms Used To Free Korea

Momentous Decision As Organization Backs Up Orders

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., June 28—(AP)—The United Nations embarked upon an historic venture today by calling upon its members to use military force to back up a cease-fire order defied by Communist North Korea.

The decision was taken late Tuesday night by the Russian-boycotted Security Council, a few hours after President Truman announced that the United States was ordering planes and ships to support the invaded Republic of (South) Korea.

The vote was 7 to 1, the minimum number of affirmative votes required. India and Egypt asked to be recorded as not participating because they had not received instructions. Yugoslavia cast the negative vote.

Momentous Action

The Council's action was momentous in several ways:

1—It gave its stamp of approval to Truman's bold plan of direct action to stop Communist aggression. This was the first time in its history that the Council had authorized the military sanctions provided by the UN Charter.

2—It was a warning to Russia, although Russia was not mentioned in the US resolution, that the UN would not permit the seizure of countries by force.

3—It may have made the Russians angry enough that they will decide to make permanent their boycott which they started last January 10 in protest over the presence of Chinese Nationalist delegates.

Apart from the Council's action, there is another factor which may prolong the China-representation deadlock indefinitely. That is Truman's new policy on Formosa.

The President announced yesterday that he had ordered the Seventh Fleet to prevent any attack on Formosa and said the future status of Formosa will await restoration of security in the Pacific, a peace settlement with Japan, or consideration by the UN.

won under Gen. Choi Dyong Puk South Korean chief of staff. King said the Southerners had been badly mauled by the Northern tanks.

The South Korean government left Seoul Tuesday, pausing briefly at Suwon, military headquarters 25 miles from the capital, before moving still further south. The government travelled in a convoy of cars, trucks and jeeps along roads jam-packed with refugees from the war zone.

Pilots returning from American bombing attacks on northern invaders said from all appearances the capital was in Red hands.

Heavy Fighting

Landing at a southern Japan airbase the pilots said they saw heavy fighting but were unable to determine how the battle was going.

King also said Kimpo Airfield, 16 miles west and slightly north of Seoul, had been captured by the Reds.

He said Red forces were advancing on Suwon, the designated capital of the republic if Seoul fell.

Maj. A. E. Shook of Clovis, N. M., one of several pilots who knocked out six Russian-made heavy tanks, pictured Seoul as in the hands of the Communists.

No Report

There was no indication from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters here that the Red radio claim of the fall of Seoul was true.

Radio Pyongyang broadcast from the northern capital that Seoul had been occupied by northern troops after street fighting. It asserted that banks, public buildings and the provincial government had been taken over.

MacArthur's last summary said the South Korean army seemed to have recovered from the "surprise and shock action" of Sunday's invasion and the front "remains substantially unchanged."

All previous indications were that the Russian-trained North Koreans had been hurled back from Seoul to Uijongbu, 12 miles to the North, and beyond.

MacArthur's summary said the staying powers of both armies were "being put to the test."

On the high seas American naval forces manoeuvred to counter any amphibious operation by the Communists. Their patrols covered Formosa, the Nationalist China bastion 100 miles off the Chinese coast.

Swift Jets and light bombers were thrown into the battle on the orders of President Truman to save the young South Korean Republic from being overrun by the Russian-armed Northern forces.

An earlier statement from headquarters said an undetermined number of these sky raiders from Japan had loosed 500-pound bombs on Communist targets in bombing and strafing missions. The Jets carry two 500-pounders on bombing missions.

The later summary made no further mention of aerial attacks.

It noted that for the last 24 hours "the situation in Seoul has been fluid with movement on both sides."

An American informant said the invaders had been thrown back to Uijongbu. He reported that this information came from the South Korean army.

Uijongbu commands the valley down which the main Communist invasion force drove to Seoul. By most accounts the invaders twice reached Seoul and twice were thrown back.

The headquarters summary said the Southerners "apparently are continuing a stiff resistance" in the vicinity of Kimpo Airfield, 16 miles northwest of Seoul. The invaders previously were reported to have established a bridgehead on the south bank of the Han River near the airfield.

Some fighting also was reported on the outskirts of the port of Inchon (Jinsen), 20 miles southwest of Seoul. The summary did not elaborate, but the Northerners here may be irregulars. There have been no reports of regular troops reaching that far south.

The summary said several hundred junks and other light craft were sighted about 10 miles off Inchon. They were believed to be carrying the southern garrison which abandoned Ongjin peninsula, northwest of Seoul.

President Truman also ordered U.S. naval units based in Japan to go into action south of the 38th parallel, the line which divides the south from the Communist north. Aerial operations also are restricted to the area south of this line.

Radio Theft Case Couple Involved

Charged with being in possession of a stolen radio from a roomer at the Empress Hotel, William D Saunders, of St. Catharines, was remanded for judgment today to June 30 by Magistrate W. R. Philp, K.C.

Saunders pleaded not guilty to the charge, and conducted his own defence.

The radio was the property of Miss Loretta Shortt, who lives at the hotel. Bellhops Leo Howran and Frank Woods testified she was in the habit of checking her radio in the checkroom of the hotel when she went out of town for the weekend.

She testified she left the radio in the checkroom June 16 and returned June 18 when it was missing. None of the checkroom workers could say who had taken the radio out.

In Girls' Bag

The radio was later found in a bag believed owned by Saunders. In possession of the bag at the time it was found was an 18-year-old girl from New Westminster, B.C., Viola Chase.

She testified she had spent the weekend in city hotels with Saunders, and had seen the radio, but had not known it was in the bag she was carrying. She was picked up at the CNR station in the early morning of June 20.

Night manager at the hotel, Fergus O'Brien, said he had seen Saunders around the hotel all weekend, but could not say whether Saunders was a guest.

Miss Chase said she and Saunders were registered as Mr. and Mr. D. Walsh, but that she knew him only as Saunders.

Acting crown counsel F. D. Kerr said there was a clear case for a conviction, but Magistrate Philp argued that Mr. Kerr had not shown the bag to have been definitely in the possession of Saunders.

L'Islet), joint chairman of the Commons - Senate committee, summarized more than 1,000,000 words of evidence heard by the committee in meetings from early April to last week.

Comprehensive Review

In what was described as the most comprehensive review of old-age security ever undertaken, the committee studied the pension plans of other countries. They involved:

1. Old-age assistance paid to the needy.
2. Pensions based on the insurance system.
3. A universal pay-as-you-go system.

The committee defined the universal pay-as-you-go system "as a method by which pensions are paid to all persons at a given age on the basis of a flat uniform benefit out of funds currently raised from year to year."

The committee estimated that universal pensions to all Canadians 70 and over would cost about $324,000,000 in 1951, with payments going to about 675,000 persons. The estimated cost of old-age assistance to the 65-69 group would amount to about $64,000,000 in 1951, with pensions going to about 141,000 persons.

More than 250,000 Canadians are receiving pensions under the present system which costs the federal government and the provinces about $136,000,000 annually.

Could Be Absorbed

The committee suggested that the federal government's present annual contribution of $106,000,000 could be absorbed in the universal pay-as-you-go plan. The remaining $250,000,000 to finance the federal share of the program could be obtained through contributions from employers and employees.

"If the ideal of universal contribution is to be approached if not fully attained, it would be necessary to require contributions from individuals who now are exempt from the payment of income tax," said the report.

The committee advised that any plan considered should not interfere with employee pension plans the purchase of governmental or private annuities, or private saving.

Health Minister Martin has announced that the committee's views will be placed before the Dominion-Provincial conference to be held either in September or October.

Under existing legislation, the Federal government cannot cancel the present old-age pensions payments without giving the provinces 10 years' notice. However, if it could constitutionally start a universal pay as you go system for all over 70, the provinces might be ready to agree to change in existing agreements.

Prices Up Slightly On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, June 28—(CP)—Moderate support appeared lifting prices slowly upwards as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today following two days of sharp decline. Volume for the first three hours was 2,165,000 shares, about 551,000 shares less than yesterday's similar period.

The market opened on a strong note on moderately heavy buying but traders became wary and prices settled into a comparatively narrow price path.

Papers moved upwards in industrials and liquors also brightened. Refining oils were strong in early dealings but weakened as the session progressed. Leading utilities were higher and steels showed an almost solid list of declines. The advance, generally, was confined to key stocks like International Paper, Bell Telephone, Hiram Walker's and B.A. oil.

Western oils jumped ahead strongly at the opening and spent the rest of the session holding the early advances. Gains ranged up to 25 cents in leaders.

Advances doubles losses in base metals. Consolidated Smelters, hard hit in previous markets this week when prices slumped following news of fighting in Korea, was the strongest issue.

Junior gold producers showed a broad list of gains ranging up to 10 cents.

Home Building Hits Snag, To Cut Number

OTTAWA, June 28 (CP) — Canada's home construction program has run into a two-pronged snag—a new upsurge in building costs and a shortage of lumber.

Resources Minister Winter told the Commons Tuesday night that the two factors are "likely" to reduce the number of homes constructed this year.

"Prices of lumber have increased sharply in all parts of the country," Mr. Winters said, "and there now is evidence that even at increased prices lumber is not readily available for house builders."

The increase had forced the Crown-owned Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation to postpone four projects for married quarters for defence personnel because the prices bid by contractors ranged from $800 to $1,300 a unit above prices for similar houses in 1949.

See Some Trend

"The same trend is showing in private house building," he said.

Mr. Winters spoke as the Chamber considered a $75,000,000 item in his departmental estimates to cover advances to CMHC, the government-operated lending institution.

In the housing discussion, Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton) said that if the rise in building costs continued the benefits of the National Housing Act would be nullified unless the government raised the amount of loans available under the Act.

Mr. Winters said the government did not intend to adjust loans to take care of "marked increases in cost both to the builder and the home owner resulting from the increase in the price of lumber."

"We deem it better," he added, "to face a decline in the number of starts rather than add to the inflationary trend."

Act Amended

The minister recalled that the Housing Act was amended at the last session of parliament to permit the Federal government and the provinces to enter agreements leading to public assistance in the housing field.

In Ontario, there is a lack of serviced land within the large municipalities. The Federal government is working with the Ontario government towards a "substantial" number of land-assembly projects under which land will be served and made available to private builders prepared to build homes of a type at a price satisfactory to the two governments.

and support this action of high courage and firm statesmanship."

Agrees With Charter

He stressed that the US action, although taken on ites own, is in accordance both with the UN Charter and with the UN resolution of Sunday, calling for withdrowal of North Korean troops.

Mr. Pearson reviewed the developments in Korea since Sunday and the action taken by the United Nations Security Council which ordered the Communist forces to withdraw behind the 38th parallel.

He said it was obvious the invading forces would not obey the order. It was also a fact that the Security Council had no forces with which to back up its cease fire order.

Up To Members

In this case it was the responsibility of individual members of the U.N. to support the Security Council with armed forces if necessary.

Initially, at least, it seemed necessary that any such action would have to be taken by individual nations independently and it was this responsibility which the United States had recognized.

Canada was not a Security Council member and therefore was not called upon for any decision but he was sure the country would support the Council's call to action because it represented a search for peace through collective action.

It was the government's firm hope that such action would "soon" end the conflict.

5 Months Reformatory For Indecent Assault

Arthur Dolan, of Toronto, charged with the indecent assault of a 10-year-old girl, was today found guilty and sentenced to five months in reformatory by Magistrate W. R. Philp.

Dolan, whose case was heard last week, pleaded not guilty to the charge. The girl he was charged with assaulting testified he had assaulted her indecently several times, the first time in a theatre.

Giving judgment, His Worship said a letter from the accused to the girl was "obscene" and alluded to "anticipated indecencies . . and the repetition of past indecencies." Acting crown counsel E. D. Kerr remarked it was "a flagrant case."

May Vote Funds To Extend Wharf

PORT HOPE, June 28 — Queen's Wharf in Port Hope Harbor will be extended 320 feet, if supplementary estimates for harbor improvements are approved at Ottawa. According to John M. James, MP, the estimates will be passed early next week.

Work is expected to begin on this project before the end of the summer. The total expenditure is estimated at $109,000.

The 320-foot extension will provide needed wharf facilities, and should attract industry to Port Hope.

Sea Cadets To Aid Visiting Watercraft

All craft docking at the government wharf on George St. this summer will be met by members of the RCSC Howe, it was announced today.

They will assist in tieing up the boats, keep the spectators away, help supply water for the craft, offer any information desired by the tourists and help with the disposal of garbage.

During the past week the Cadets have manned their new quarters, the buildings at the wharf. A Cadet will be at the wharf throughout the day and evening from Monday to Friday and two Cadets on Saturday and Sunday.

The buildings are being renovated to serve as a permanent base. The exterior work was completed Tuesday night.

Maj.-General Hogarth Played City Lacrosse

The death of Major General Donald M Hogarth in Toronto on Tuesday will recall to older citizens, especially those who remember the Peterborough Lacrosse Club at the turn of the century, the season he played on the local team.

Don Hogarth and Jack Mooney came to Peterborough about that time, probably were invited by the club executive. The names of Hogarth and Mooney were soon as well known around town as those of Jack and Jim McCabe, Lionel King, Rollie Glover, and the other local members of the team. They were both shifty, rugged players.

Peterborough people of that time have always remembered Don Hogarth as he went on to financial prominence from a humble beginning. His success included his service during the first war.

Police Have Identified Body Of Man In Tree

KINGSTON, June 28 — (CP) —Body of a man found hanging from a tree near a picnic ground five miles north of here has been positively identified as that of Bernard McConville of Kingston, police said today. They said he died two years ago.

Identification was made by David V. McConville, a brother, and by a piece of paper found in the dead man's pockets.

Police said they were never in doubt about the identity of the body, discovered last Sunday. However, they are puzzled as to how it could remain undiscovered for two years.

Some confusion arose in Montreal over a report that the dead man was Andrew McConnell of Montreal. An Andrew McConnell of Montreal telephoned the police yesterday to tell them he was still alive.

Count Us In Too On The Farm Subsidies

The U.S. Government is spending or lending more than eleven million dollars a day to keep farms and farmers flourishing. It is subsidizing and in other ways supporting the prices of corn, cotton, butter, tobacco, cheese, and practically every other produce of the farm and land. The prices to the consumers (who are the people paying the taxes to provide the daily $11,000,000) are kept high, for the law of supply and demand is inoperative. At the same time, the U.S. has mountains of food on its government hands: 88 million pounds of dried eggs, 316 million pounds of powdered milk, 3,600,000 bales of cotton, 516,242,531 bushels of wheat and corn and other mountains of other commodities rising all over the American horizon. It is a spectacular situation, with fantastic repercussions.

• • •

The price support of potato crops, and the results, are well known to Canadians. A less notorious instance is the state of Washington's pea crop. Its peas were bolstered at $6.50 a hundred pounds. At that price, pea-growing was very profitable. Wherever peas could be grown in the state, peas were grown. The Government acquired 45,000 tons of dried peas from that state, at $6.50 a hundredweight. Lately it became fed up with peas, stopped buying, and removed the price prop. This year the pea-growers of Washington expect to get, in the free market, not more than $2.50 or $2.75 a hundred pounds, for a huge crop of 85,000 tons expected and planted before the Government tired of supporting them. At the end of this season, in that corner of the U.S., there will be the new crop of 85,000 tons, 20,000 tons which the growers have in storage, and 45,000 which the Government has bought. The annual domestic consumption of peas in the U.S.A. is only 50,000 tons.

• • •

Canadians need not tut-tut too much about the U.S. farm subsidies. This country has its own pretty extensive scale for a population a twelfth that of the U.S.A. (Don't forget the tons of butter now on Ottawa's hands.) The extent of Canada's dabbling in such matters is not as clearly unfolded as in the U.S.A. Perhaps only experts in Government departments could reveal the whole story, and they are not encouraged to do it. The American people get the facts of their price-support situation chiefly from their press. The Canadian press is not large enough to afford an army of trained snoops to dig out the whole story.

• • •

Here are bits and pieces of it, gleaned from the last budget brought down in Parliament. In the last four years Ottawa spent $74,391,000 on "freight assistance" on western feed grains, and will spend $16,900,000 this fiscal year. Between 1945 and 1948 it subsidized milk and milk products to the tune of $80,279,000. (The subsidy has been discontinued.) In the last four years it has paid $24,138,000 premium on hog carcasses suitable for export to the United Kingdom. This year it will pay $5,100,000. In last March's budget there are the following items listed as "special expenditures" for the year: deficit of the Prairie Farm Emergency Fund, $12,800,000; expenditures under the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act, $3,000,000; the net operating loss of the Agricultural Prices Support Account for 1948-49, in connection with the Nova Scotia apple crops and the 1948 Ontario crop of white beans, of $3,500,000; the deficit of the Canadian Wheat Board for flaxseed and rapeseed operations of $4,600,000.

• • •

These are only isolated items of the Canadian farm subsidy and price support policies. Many of them are in the consumer's interests. For instance, the subsidies on milk products kept the prices down. The point is, however, that Canadians need not crow over the Americans too grandly. We do not know the total direct and indirect cost to Canadian taxpayers of subsidizing agricultural products and farming. The U.S.A. is spending $11,000,000 a day. If Canada spent $733,000 a day aiding in one way or another its farmers and agricultural production, that rate would be comparable to the U.S.A. spending its eleven million dollars a day, considering that the national income is one-fifteenth of the U.S.A. national income. Canada is not paying out as much as $733,000 a day of the taxpayers' money on such subsidies, but that rate is only $266,000,000 a year, and our figures given above indicate that Ottawa is spending millions.

• • •

City folk grumble and growl about the protection given farming. They must remember that industry (which gives most of them their jobs) is highly protected also, by subsidies, tariffs and import bans. Canadians pay several hundred dollars more than Americans do for the same cars. They can buy across the border ten hundred items more cheaply than in Canada, from nylon to films and radios. The made-in-Canada varities are protected, to keep Canadian factory workers busy and prosperous, as grown-in-Canada foods are protected to keep farmers busy and prosperous. Canada would cease to exist as a nation if her economy were not artificially bolstered. Completely free enterprise, in industry or agriculture, with no government intervention, would ruin this country.

British Justice: South African Version

The following is printed verbatim from an account in the Johannesburg Star. It tells its own story without comment from us:

'I don't want this man to be discharged from the police,' said the Judge-President (Mr. Justice Maritz) in Pretoria yesterday when a Native detective, Lucas was convicted of culpable homicide. He was sentenced to three months' hard labour, suspended for a year.

He said that he was on the diamond staff at Premier Mine and had been in the police for 14 years. He went home one day to find that his wife had not cooked a meal, and that she was unfaithful.

He was ill and very angry. He gave her a beating with a kerrie, and she died. They had four children.

'A European might have used a cane to beat his wife', said the Judge-President, 'but these people think nothing of using a stick. We must remember that they are very near to the savage, but this man is from the upper stratum.'

Answering the Judge-President, Mr. Smeath Thomas (for the Crown) said he understood that it was within the Commissioner's discretion not to discharge Lucas. His immediate superior officer was, he understood, anxious to employ Lucas again. Lucas had been suspended for a year.

A sergeant, under whom Lucas had worked, testified to his good character and efficiency.

'You went a little bit too far,' said the Judge-President. 'You hit her too hard. I don't think the Commissioner of Police will regard this very seriously, for you are not a skelm.'

The Judge-President asked counsel to have his remarks conveyed to the Commissioner of Police. 'It could have happened to any of us sitting here,' he said.

Canadians In Demand

The Ottawa Citizen has been casting its eyes over empty seats in higher capital offices and flushes with good Canadian pride at them as tokens of other nation's esteem. Mr. Alex. Skelton's chair in the department of Trade and Commerce is vacant. He has been borrowed by the U.K. government to join a commission that will advise on a constitution for Nigeria. Dr. Brock Chisholm, former deputy minister of National Health is in Geneva as Director-General of the U.N. World Health Organization. Dr. Hugh Keenleyside is absent from his post as deputy minister of Resources; he is in Bolivia, heading a technical mission to assist that country. The assistant deputy minister of agriculture is in Rome with the Food and Agricultural Organization of U.N. Another Ottawa official, a statistician, helped Palestine set up its records office; Canada's chief electoral officer has been in Colombia advising its government about the machinery of democracy; a former deputy-postmaster helped Peru to revise its postal services.

The Citizen notices a host of other empty chairs in Ottawa and finds them all a "tribute to Canadian progress and to the high standard of Canada's public service". Canadian skills, intelligence and, we can even say, experience in statecraft and national service are honoured and valued abroad. At home we tend to think of civil servants as seat-warmers.

ORLEY FARM, by Anthony Trollope (McClelland & Stewart).

IF you are looking for an absorbing novel, full of good sense, good humour and admirably drawn characters, to read during the summer, let me suggest "Orley Farm" in the handsome new edition which Knopf has just brought out. If you have never read any Trollope before, you have a great new world to explore. If you have read only his novels of Barsetshire, with their wonderful gallery of clergymen, you will be interested to see what happens when Trollope turns his attention to lawyers. I really cannot recommend Trollope too highly; not to have read at least a few of his books is to have missed one of the minor pleasures of English literature.

Why minor? Because even a devoted admirer cannot call Trollope a great novelist. He falls just short of that quality of genius which is so easy to recognize and so hard to define. But he has every other virtue in abundance. His plots are excellent; his understanding of people is profound; he writes a pleasant, genial prose which is easy to read; he never gets out of his depth; he has a rich humour; he never indulges in humbug or high-flown moralizing. He writes as one would expect an intelligent, industrious, methodical, hard-bitten but not cynical nineteenth century country gentleman to write. He never disappoints.

One of his great qualities, for mature readers, is that he thoroughly understands the place which love plays in the lives of all but a few exceptional people. He has love stories in his novels, but they are not inflated into great passions. He writes instead about what most of us are interested in most of the time: politics, money, law suits, inheritances, and quarrels.

"Orley Farm" is, briefly, about an inheritance and a law suit. It contains what are surely some of the best legal scenes in English literature, and some caricatures of legal types which lawyers still take the trouble to resent. It is a long, absorbing, amusing, admirable book. And in this new edition it is excellently printed and a pleasure to touch.

TOO LITTLE LOVE, by Robert Henriques (Macmillan).

THIS is a formidable book both in size and content. It has 562 pages and ranges over the years from 1926 to 1948—epoch making years. The author has also chosen to cover the lives of a great many people. As his chief characters, Colonel Henriques has taken almost a complete section of the English social scale, from the grand old man of the Manor, General Meredith, to the lowest of his many servants. It is the reaction of these servants and the General's friends, living in an almost feudal state in their village in the Cotswolds, to the changing social system that has become the much vaunted "bloodless revolution" in Britain in the past 30 years, the assimilation into the new pattern of the country of those sufficiently pliable to fit and the isolation and feelings of betrayal of the "Old Guard" as they find themselves left, like so many pebbles on a beach, with their memories, that is the theme of the story.

The book is split into sequences and the sequences into numerous short scenes, or sketches, depicting the actions of the various characters as they happen. This choppiness prevents the reader from developing any deep interest in any particular person, although each is drawn with great sympathy and understanding, just as the situations in which they find themselves are equally believable. The treatment meted out to the small Jewish boy, in the exclusive school to which he is sent by his bullying comrades draws a parallel to a similar action in Ruth Chatterton's recently published book "Homeward Bourne" so that it is not only feasible behaviour but a reality which occurs here in a democracy as well as in the autocratic Britain of the 1920's.

Colonel Henriques is a very intelligent man and has written brilliantly and vitally on a subject with which he is in close contact. For years he has lived with the "huntin' shootin' and fishin'" set in England and in "Too Little Love" he is rather sad about the passing of this era of the county gentry. I cannot pretend to know whether their passing is any great loss to anyone or whether what follows will be any great improvement but when Tommy Black, one of the characters in the story says— "... I think I shall clear out and live somewhere else. Somewhere sunny and warm and bright. With Mimosa and Champagne instead of all you horsey people..." I must admit I was with him, 100 per cent.

THE THOMAS MANN READER, edited by Joseph Warner Angell (McClelland & Stewart).

THIS large and handsome anthology has been brought out in celebration of Dr. Thomas Mann's 75th birthday. It is a fitting tribute to one of the foremost men of letters of our day. Mann is not easy to read; he is not popular in the sense of being a best-seller; his philosophic and mystical novels are often seemingly at variance with the tone of the times. Nevertheless, by sheer weight of intellect and creative power he has achieved a position where even those who dislike his work and disagree with his ideas acknowledge his integrity and his superiority, and where his books sell in very large numbers everywhere in the civilized world. It is said that Goethe is one of Thomas Mann's heroes; he has himself achieved much of Goethe's supremacy in the literary world.

The Thomas Mann Reader contains the two short novels "Tonio Kroger" and "Death In Venice", four short stories, selections from "Buddenbrooks", "The Magic Mountain", the Joseph trilogy and "Doctor Faustus" and nine essays. The translations are all by H. T. Lowe-Porter, who has been Dr. Mann's translator since first his books appeared in English.

This is an admirable book, and it is to be hoped that it will serve to introduce many new readers to one of the great creative minds of our day. Reading Thomas Mann is not child's play, but it is well worth the effort it demands.

THE HEPBURN, by Jan Estcott (Ambassador Books Ltd.).

THIS book is a worthy successor to "The Border Lord", it is written in the same vein and covers a similar historical period. Miss Westcott breathes life into her characters and allows them to speak in a manner understandable to the reader without forfeiting any of the historical flavour of the novel. The story is chiefly the stormy wooing of Patrick Hepburn and Jane Gordon during the early days of the reign of James Stuart as King of Scotland. The King's love affair with Margaret Drummond, and her sudden tragic death; which leaves the way clear for a marital alliance with England, and the rising of the Pretender Perkin Warbeck are all part of the colourful back-cloth to the main romance. This is just the book for a long summers evening.

MELTING POINT?

Letter To The Editor

FAILURE OF ORGANIZED RELIGION

Sir: In your short quotation from the King's recent message to the Archbishop of Canterbury concerning the decline in public and private standards of conduct, there seems to be an extremely fitting choice of words that seem deserving of careful thought. In writing of the general condition of our religious attitude and conduct he says, "Our civilization has a religious basis, our tradition is a Christian tradition".

The first phrase carries us way back to the dawn of history, when man, in the discomfort of his scant clothing and abode awakens from the chill of the night to feel the warmth of the sun, and is thankful. In gratitude for his meager comforts from an unknown source he establishes rites and ceremonies and forms a religion. So throughout the entire realm of man, religion becomes a basic trait, a trait which, through the increase of knowledge and revelation takes on the form of a many faceted crystal, with a supreme unknown power as its core.

From this multitude of facets, the King selects one and makes his second phrase "our tradition is a Christian tradition". The facet which he selects is not the largest in the point of numbers, but the one which to many of us appears most brilliant, and the one which provides our national religious tradition. This word "tradition" is a puzzling one, and in its theological definition we find the words "a code of doctrine and discipline, independent of the written word, and sufficient to refute heresy, supposed to have been established by Christ or his apostles, and handed down from generation to generation". Indeed, quite a mouthful to fit into our appetite for advanced knowledge and understanding, and one apt to cause a bit of discomfort to the nervous and tense digestion of the present. Yet, in our social structure it serves to form one of the threads of tradition comprising the religious fabric of our social existence.

Without further comment in his message we find the King concluding briefly and pointedly, with the words "both are threatened today". There is no doubt in our minds but what he is right, but with religion so ingrained in man's existence from the start, it appears that if religion is threatened, that threat must come from the existing "tradition". Tradition has always been threatened, and history cites many examples of threats to religious tradition. We don't have to look back many centuries to the sun worshipping Aztecs of our own continent. We know how they found their tradition threatened by the advancing tradition of Christ with rapine and plunder. So, tradition changes and its advancement is always stubbornly resisted.

Today, we have advanced in every way and the entire pace is faster and more vitalized. To meet this changing tempo we need a vitalized religion which tradition as it exists at present does not furnish, so again we find tradition threatened. When one comes up against the severe nervous tension and strain of modern clashing conditions, the tradition of organized religion fails miserably to fill the needed gap. The U.S. commemorates the memory of four chaplains in the recent war, who in the hour of crisis abandoned tradition for their last hours, for the action of a vitalized religion. How much larger they loom upon the horizon than the leaders of organized religious tradition.

Anyone who has even a faint knowledge of the words and actions of Christ, knows that he had little to do with existing tradition. He was filled with a vitalized action of a way of living that would dispel fear and strain. One can hardly picture him standing before a multitude, under the heel of the Roman conqueror and saying words to the effect that they would be damned unless they did thus and so. Yet, in keeping with Christian tradition we find the leaders of organized Christian religion adopting just such an attitude toward Communism.

One cannot help but wonder what effect it would have on world peace and world tension, if they were to forget tradition and remember the way of Christ and say "Thou shalt love thy God even if thou art a Communist". Perhaps our religion and the peace of the world would not be so threatened.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

For this cause I Paul, the prisoner of Jesus Christ for you Gentiles, if ye have heard of the dispensation of the grace of God which is given me to you-ward: how that by revelation he made known unto me the mystery... Which in other ages was not made known unto the sons of men, as it is now revealed unto his holy apostles and prophets, by the Spirit; that the Gentiles should be fellowheirs, and of the same body, and partakers of his promise in Christ by the gospel: whereof I was made a minister, according to the gift of the grace of God given unto me by the effectual working of his power...

For this cause I bow my knees unto the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, of whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named, that he would grant you, according to the riches of his glory, to be strengthened with might by his Spirit in the inner man... And to know the love of Christ, which passeth knowledge, that ye might be filled with all the fulness of God. (Eph. 3: 1-3, 5-7, 14-16, 19.)

DIES AT HOME — Former Minister of Mines and Resources, James Allison Glen He served as Speaker of the died in Ottawa Tuesday night. House of Commons from 1940 to 1945.

House Speaker James A. Glen Dies At Ottawa

OTTAWA, June 28 — (CP) — James Alison Glen, 72, a Scotsman who emigrated to Canada and ruled over the Dominion's parliamentary debates for five years, died at his home here on Tuesday.

Four times elected to the House of Commons, the former Russell, Man., barrister was chairman of the Canadian section of the International Joint Commission at the time of his death.

He was Speaker of the House of Commons during the critical war years from 1940 until 1943, when he entered the cabinet as Minister of Mines and Resources. He resigned his seat in 1947 due to ill health.

Son of a Renton, Dumbartonshire, boot and shoe merchant, Mr. Glen graduated in law from Glasgow University and emigrated to Canada in 1911. He went straight to Winnipeg where he had friends and business contacts and later set up a law practice at Russell, where he resided until taking up residence in Ottawa in the 1940s.

On School Board

A keen interest in education problems prompted Mr. Glen to become a member of the Russell elected president of the Manitoba School Board and in 1920 he was School Trustees Association, a post he held for four years. In 1924 he was chosen head of the Manitoba Economic Conference.

He was an early member of the Progressive Party in Manitoba. When the party entered the 1921 general eelction under the leadership of T. A. Crerar, now Senator Crerar, Mr. Glen served as election agent for his chief. He also won his own first seat in the Commons.

Re-Elected

Defeated in 1930, he returned to the Commons as Progressive-Liberal member for the Manitoba constituency of Marquette in 1935 and was re-elected in 1940 and 1945.

In the Commons Mr. Glen distinguished himself by his independent and aggressive attitude as well as by the gifts of logic and persuasiveness that had made him one of the Prairie Provinces' best-known lawyers.

In failing health in 1946, he was forced to give up the mines and resources portfolio the following year and was subsequently appointed Canadian chairman of the International Joint Commission.

His survivors include his widow, here, and a son, David Paul Glen, a commercial airline pilot.

Mutuals Gain A 6-3 Win Against UEW

In the snappiest men's softball game seen so far this season at the Bowl, the Mutuals cemented their grip on top spot in the loop with a 6-3 win over UEW last night before a slim and chilly crowd. The loss dropped the UE crew back into a second-place tie with East City, but the losers put up a fine fight of it, though still shy Blair Thomson—with an injured thumb. Reg. Gordon shaded Don Bigford a trifle in pitching as both threw seven-hit ball and had good support most of the way.

The winners bunched hits and cashed in on a walk and two errors to clinch it in the sixth. Jack Mackness pulled off a sensational running catch in left centre, and the Mutuals reeled off one double-play. Bob Crowe led the winners at bat with three for four, one a homer, as Dalton got two in four, and Giardino a triple. Buck Legrow had three in four tries for UEW and Conlin two hits in four attempts.

By The Canadian Press

In Weston, the Lions defeated Toronto Riverdales 19-16 in a wide-open lacrosse tilt. It was Weston's second win of the year and Toronto's eighth straight loss.

Four Toronto penalties early in the game proved costly, allowing Weston to pour in five goals without reply. Ted Downer scored four for the winners and Sonny Rowntree, Jesse James and Johnny Lumley had three each.

Bruce Webster hit for four goals for Toronto. Wimpy Timpson and J. J. Hill each got the hat trick.

Some folks don't like chesty people, but then they mean the braggarts. Actually, one should hold the chest high—and, Ace Percival of the Sports College advises it strongly for athletes. The reason is that this will draw the stomach and lower abdomen up and away from the hips, giving the muscles in this region room to move efficiently. A high chest also helps the heart action and deep breathing. It is a reasonable assumption, and not only should athletes develop the habit, but all folks—though it might be tough for those who have let their chests sag south of the equator.

Stew Richardson, former manager of men's softball squads in the City League, is strictly an umpire now. One of the regular arbiters in the girls' softball circuit—and he wouldn't mind calling 'em in the men's loop, too. Talking to him the other day, we asked if he preferred umpiring to managing. His answer was an emphatic "yes". All your worries are right during the game when umping, and not for days before and days after each game when managing. Lining up players, getting them on deck for games, fussing about equipment, etc. No, sir, Stew will take umpiring any day. And he's a good official, too.

Gene Dopp has come out with a 1950 book for the OLA called "Lacrosse Records and Rules of Box Lacrosse." An interesting publication on the history of the sport with up-to-date rules and regulations. Deals with the old game of field lacrosse and then the boxla variety of 1932—according to Gene—though we saw is played in 1931 in Peterborough. This Indian-originated and strictly Canadian sport has an interesting history which fans should know, and they might also like to get thoroughly acquainted with the modern rules. Write to Dopp at 72 Parkway Ave., Toronto, for copies at so much a throw.

St. Catharines scribe thinks the Petes' senior lacrossers might well be called the Irishers. He mentions some of the names like Fitzgerald, Thorpe, Ashbee, Magee, Creighton, Dugan, Nolan, Curtin, Buchanan, Horton, Kinna, as well as Vitarelli and a few more, though it would have to be the O'Vitarelli, wouldn't it, if Dootch or his forebears hailed from Athlone or some such? Anyway, he says: "Memory is still green from 1949 of how this Peterborough unit knows how to lay the hickory on and make it stay." It is a fact that the Petes back up from no one in senior "A" company when the going gets extra rugged.

Crescents Do Rhumba

A slippery dance floor and a slew of rather cheap penalties didn't help the Petes' cause any in Owen Sound last e'en as they dropped a 10-5 OLA decision. Bob Thorpe was an absentee, also, with a swelled knee. Red Creighton is hoping to obtain a few reinforcements shortly as the schedule is a wearing one. Ralph Speck turned in a fine goaltending chore, Dootch Vitarelli scored two goals and Em Creighton aided on a pair. Slater got three for the Crescents, while two each were counted by Foote, Gillespie and Woods. Owen Sound is atop the pile with nine wins and one loss, Brampton and St. Kitts being tied next with seven and one, as the Petes have six and four, Tigers five and five, Mimico one and eight, Weston one and nine, with Toronto winless in seven starts. The Crescents play the Petes here Friday.

Mutuals had to hustle plenty to gain their 6-3 men's softball win o'er UEW last eve in the best game yet this schedule. A one-hour job with both sides really hot. It kept Mutuals nicely atop the heap and shoved UE into a second-place tie with East City, who pulled out a 16-12 victory against the luckless Orphans. Latter made it interesting in their tussle and had it 10-all when Guilfoyle came to the rescue, his buddies batting in enough to ensure the decision in a wide-open slugfest. It was colder than halfway across and 10 feet down Chemong Lake on Feb. 22, and not too many close relatives took in the twin bill.

East City Gets Decision Over Orphans

Cashing in on their hits with ducks on the pond, East City yanked out a 16-12 verdict over Orphans last night at the Bowl to go into second-place tie with UEW. It was a loose and hard-hitting affair with Sanderson of the tail-end Orphans nicked for 16 safeties, while Doris of East City was shelled out in the sixth, and Guilfoyle finished up. The losers nearly upset the apple-cart, and they outhit the winners, but were jittery in the field. A bit of everything was seen in this struggle. The winners got the only two-ply killing of the joust.

Red Sullivan was hot to smash out four hits in five times up but Russ Scriver led his side with two for two, while others getting two safeties were Cornwall, Spencer, Jacquith and Curry. The latter hit a homer, Jacquith had a triple and double, as Sullivan slapped out a triple and Scriver a two-bagger. Turner and Griffin each had four for five to top Orphans, Greenlaw and Sanderson having three, and Riches and Stewart two. The latter hit a home run, Crowley got a three-base blow, and Sanderson and Turner thumped out doubles.

Owen Sounders Beat Petes As Penalties Prove Costly

By DON GRANT

The league-leading Owen Sound Crescents planned to tour the Scenic City Tuesday night with Red Creighton's lacrossers in tow but had to be satisfied with a 10-5 photo finish before 1,200 home fans. Cheap slashing penalties actually cost the fourth-place Petes to lose the tilt. Besides several all-important goals being scored while Peterborough was, not one, but two and three men short, due to penalties, the strength of the short-handed crew was sapped early. Bob Thorpe and Wendie Lewis were absent from the lineup.

While the players of both teams were waltzing about on the waxy terazzo floor (a dance was held in the arena Monday night and all the wax was not removed before game-time) goalkeepers Lloyd (Moon) Wooton and Ralph Speck provided the crowd with thrillers. Several times Wooton charged from the net to snare loose balls or check a Peterborough player in addition to stopping rubber between the pipes. Once he featured in a near-scoring play. Dootch Vitarelli finally caught him cold to score easily with an open net.

Speck Shines

Ralph Speck turned in his most brilliant network display to date this year. While the Petes were short-handed, he was on the bit with his feet, body and stick, doing the splits to keep the margin down. The Owen Sound fans thoroughly enjoyed his play.

Other than the work of the goalkeepers, the game was slowed by the condition of the floor. During the first quarter players of both squads were slipping, either shooting wide or losing the ball altogether. This tended to make the game rough with the stick being laid on by all players.

Down the scoring lane, Russ Slater had three goals for Owen Sound while Jack Foote, last year with the locals, Doug Gillespie and Marlowe Woods, each had two. Dootch Vitarelli again topped the locals with two goals while Em Creighton assisted on two.

Opens Scoring

Gerry Fitzgerald threw a scare into the Owen Sound fans when he broke into the clear, Dugan feinting a pass, to open scoring. While two locals were serving a penalties for slashing Doug Gillespie, first with Allum then with Jordon, tied the score and then put Owen Sound one up. Dugan snapped up a pass from Kinna on a free ball for a scoring breakaway to again tie the score. Foote ended the period scoring with an overhead shot from close in.

Marlowe Woods started an Owen Sound scoring spree early in the second when he rapped home a rebound. Curly Mason then combined with Foote after two stops by Speck to put Owen Sound three goals up. Russ Slater then added his first two goals both from a position directly in front of the crease. Peterborough got one back late in the period when Em Creighton and Dootch Vitarelli passed from corner to corner until Vitarelli finally connected from the edge of the crease.

Wooton's goal-tending kept the locals off in the third while Owen Sound collected two. The first came when they were one man short. Foote, from 10 feet out, dropped in a Woods pass. Russ Slater drifted in a long shot two minutes later while Nolan and Allum were roughing in front of the net.

Petes started to come back in the fourth but Wooton kept them clear until the 13-minute mark when Creighton duplicated the Vitarelli scoring play with Kinna slamming home the ball. A minute later Vitarelli grabbed a loose ball when Wooton was at centre to dash in to score on the open net. Woods ended the scoring with four seconds left on a corner shot.

Stewart Gets An Ace At Peterborough Club

The first hole in one at the Peterborough Golf Club in two years occurred yesterday afternoon, and Reg Stewart — who played hockey for Legionnaires the past winter — did the trick. Following a lesson from pro Gord Harrison, Reg went out with Gord, Arnold O'Heron and Bruce Meredith (assistant pro of Kawartha Club last summer) for a friendly match. He teed off on the 16th hole, a par three of 190 yards, and the ball rolled into the cup — as much to the amazement of the likeable Stewart, who is just rated a fair golfer yet, as to his companions.

Red Wings Lash Springfield In Doubleheader

By The Associated Press

Rochester's forte is its awesome batting power. But the Red Wings are back in first place in the International League today because of two left-handed pitchers named Jack and Mike.

These hurlers—Jack Collum and Mike Schultz—stopped Stan Hack's slumping Springfield Cubs, 3-0 and 8-6, Tuesday night.

Schultz, making his first start of the season, peeled off a one-hitter in the first game. Collum hurled six scoreless relief innings as Rochester dealt Springfield its eighth straight loss in the nightcap.

Tumble Royals

Baltimore Orioles, aided by walks, tumbled Montreal from the league lead by trimming the Royals 7-5. Baltimore scored four runs in the first inning on only two hits. Montreal's starter, George Thomas, walked four men—and three of them scored.

Jersey City edged to within 1½ games of first place by twice defeating Toronto 4-1 and 8-5. The opener was the completion of a game started May 7. Jersey City had built up a 4-1 bulge in three innings when play was halted by Toronto's Sunday curfew law.

Syracuse tallied two runs in the ninth inning to shade Buffalo 7-5. Bob Sanders, in relief, gained his second victory. The winners put across the deciding tallies with the aid of a bunt, three walks and a hit batsman.

Harper Captures PGA Golf Title

COLUMBUS, O., June 28 (AP) —Chandler Harper, of Portsmouth, Va., won the professional Golfers' Association title Tuesday. He defeated little-known Hank Williams, of Secane, Pa., 4 and 3.

At 36 Harper became the oldest player to win the crown since Jock Hutchinson won in 1920 at the same age.

Harper picked up $3,500 for winning Tuesday, as much as he had pocketed in nine previous tournaments this season. His only tournament victory before was the 1950 Tucson open.

In five previous attempts in the National PCA, he never has emerged beyond the third round.

"I'll probably start playing more of the tourney tour now," said Harper, a pro at the public fee course of Glensheallah in Portsmouth.

Boston Red Sox Edge Out Athletics 7-5 in Overtime

By JOE REICHLER,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

The citizens of Minooka, Pa., haven't been so excited since Oct. 2, 1945.

That was the day Detroit won the American League flag and went on to whip Chicago Cubs in the world series.

Today they are all aglow over the five-game winning streak of Boston Red Sox.

Minooka is beside itself over the success of a native son—stout Steve O'Neill, the smiling Irishman.

The 59-year-old O'Neill, who managed that '45 pennant-winning Tiger team, is the only big league manager with an unsullied slate. Since he took over the management of the Red Sox last Friday following the resignation of Joe McCarthy, the Red Sox haven't tasted defeat.

Boston has turned in five straight victories—all on the road. Before O'Neill took charge, the Sox had dropped 11 of their previous 13 games.

Whip Athletics

O'Neill had to wait until the 11th inning Tuesday night to find out whether he was still unbeaten as a manager this year. Two walks, a hit batsman and singles by Al Zarilla and pitcher Joe Dobson pushed across two runs to enable Boston to defeat Philadelphia Athletics 7-5. The A's had rallied for a run in the ninth to deadlock the score 5-5.

Ted Williams sparked the Red Sox' 16-hit attack, knocking in two runs on his 22nd home run and two doubles. The victory boosted the Sox to within one game of the third place Cleveland Indians who dropped a 4-3 decision to St. Louis Browns.

Boston, however, failed to gain on the American League leading Detroit Tigers who rallied for five runs in the sixth inning to defeat Chicago White Sox 9-3. The second-place New York Yankees, beaten by Washington's Senators 4-3 in 12 innings, fell 4½ games behind Detroit.

Philadelphia Phillies took over first place in the National League replacing Brooklyn which dropped to third. A seventh-inning two-run homer by Dick Sisler earned the Phils a 3-2 decision over Boston and gave them a .003 percentage point lead over St. Louis Cardinals. The Redbirds thrashed Chicago Cubs in both ends of an afternoon doubleheader, 3-2 and 4-1.

The Dodgers fell two notches in absorbing a 10-3 lacing by New York Giants.

Cincinnati trounced Pittsburgh 8-3 to round out the National League schedule.

Batting—Dick Sisler, Phils — two-run homer in seventh enabled Phillies to defeat Braves 3-2 and take first place in National League.

Pitching—Ted Gray, Tigers — checked White Sox on five hits, 9-3, to pick up ninth victory, most on Detroit staff.

Ted Williams Biggest Enigma In Major League Baseball

By JOE REICHLER

BOSTON, June 28 —(AP)— Ted Williams says he would rather swing a bat than do anything else. In the next breath he says he would quit playing today if he had enough money.

The Boston Red Sox slugger says he doesn't give a hoot for the fans. Then he talks about "my pals, the kids," or of this or that cab driver, fireman, doorman or policeman.

Williams speaks with startling fierceness of his hatred for baseball writers. Then he talks with pride of his friendship with some.

Let him hear of a family in distress, a down-and-out person or a stricken youngster in a hospital and he'll do everything in his power to help—as long as it doesn't get publicized.

Williams vows he doesn't care what the newspapers print about him. Then he recalls a favorable article or moans about a critical one.

Asks For Boos

He claims that the fans' reaction is of no concern to him but boos burn him up and he can't help hearing every taunt in the bleachers. There is no doubt that he asks for the boos since he refuses to acknowledge the cheers.

All of which simply shows that Williams, while baseball's greatest slugger and highest paid performer, also is the game's biggest enigma.

Here is the testimony of Johnny Orlando, who takes care of the Boston club's equipment:

"It ain't that he don't want to be friendly. It's just that he hates front runners...

"Ted don't hang out with the big shots, like some guys do. He hangs out with the kids in the clubhouse, the cops, firemen and taxi-drivers."

Easy to Get Along With

Says Tom Dowd, travelling secretary of the Red Sox:

"In the five years I've taken this club on the road he's never objected to his room location, never been critical of his rail space and never offered any complaints about the way he's been treated. Williams is always easy to get along with."

Williams, born Oct. 30, 1918, was brought up by his mother, a Salvation Army worker, who maintained herself, Ted and his kid brother, Danny, in a modest frame house in San Diego.

In grade school, where he looked peaked, it was discovered he had been sharing his 30-cents-a-day allowance with kids who were less fortunate. That was the first of a long line of anonymous charities.

Vote Of Confidence For Steve O'Neill

PHILADELPHIA, June 28 (AP) —If Steve O'Neill's big Irish grin is a bit broader today, there's plenty of reason for it.

Last night, in addition to seeing his Boston Red Sox score their fifth straight victory under his leadership, Steve received an unqualified vote of confidence from the Boston front office.

Joe Cronin, Red Sox general manager, paid a surprise visit to Philadelphia to speak with O'Neill, promoted from coach to manager last week when Joe McCarthy resigned.

O'Neill, Cronin told reporters, "is going to handle the club until further notice. We don't want to keep getting a new manager every year."

So far, Steve is batting 1.000 as a Boston manager. His Red Sox outfought Philadelphia Athletics 7-5 in an 11-inning struggle last night to score their fifth straight victory under O'Neill.

NIMBIDIN

India's nimba tree has yielded another useful product, "Nimbidin" which is being used in the treatment of malaria.

OUT FOR A "BIRDIE"—It looked that way when Jules Huot, of Laval-sur-le-Lac Golf Course, Que., found himself in a chicken yard as the pros played one of a series of medal matches on the Beaconsfield lay-out in Montreal, leading to the CPGA of Quebec championship.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Donald Campbell announced in England Tuesday night that he is starting experiments with "highly secret equipment" now on the way land, for an to his camp at Lake Coniston, England, for an attempt to wrest the latest water sped record from the United States with his father's old speedboat, Bluebird II.

Experiments may begin today, he said, but he could not yet say if and when he might be able to run Bluebird for a record attempt on the 160.32 mile an hour mark achieved by Stanley Sayre on Lake Washington, Seattle, Monday.

Campbell, 29-year-old son of the late speed king Sir Malcolm Campbell, earlier said that the safety limit of his boat was 155 miles an hour, making it impossible for him to tackle Sayre's record with Bluebird.

But Tuesday night he said: "I have had a brainwave of considerable magnitude. It may or may not work. Though trials may be held, no information will be divulged for the time being. . . So long as we have the power we shall try to wrest the record from the Americans."

Garth Boesch, 29-year-old Toronto Maple Leaf defenceman, has decided to retire from hockey. Boesch, now at his home in Riceton, Sask., says his decision is partly due to the death earlier this month of his father. He now handles all the work on their wheat farm.

Marlin Stuart, a stringy right-hander, tossed a no-hitter as Toledo turned back league-leading Indianapolis 1-0 in an American Association game at Toledo Tuesday night.

The Ontario Racing Commission has exonerated trainer Anthony Graffagonin of charges in connection with the inconsistent running of his horse, Hey Hay, in the recent meeting at Thorncliffe race track, Toronto.

The Commission—meeting in Hamilton—also heard appeals by jockeys Charles Bright and Vic Polk against suspensions handed out in connection with the performances of Hey Hay, and another horse, Youville.

No announcement was made by the commission on the case of Bright and Polk. The meetings will continue in Toronto Thursday.

Ald. B. M. Sparling has told Toronto City Council that Conn Smythe is planning Sunday hockey at Maple Leaf Gardens next season. The alderman said he heard the Gardens' management has given this information to several Toronto figure-skating clubs. Smythe was not available for comment.

More than 60 entries have already been received for the Ontario amateur golf championships in Toronto July 8. Entries close June 30. About 150 are expected to compete in the championships.

Sugar Ray Robinson will defend his welterweight title for $1 against Charlie Fusari of Irvington, N. J., Aug. 7 in a 15-round bout at Jersey City for the Damon Runyon cancer fund.

Promoter Andy Niederreiter announced the bout in New York Tuesday. The cancer fund will share in the receipts.

Robinson is fighting for the nominal sum of $1 as the result of a promise made to columnist Walter Winchell, treasurer of the cancer fund, to donate his share of the purse.

Lasses Play Hastings

HASTINGS, June 28 (ENS) — Hastings and district ball fans are promised a real treat July 15 when the TVL All-Stars play host to Storey's ladies' senior softball club of the East Toronto League.

Fans who saw Sunday Morning Class play last year, will see some familiar faces, among them Marie Kirkpatrick and Marj. McCarnan, formerly of the SMC.

The club is one of the youngest in the country averaging 18 years, with seven players under 20.

One of the big features of the engagement will be the pantomime shadow-ball game, played against an imaginary opponent. Ten players come to bat in a row, all the action taking place in one inning. Along with neat plays, there is a great deal of comedy, particularly by the second baseman and base umpire.

The most powerful gasoline your car can use!

Activation makes the difference

Shell scientists using the finest available crude, activate the molecules by splitting and rearranging them according to Shell's formula for a perfectly balanced gasoline. The result—Shell Premium, the most powerful gasoline your car can use!

YES, many of today's engines have been stepped-up . . . they call for more powerful gasoline! Now Shell gives you the most powerful gasoline your car can use—Shell Premium—it's "activated."

Actually, Shell splits molecules to get more power for today's more powerful engines. So you get a gasoline that's "activated!"

No wonder Shell is winning more new customers every day. Get a tankful of "activated" Shell Premium today. Your Shell Dealer is the man to see.

Many Attend Funeral Bowmanton Teacher

ROSENEATH, June 28 (ENS)—The funeral of Burton Roberts on Tuesday at his home near Fenella was one of the largest ever held in the community, relatives attending from Toronto, Port Hope, Brighton, Morganston, Cold Springs, Cobourg, Gore's Landing, Orono and Norham as well as many friends living nearby.

The Rev. R. C. White, pastor of Fenella Church, was in charge of the service, assisted by the Rev. J. N. Lovelace, Roseneath, and the Rev. A. E. Larke, Gore's Landing.

Mr. Roberts was the teacher at SS No. 17, Haldimand, (Bowmanton), two miles west of Fenella, whose death occurred on Sunday morning, at the age of 44 years.

The large number of floral tributes were carried by his pupils.

Pallbearers were members of the school board and two neighbors, namely: Bruce Ferguson, Stanley Hutchison, Lyle Curtis, Bruce Marriott, Delbert Adams and Elderidge Sherwin.

He is survived by his wife, the former Gertrude Knox and four daughters, the eldest nine years of age: Marion, Catherine, Linda, and Suzanne; also two brothers Louis of Port Hope and Cecil of Roseneath.

Burial was in Centenary cemetery.

Council Still Withholds $32,000 For Ice Plant

COBOURG, June 28—(ENS)—For the third time, town council has delayed passage of a byfaw to provide $32,000 to clear up the debt on the new recreational centre.

Twice the first and second readings of the bylaw were delayed by council because it was not satisfied with the wording. When council considered it at the regular meeting this week, Mayor Jack Burnet suggested that it would be best to defer passage of the bylaw for another two weeks, in order that councillor Rhena Stephens, chairman of the bylaw committee, could be present.

Interest on the debt is $100 a month.

Race Wiped Out

WASHINGTON, June 28—(AP)—The Smithsonian Institution reported today that a little-known people in Northern Alaska is rapidly dying out, chiefly because of "great epidemics of influenca and measles." It added: "Now a single group of less than 40 is left alive."

Privy Council Hears Argument On Dairy Act

LONDON, June 28 (CP) — A ruling by the Supreme Court of Canada that Section 5A of the Dairy Industry Act involved civil rights within the exclusive jurisdiction of the provinces was challenged Tuesday before the judicial committee of the Privy Council by F. P. Varcoe, Canadian Deputy Minister of Justice.

The Supreme Court's ruling found, in effect, that a Federal law banning the sale of margarine in Canada was invalid.

Varcoe, appearing in support of an appeal brought by the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, contended that Section 5A was covered by the ordinary meaning of "the regulation of trade and commerce"—a subject that was within the exclusive legislative authority of parliament under the British North America Act.

The first question was whether any decided cases excluded that section. Secondly, if not, was there a cogent reason why the judicial committee should "take another slice" out of the regulation of trade?

"There is every reason not to do so," Varcoe said, "because it would take from parliament the power to protect industry in this particular respect.

"This is legislation designed for the protection of the dairy industry inasmuch as it secures to the producers of milk fats a market in Canada for their products."

Ex-Minister Returns To Policy Attack

By ALAN HARVEY.

LONDON, June 28 — (CP).— Stanely Norman Evans, whose attacks on agriculture have assured him immortality as "'Feather Bed" Evans of Britain's 39th Parliament, appears to have much public support.

A public opinion poll conducted by British newspapers shows that 77 per cent of persons interviewed agree with Evans that farmers have it soft—just ahead of coal miners among classes of the community regarded as especially well off.

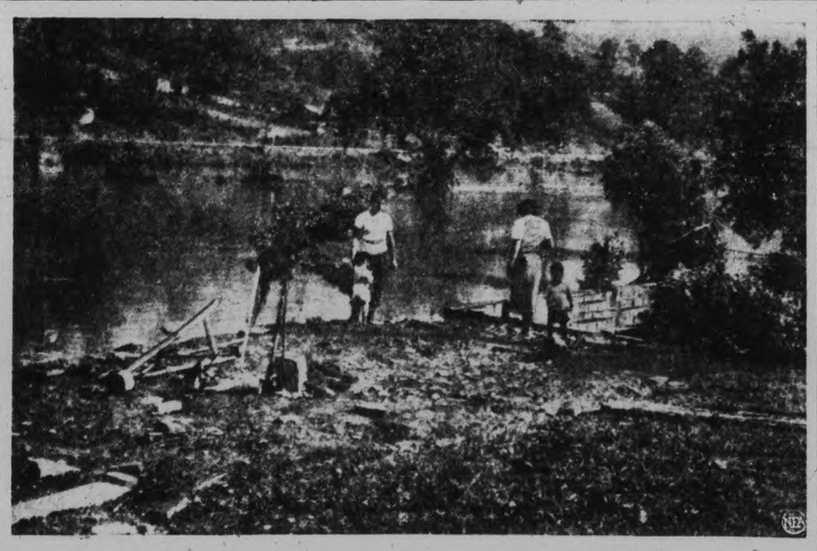
That is just about what Evans said in his famous "feather-bedding" speech that cost him his job. In that speech, the former Birmingham business man asserted that farmers are being subsidized—he called it "feather-bedded"—at the expense of the consumers.

Agriculture, and Prime Minister Attlee, reacted quickly. Evans spoke on a Friday in the full glory of his title as Parliamentary Secretary to the Food Ministry. When the new week started, he was just an ordinary back-bencher again.

Want Natural Death

Big, bull-shouldered Sir James Turner, chief of the powerful National Farmers' Union, said cryptically:

"Let this matter drop as quickly as possible. It is much better to allow it to die a natural death."



That was two months ago. Now Evans is back on the attack, as vociferous on the back benches as he ever was s junior minister.

Last weekend he said that the time has come for agriculture to become a partner, instead of a pensioner, in the national economy.... Britain's food subsidies now total a little more than £$400,000,000 ($1,240,000,000) a year.

The Farmers' Union retorted in a statement:

"The truth is that agriculture is the country's greatest dollar-saver.

"We are producing more food than at any time in British history. The average industrial production was increased by 28 per cent since pre-war. In the same period, agricultural production has increased by 37 per cent."

Ford Predicts 1950 Be One Of Best Years

FREDERICTON, June 28 (CP) —Prediction that 1950 will be one of the best years, and perhaps the best, for the automobile industry was made in an interview here Tuesday night by Henry Ford II, president of the Ford Motors Company.

The industrialist, on his first visit to New Brunswick, is a guest of Lord Beaverbrook. He was accompanied by Sir Patrick Hennessey, managing-director and deputy-chairman of the Ford Company in Great Britain. The two officials arrived by plane early Tuesday night and will fly back to Detroit Thursday.

Ford said that cars and trucks produced by his company this year may number between 6,750,000 and 7,000,000—a mark out of sight last year. An upsurge, started last January without obvious reason, was continuing, with the public spending more on cars than ever before.

Great Financier Dies In Toronto

TORONTO, June 28 — (CP) — Maj.-Gen. Donald M. Hogarth, one of Canada's leading industrialists and financiers, died Tuesday, aged 72.

The illness, cancer, which caused his death, started about the time, 12 years ago that he embarked on his greatest project, that of uncovering the iron ore which lay beneath Steep Rock Lake in Northwestern Ontario, and bringing it into a producing company.

Operations stayed the disease and did little to restrain the robust character which had made him a promoter and developer all his life.

He finished his life as president of Steep Rock Iron Mines, Ltd., and virtually his last active interest was to read a telegram stating that the Port Arthur ore docks would load within the week the largest single cargo of iron ore ever shipped from that port—16,300 tons.

That was June 15, his 72nd birthday, and he had been confined to his home since, unconscious for the last few days.

Many Setbacks

He was a native of the Ottawa Valley who spent most of his life developing mineral, timber and power resources in Northern and Northwestern Ontario and in the Lakehead district of Port Arthur-Fort William. He had many setbacks and many successes, with successes predominant in his later years.

He enlisted in 1914, went overseas as a captain, rose to quarter-master-general, Overseas Canadian Military Forces, and was promoted to major-general.

He represented Porth Arthur as Conservative member in the Ontario legislature for five terms between 1911 and 1929.

He is survived by his widow, the former Madge Patterson, of Winnipeg; two sons, Donald David and Richard McRae, of Toronto; one daughter, Mrs. Margaret Lucille Bedell, of California; two brothers, W. L., of Timmins, and Harry, of Port Arthur; and three sisters, Mrs. Chauncey Lough and Mrs. J. Simpson, of Toronto, and Mrs. John Hurdham, of Ottawa.

Funeral services will be held Thursday at 1.30 p.m. at Grace Church-on-the-Hill, and at the crematorium.

Great Britain Having To Adjust Policies To Twelve-Power Talks

By SYLVAIN MANGEOT

LONDON, June, 28 (Reuters) Britain is at present pre-occupied with adjusting her policies to results of the recent bilateral, tripartite and 12-power talks in London among foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty powers.

Even after official communiques at the end of the conferences, the general public had to wait until State Secretary Dean Acheson returned to Washington for a lucid appreciation of what those results are.

They now may be roughly enumerated as:

1. All members of the Atlantic union recognize that they are individually not strong enough to defend themselves against the threat of Communist expansion unless they act with their partners and eliminate contradictory or overlapping policies in the military, economic and political fields. They must rationalize their national policies into a balanced collective policy.

2. The United States is irrevocably committed, within the limits of its constitution, to participation in the defence and leadership of the western powers.

Essential Condition

3. The special position of the Commonwealth and sterling areas in relation to the Atlantic union is recognized as an essential condition of British participation in planned co-odination among the North Atlantic powers and in Western Europe.

4. Western Germany is to be gradually brought into the association of West European and Atlantic powers.

5. Success for the non-Communist world means much more than being merely anti-Communist and depends on ability of Western powers to evolve a positive joint policy which will appeal to world democratic opinion.

For Britain, whose foreign policy traditionally consists of a balancing trick between ties with her immediate neighbors in Western Europe and her association with overseas territories throughout the world, these results appear to have meant a crystallization of ideas in several respects.

Wider Pattern

First, ideas of parochial co-operation in Western Europe have merged into a wider pattern which would link the whole of Western Europe with the whole of North America.

Second, surrender of sovereignty, which in varying degrees is implicit in any joint enterprise, is contemplated more in terms of a loose Atlantic community and less in a series of purely Commonwealth schemes for integration.

Third, all schemes for such integration should take the form of free understandings between sovereign governments and not of attempts to set up an overriding international authority whose decisions would be binding on governments.

Hardly had these ideas begun to settle in the mind of the British public when the French invitation to Britain to enter negotiations for West European coal and steel merger under the Schuman plan came as a challenge to their validity.

In the opinion of Prime Minister Attlee, the controversy over British participation in the Schuman plan tends to obscure the steady progress towards unity of action among the democracies of the west and the positive role of Britain in contributing to this progress.

In his statement accompanying the publication of an official White Paper on the Anglo-French negotiations concerning discussion of the Schuman plan, Attlee made the point that Britain intends to continue to be in the forefront of the movement towards voluntary sacrifice of sovereignty among the western powers but opposes the principle of supra-national authorities whose decisions would be binding automatically upon governments, as in the case of the Schuman proposals in their present form.

For Europe, this restatement of British policy, together with the publication of the British Labor party pamphlet entitled "European Unity," raises in a new form the old question of the extent to which Britain is really ready to take part in experiments in closer European integration.

Traffic Expert Hitch-Hikes

VANCOUVER, (CP) —A Dutch prosecutor—a specialist in traffic cases—believes in getting first-hand information.

Hans Bredius is hitch-hiking his way around the continent studying North American traffic systems. He started his tour in New York City.

The blonde, young attorney whose home is in Utrecht, Holland was here as unofficial representative of the Netherlands at the World Council of Young Men's Service Clubs' Conference. He is a member of Round Table International, one of the organizations in the world council.

Foreign exchange regulations added impetus to Hans' idea of hitch-hiking. He could only get $150 (U.S.) for the trip and he has to make it last more than three months. A whirl at roulette at Las Vegas, Nev., boosted his wealth by $9.

Hans' hitch-hiking formula is simple. If he wants to get to Hollywood, say, he chalks on cardboard "Holland to Hollywood." With a Dutch flag under the sign he parks by the highway to wait—usually not long.

Expect 3,000

Waitress Collapses

TORONTO, June 28 (CP)—A waitress collapsed and 30 other persons were partially overcome Tuesday by escaping gas from a broken main on the Yonge street subway. Downer's Corner To Get Water Mains?

Only $1,000 separated two Utilities estimates of cost of a water service to Downer's Corners, as reported to the board of works Monday.

Down Armour Road, around the east of Little Lake, the cost of an 8-in. main is figured at $44,000. That length of pipe would be 7,900 feet. The east Lansdowne St. route, crossing the river at the Locks, is estimated at $43,000.

Annual deficiency in revenue on Lansdowne St. is computed at $4,050, and as the city is asking for the service, chiefly for fire protection at the Eastgate section of the city, the Utilities Commission has interjected the important question of balancing the account.

South Bank Route?

Mayor Swanston suggested that Otonabee and its suburban ratepayers might be interested in routing the water line along the south side of the river from the east end of the bridge. There might be some water connections to be picked in that steadily growing area, but the exact course of the water main was not clearly indicated. If it is merely along the river front, the Utilities could not expect much income in that stretch for the reason, apparently, that most of the houses are built only for summer protection and may not be "winterized."

The board decided on Mayor Swanston's motion, seconded by Ald. E. E. Braund, that City Clerk Outram write Otonabee council for a meeting to discuss this proposal.

Practice of the Utilities Commission is, generally, to withhold undertakings of work until prospective income is sufficient to cover the cost of construction. If the main on Lansdowne St. east would leave a deficit annually of $4,050, it is not likely to receive much attention from the Commission who already have a problem of keeping their charges satisfactory to customers, and that means to every water user in the city.

A RATHER EMBARRASSING POSITION for these two men but it really is not as bad as it appears. These two Campbellford husbands were just having a patch sewn on their trousers by their wives as a stunt in a program to raise funds for the new Community Centre. W. W. Reid Photo

Port Hope Chase To Arrest Two For Theft

Following a short chase through Port Hope early today, two men face charges of stealing a half-ton pickup truck from a Hawkesbury dairy.

Their arrest stemmed from a police hunch. Provincial Constable Lyle Erskine, of Cobourg, and Police Constable Lloyd Coughlin, of Port Hope, were talking things over on Highway 2, about 6 a.m., when they became suspicious of the two men in the truck.

A chase began but was interrupted momentarily when the two vehicles became separated in heavy traffic. The driver of the stolen truck suddenly shot down dead-end side street. The police cruiser overshot, and then circled back to where the suspects would probably emerge on the highway.

The hunch was correct.

Picked up walking on the highway were Philip Sauve, 33, Hawkesbury, and Lawrence Laviollette, 26, Ottawa. After questioning they admitted they were the occupants of the abandoned pickup truck stolen Monday from Eastern Dairy Co., Hawkesbury.

It is believed the pair hid out in the truck until Tuesday and were heading west under cover of darkness—possibly to Ottawa

Sauve and Laviollette will be taken into custody later today by Hawkesbury police.

Last "Entrance" Classes In School History Go Out

For more than 260 Grade VIII students of the Peterborough Public Schools Tuesday was possibly the saddest but happiest day of their school lives. Tuesday was the last day of their elementary education in the public schools and in the fall they will begin their secondary education at PCVS. They were the last "Entrance" classes in Peterborough school history. There will be no more.

New regulations of the Department of Education have abolished the "Entrance" dividing line between elementary and secondary schooling. It is an attempt to bring Grade VIII of the Public School and Grade IX of the High School into an unbroken sequence. Under the former system now ended Grade VIII pupils had to face High School entrance examinations set by the Department of Education. These have been abolished.

On Recommendation

Since the end of the Great War entrance examinations have gradually been losing their terror. Some 30 years ago a system of recommendation was inaugurated. Pupils whose standard of attainment in basic subjects like composition, spelling, arithmetic and reading were judged sufficiently high, were recommended to be passed into the Collegiate by the school principal.

In recent years in Peterborough only about 80 pupils annually were required to write the formal entrance examinations. The rest were recommended. Pupils writing the papers had to obtain 60 per cent of the possible marks. This year none wrote. The new system has begun. The passing from Grade VIII to Grade IX is now as routine and ordinary as the passing from Grade VII to Grade VIII.

Some schools during the past several years have held celebrations for the students "getting out on rec." At Queen Alexandra school principal J. E. R. Munro waited until the last day to announce the students out on recommendation. As their names were written on the board the pupils would walk the gauntlet through the pupils from the lower grades to Grade VII amidst cheers and slaps on the back.

Thursday afternoon after promotion ceremonies in classes from Kindergarten to Grade VII more than 3,700 students will begin their summer holidays.

Kill Ohio Rumor Of Fishing Ban

A rumor has circulated throughout the Cleveland-Akron-Canton Ohio area that fishing in the Kawartha Lakes is closed this year, except for trout.

Word of this rumor reached the local Chamber of Commerce office today through one of the local resort operators. A resident of Elyria, Ohio, not far from Akron and Cleveland, wrote for information about the Kawartha area stressing whether the rumor that Peterborough County was closed for fishing except for trout was true.

James M. Fraser, manager of the chamber, wired immediately to J. C. George, Chronicle-Telegram, Elyria, Ohio, to this effect: "Understand ridiculous rumor circulating Elyria that Peterborough County closed for fishing. Bass and Musky season opens this Saturday. Prospects for good catches in Kawartha Lakes best yet. We are hosts to countless Ohio friends yearly and eagerly anticipate return this summer. Anyway you can offset rumor much appreciated."

Mr. Fraser said today that he couldn't understand how such a rumor could start unless the no drift-fishing clause before July 1 has been enlarged upon by some residents from Ohio.

In addition to copies of the Peterborough Vacation edition being sent to this Ohio area, the Chamber of Commerce plans to notify all Ohio newspapers that the Order of the Kawartha Muskie will again be awarded this year. The names of people who received the award last year will be included in the release.

City May Inspect All New Oil Furnaces

Control and inspection of oil heating installations is to be investigated in more detail than the fire and light commitee had at hand Monday, before any recommendation goes to the council.

Ald. T. D. Miller presided, with Aldermen Dewart and Gillespie present, with Fire Chief George Smith, and Assistant, Virgil Carr.

In an approach to the subject it was suggested that applications for installation inspection might be handled at the fire hall, that permits be issued there and that inspection might become a responsbility of Assistant Chief Carr. A fee of $1.50 was mentioned tentatively.

It was said that Assistant Chief Carr had considerable experience with oil burning equipment, furnaces and so on, and that the proposed work appeared to adjust itself naturally into the affairs of the department.

Guarantee of Efficiency

City Clerk Outram posed the question as to whether inspection and regulation conveyed any guarantee of efficiency. Committee agreed with him that the inspector and the department could not provide that assurance.

It was agreed that the concern of the city and the council was with compliance of installation with the form of bylaw and regulations which have been recommended by the Fire Marshal's department and adopted in a number of cities that were cited by Chief Smith.

Ald. J. A. Dewart, expressed the opinion that citizens installing oil burning apparatus would like to have authoritative assurance that the work was properly and safely done.

Ald. Miller said that in some instances already the bylaw was being followed in local work although it is not in effect.

Whether a new bylaw would be retroactive was a point raised by Ald. Gillespie. An alternative was to fix a period of a year or so in which inspection should be carried out.

Limit of Authority

At any rate, it was felt that inspection and regulation were the limits of the council's authority. After that, and in respect to efficient operation of the heating unit, it rested between the owner and the manufacturer. The manufacturers themselves are reported to be in favor of such regulatory inspection bylaw.

Ald. Dewart said it seemed to be only good business on the part of the manufacturer and the installer to see that a unit was made right if it was not operating effectively.

Ald. Gillespie: "And some of them wouldn't."

Ald. Miller: "Once the money is paid over, there appears to be a rapid loss of goodwill."

It was agreed that City Clerk Outram should write to some of the cities mentioned by Chief Smith for information as to experience and method of putting this regulatory bylaw into effect.

Car Crashes Cafe

CINCINNATI, O., June 28 — (AP)—An automobile, crashing through the front end of a cafe here Tuesday, carried patrons, stools, chairs, tables, and part of the bar into a tangled mass of humanity and broken furniture at the end of the 60-foot room. Nine were injured.

PAUL IMMING, 25, sought since last September as accomplice to Aubrey Hancock in $100,000 fraud of a Toronto finance company, was arrested Tuesday night at the home of his father-in-law on Rink St.

Wartime Houses Hatton Estate To Go Next May

Removal by May 1, 1951, of the 126 houses on the Hatton property at the west end of Charlotte St. has been recommended to Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation by the Board of Works, a committee of the whole council.

The council also suggests a further condition to their disposal that they should not be set up within five miles of the city, and that the council be given an opportunity of negotiating for the purchase of the property to be vacated.

When that westend site was selected for a housing location within a short distance of Canadian General Electric Company and also Outboard Marine & Manufacturing Co., both then engaged in the manufacture of war materials, it was agreed by the government housing corporation that they were to be only a temperary accommodation.

None Sold

Since then Central Mortgage has declined to sell any of the houses for occupancy in that area. For the same reason of temporariness, repairs and maintenance have not been extensive. Opinion and also hope of the council is that a year hence, the problem of housing may be largely solved, and circumstances may be more favorable than at present to transfer of the 125 housing units.

Board of Works proposes to Central Mortgage that tenants of the Hatton block be informed of the desire of the council that the houses be vacated next year.

When the land is cleared again it is expected that it would be attractive for houses of the general appearance and value of the adjoining residential sections.

The original agreement between the city and Wartime Housing Limited, forerunner of Central Mortgage, is the basis of this proposal of the board, and with it is the probability of a generally improved housing condition in the city, and the expectation of a new subdivision of modern type home units.

Arrest Partner of Hancock In $100,000 Car Swindle, Showing Movies of "Trip"

Paul Imming, 25, sought since last September as Aubrey Hancock's partner in the $100,000 swindle of a Toronto finance company, was arrested in Peterborough last night. A raiding party of city police, led by Det.-Sgt. W. A. Clarke, arrested Imming at the home of his father-in-law, Russel Riches, 223 Rink St. Imming appeared in police court today before Magistrate W. R. Philp and was remanded until July 6 without pleading on one charge of fraud. Bail was set at $5,000.

At the time of his arrest, Imming was showing moving pictures of his recent trip, which extended from western Canada to the Gulf Stream.

Intended To Surrender

He told police he had been going to give himself up. Rumors that he had been seen in the city have several times reached the ears of police, Det.-Sgt. Clarke said today.

"He didn't say much to us except 'hello'," the detective said, adding that Imming mentioned his plans to surrender to police.

Det.-Sgt. Clarke said police had been watching Imming's Bethune St. home, and his father-in-law's home for the past two months.

"Last night a man who looked something like Imming was seen to go into this house on Rink St.," he said. "We came up and raided the place and caught him."

Other members of the raiding party were Sgt. Leo Murphy, PC's D. Starling, M. D. Traynor, S. Fife, and Donald Mackay.

Other Got 3 Years

Hancock, 36, was sentenced to three years in penitentiary by Magistrate W. R. Philp last May for his part in the fraud. At the time, it was estimated Hancock was responsible for defrauding the finance firm of about $50,000.

Hancock surrendered himself early in April, and pleaded guilty to 25 charges involving forgery and false pretences.

Involved Swindle

Method of the swindle was a somewhat involved one. A false sales contract would be drawn up, using the description of an imaginary car and the name of a fictitious person.

Against these contracts Hancock would borrow money, and repay only part of it. At his trial it was revealed the whole thing started when Hancock got $5,000 in debt operating a used car lot.

Hancock's counsel, E. J. Murphy of Toronto, told court at the trail, that Hancock left Peterborough last year with about $12,000. Of that he repaid about $6,000, including cash, and value for a house he had bought in Vancouver.

City Health Dep't Set To Move To Turner House

Thursday will be removal day for the Department of Health after more than two years of working in cramped quarters.

New quarters are in the corner house at Water and McDonnel Sts. at the back of the Public Library, which was bought recently by the city council following settlement of the Turner estate.

Strewn with packing boxes, the offices in the city building are a hive of industry today as members of the staff do a little packing in between answering telephone calls and performing their regular duties.

No Disruption

The actual removal will not take place until 7 p.m. tomorrow so as not to interfere too much with the health work. And the streets won't be so busy then. What doesn't get taken on Thursday evening will follow on Friday and things will be settling down nicely in the new offices after the holiday.

Dr. R. A. Kelly, MOH, has waited a long time for the removal. The chairman's "any other business" request at board meetings brought forth a plea from Dr. Kelly for new accommodation some two years ago and periodically, he has entered a word to keep the Department's pressing need before the council's attention.

The Turner house has long been scheduled as a Board of Health office, and the council has acted as speedily as circumstances permitted, to acquire it as a health office.

Celebrating July 1st In Peterborough

With the co-operation of the citizens and organizations, an interesting program for the holiday on Saturday, celebrating Canada's birthday, has been arranged by the Centennial Committee.

In the afternoon, commencing at one o'clock, there will be the Annual Y's Men's Club Soap Box Derby. This Derby is gaining a reputation for its excellence. The contestants will test their speed and skill down Hunter Street, commencing at Armour Hill. The program will last approximately two hours.

In the evening, commencing at 7.30 o'clock, in Little Lake, the Peterborough Canoe Company and Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Company are sponsoring a display of aquatic sports, including water skiing, motor boat racing, etc.

At night, commencing with darkness, there will be a giant fireworks' display. These fireworks are intended to assist in marking Peterborough's Centennial Celebrations. They are to be fired from Point St. Charles, which juts out into Little Lake, and the display should be clearly visible from most points around the shore of Little Lake, and particularly from Burnham's Point and Crescent Street.

Start Fund To Aid Family Slain Man

STAFFORDVILLE, Ont., June 28—(CP)—Belgian families and clubs in Norfolk county are rallying to the aid of Mrs. William Goddyn whose husband was slain last Wednesday by the Langton bank robber.

A fund has been started initially by the Delhi Archery Club to aid the young widow and her three children.

A man identified as George Walker, who gave police the alias of Frank West when arrested, is in Simcoe jail charged with murder of Goddyn and Arthur Lierman.

Agree To Speed Up Work In Commons

OTTAWA, June 28 — (CP) — The Commons, intensifying its prorogation drive, agreed Tuesday night to skip luncheon and dinner periods today in an effort to conclude work.

Already operating on a working schedule of three sittings daily, the Chamber sat 30 minutes beyond the regular 11 p.m. rising hour Tuesday night and then agreed to a suggestion by Prime Minister St. Laurent that it sit from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. today and for the remaining days of this dwindling session.

Niagara Falls Plans To Use Silver Dollars For Tourists

OTTAWA, June 28 — (CP) — Niagara Falls' "Silver Dollars for Tourists" campaign got it's official launching Tuesday—with five silver dollars from a cabinet minister.

A. W. S. Bennett, secretary-manager of the Niagara Falls Chamber of Commerce, and J. Clarke McGlashan, head of the "special project" committee, came up to Ottawa to see the government about it.

The government likes the idea that Canadian border city merchants make change for American tourists in as many Canadian silver dollars as they can cart away. At current exchange rates the U.S. tourist would pay only 90 cents for the Canadian dollars—that is one American dollar would get him a Canadian silver dollar and 10 cents change besides.

In addition, argue the sponsors, he'd have a nice souvenir. The government, thinking about its treasury need of those American bucks, agrees.

So Tuesday Trade Minister Howe, subbing for the absent Finance Minister Abbott through whom arrangements were made, held a little ceremony in his office. While press cameras flashed, he handed over five silver dollars to Mr. McGlashan by way of a little official shove for the campaign.

The Bank of Canada has promised to make all the required silver dollars available to Niagara Falls and any other city where the idea catches.

Wash the gloves on the hand with mild soap suds. Rinse using one tablespoon of epsom salts to one quart of water in the rinse water. Pat dry with bath towels. Pull into shape. As gloves dry blow into them so that the fingers do not stick together. When thoroughly dry put on the hands and rub with bath towel.

Senate Wants Canada Have Declaration Of Human Rights

OTTAWA, June 28 — (CP). — Canada should set an example to the world as a "land of the free" by adopting a Declaration of Human Rights, the Senate was told Tuesday.

The recommendation came from the Senate's Special Committee on Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms. It said such a declaration would "solemnly affirm the faith of all Canadians in the basic principles of freedom and evidence a national concern for human rights and security."

The declaration should outline the right of everyone to life, liberty and personal security, to equal treatment before the law, to a fair trial, to freedom from arbitrary interferences with one's privacy, family, home and correspondence, the right to freedom of movement, to a nationally to obtain asylum from persecution and the right to found a family and own a home.

It should declare the right of everyone to freedom of thought, conscience and religion, to freedom of opinion and expression, to peaceful assembly and association, to the right to take part in government of the country.

Have Responsibility

Further, the report said, the declaration should make clear that everyone had responsibilities as citizens. It should specify that none of its provisions "may be interpreted as tending to permit any group or person to engage in activity aimed at the destruction of rights and freedoms of the people of Canada."

The report said equality was a basic right in Canadian thought and "must be assured in Canadian law so that men may live confidently in self respect, associating freely and expressing their thoughts without fear."

The practical method would be adoption of a national Bill of Rights as part of the Canadian constitution. But at present the Dominion and provinces were conferring regarding internal control of the constitution, and provincial rights had to be respected.

Therefore, as an "interim measure," the committee recommended parliamentary adoption of a Declaration of Human Rights to be "strictly limited" to the Dominion field of legislative jurisdiction and not to invade provincial legislative authority.

Find More Clues In Bank Killings

SIMCOE, June 28—(CP)—A new $1 bill, a shirt hanging from an apple tree and a stolen suitcoat Tuesday enabled searching police to fit further pieces into the escape story of the bank bandit who slew two pursuers south of Langton last Wednesday.

George Walker, 37, was charged Sunday with the murder of the two men, Art Lierman and William Goddyn, both of Langton.

The clues were unearthed in a police search of bushland near the spot where Lierman and Goddyn met their death.

The bank note, found 400 yards from the scene of the slaying, was part of the bandit's $23,000 loot, police said. They identified it by the serial number.

The shirt was found near a barn where the suspect was seen sleeping. Police said the appearance of the shirt indicated it might have been discarded after last Friday's rainstorm.

The suitcoat was stolen from a tobacco curer's house on the farm of Mrs. Ethel Biro in the same vicinity. Police believe the killer was the thief.

No trace was found of the gun used in the slaying. Police were continuing their search of the area, using a mine detector.

Windeatt was charged with failing to stop at an intersection.

Frustrated Fisherman Is Thwarted By Otter

BATH, England (CP).—Howard Clack, 66-year-old fishmonger and angler, was haunted by a trout.

It was a plump, superior trout that he had been trying to catch for two years.

"I was developing a complex about that fish," said Clack.

No matter what fly he cast, the trout refused to bite. In desperation, Clack had a special fly made. He caught his fish, played it beautifully and stooped for his landing net.

Then there was a flash of black, a snap of jaws. That was the end of Clack's trout, his special fly and most of his line. He had lost to a hunting otter.

Mr. Belvedere Gets Around, He's Angel Now

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, June 28 (CP) His many fans may be surprised to know that Mr. Belvedere is at present engaged in portraying an angel and a cowboy.

Mr. Belvedere, to whom nothing is impossible, is Clifton Webb, of course.

"In films there is a tendency for an actor to be identified with the role he plays," commented Webb. "I revolt against this."

"I realized I was being typed as Belvedere. That is the reason I played the father of 12 in 'Cheaper by the Dozen.' And that is the reason for this present picture."

"Magnificent"

He was referring to "For Heaven's Sake," which is a drastic change of pace from the sharp-tongued Belvedere. He plays an angel who comes down to earth to aid a theatrical couple in having a child.

"My friends think it's riotous that I am playing an angel," he snorted. "Magnificent!"

In one sequence he takes the form of a cowboy and he made extensive preparations for the portrayal.

Webb said he has warned his friend Garry Cooper to watch his laurels, Webb having perfected the Cooper-like "yup." Can he roll a cigaret?

"I can up to a certain point," Webb replied. "Then all the tobacco falls out."

By the time she realized the ship had left port it was too far out to sea to turn around.

Howe Blames Fuchs Case For Ban on 'A' Information

OTTAWA, June 28.—(CP). — The Fuchs spy case was blamed by Trade Minister Howe Tuesday for failure to achieve the complete exchange of atomic information hoped for in American-Canadian-British negotiations.

It was the first public indication here that the arrest of Dr. Klaus Fuchs and his imprisonment for 14 years as an atomic spy for Russia at least temporarily wrecked plans for a full exchange of atomic data for peaceful purposes among the three countries.

Agreement was near in the negotiations when the Fuchs case broke months ago.

Mr. Howe, piloting his departmental estimates through the Commons, said there has been some declassification of atomic information, but hopes for the complete exchange have been interrupted, largely by the Fuchs incident.

Want Second Pile

The minister also said:

1. Chalk River's scientists expect to recommend to the Government the building of a second radioactive pile there, but still weren't quite ready with the design.

2. A new National Research Council laboratory being established in Halifax for all four Maritime Provinces should be opened in October and will make a decided contribution to the economy of that area.

3. Canada's uranium production is far beyond her own requirements. The bulk of it goes to the United States. There is a substantial revenue from Canada's atomic activities, "but I would rather not discuss it."

Asiatic Crisis Seen Helpful For Business

By FORBES RHUDE,
Canadian Press Business Editor.

The continuing effect of the United States' aid-to-Asia policy should be helpful to business, both practically and psychologically.

It should help practically because it will create more demand for goods. It should help psychologically because most people likely will give a sigh of relief that something decisive is being done to draw a line in the cold war. It probably will have a tonic effect.

The stock market Tuesday again reflected the threat of a third world war but by the end of the day seemed to have decided that the selling had gone about far enough on the basis of present developments.

However, it is impossible to say what millions of traders may do, made up as they are both of small buyers who may wish to take their money out at each fresh upset, and of professional traders who may really fear the effects of war on market prices or who may not be sorry to have the chance of buying in at lower prices.

Doesn't See Panic

On the longer term, continued business activity should keep the market from panic.

Stelco Celebrates

Steel Company of Canada, Ltd., Hamilton, marks its 40th birthday with an anniversary edition of its house publication "Stelco Flashes." Looking back to 1910, when five companies merged to form the present corporation, the publication comments:

"Wooden coaches were standard equipment on the railways. Streets of Canadian towns and cities were bare of the network of power and telephone wires that clutters up most of them today.

"The automobile was still in the experimental stage—an object of Skepticism and derision. Canada's shipbuilding industry was in its infancy; most of the heavy equipment used in this country was imported.

"The struggles of Canada's relatively small steel industry caused concern to very few people beyond those who had sunk their money into the many companies competing for the business."

Early Africans Investigated By Scientists

DURBAN, South Africa (CP)—Three expeditions—two in search of relics of primitive man in Tongaland and one to investigate fish and fauna on the East African seaboard—will leave Natal shortly.

Next month, Gordon Cramb, Natal archaeologist, and W. Van Der Elst, well-known Dutch archaeologist who has been conducting research in the Transvaal, hope to penetrate the heart of the Lebombo mountains in Tongaland to open up a cave believed to contain many answers to middle and late stone age questions.

The expedition to investigate fish and fauna on the East African seaboard will be undertaken by Professor J. L. B. Smith of the ichthyology department of Rhodes University College, and his wife.

First of Several

This is intended as the first of several expeditions, from which it is hoped to produce a major treatise on the fishes of the region. The project probably will take eight to 12 years to accomplish.

Ichthyological research, says Prof. Smith, has reached a high level in most parts of the world; in many countries the discovery of a new species has become a rarity. The eastern coast of this continent, however, is one of the least-known areas in the world, biologically.

It is probably one of the richest fields for research in the world, and the time for a full systematic investigation is long overdue, he says.

CONDEMNED as a firetrap is the 6,800-ton Norwegian steamship Svalbard, which was to have left for Europe this week with 600 college students, including several from McGill University. The students had pooled their finances to charter the ship, but Coast Guard inspectors in New York said the ship was "generally unsuitable" and that it "will not be allowed to clear this port with American passengers."

PressConference Finishes With Dinner

TORONTO, June 28 (CP). — The seventh Imperial Press Conference ended Tuesday night with a dinner at which overseas delegates said farewell to the Canadian section of the Empi... ess Union. For three weeks, ... sentatives of the leading newspapers of 15 countries have been meeting in Canada.

During that time, conference sessions have moved from Quebec City to Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Niagara Falls, and Muskoka.

On behalf of the Canadian hosts, Senator W. Rupert Davies of Kingston said the final meeting aroused sorrow at parting but joy at having established deep and lasting friendships.

He said the social aspect of the tour was as important as the business conferences in that close exchanges of opinion found expression during the informal gatherings. For example, he said, apart from the contributions in formal conference, the attendance of delegates from Pakistan, India and Ceylon broadened the knowledge of delegates from other countries.

Gifts of silverware were made to Senator Davies, conference chairman; to Col. Victory Sifton, chairman of the committee of arrangements, and to his senior assistant, Brig. Dick Malone; to W. A. Craick, long-time secretary of the Canadian section; and to Sheila MacLeod and Douglas Smith, who handled details of tour arrangements.

Display of Local Antiques Feature George St. Window

Antiques of every size, shape and color meet the eyes of shoppers on George St. today. Prominently displayed in one of the windows of Grafton's clothing store is a collection of articles that were used by the residents of this district way back in the 1850's.

In order to help out with the centennial celebration in this city, the members of the Women's Institutes in the county of Peterborough under the supervision of Mrs. Wallace Shearer, Buckhorn, went to work collecting antiques for this display. Additions to the collection are arriving all the time and they will remain on display in Grafton's store window for some time.

One of the more interesting items in this collection which includes such articles as a butter churn, wool carder and foot warmer, is an oxen yoke dated 1852 and loaned by Mrs. W. Sheared, Buckhorn. A sugar bowl from the first set of dishes ever sold in Warsaw is also on display. The latest thing in women's capes and bonnets—60 years ago—is on exhibition along with various types of ancient lamps. Other items, too numerous to mention give an observer a very good idea of what life was like in this county 100 years ago.

Here Comes the Bride

Her Ring Stems from Symbol of Eternity

By VIRGINIA NELLE WILSON
Written for NEA Service

"With this ring I thee wed" echoes back from the marriage rites of many ages and many lands.

The ring, long a symbol of ownership and authority, found its way into the marriage ceremony in ancient Egypt. It signifies the everlasting union of a man and woman, stemming from the symbol of eternity, the circle.

Through the centuries many changes in the styles of wedding rings have taken place. The most ornate designs, in the early Hebrew days, were so large and heavy that they were worn only during the marriage service.

Ring is Symbol of Ownership

Perhaps the most romantic were the "Posey" rings, carved with flowers and long sentimental phrases. Like these medieval rings, many of our modern wedding bands are carved into circlets of tiny orange blossoms. The orange blossom, the bride's flower of the Saracens was brought back to Europe by the Crusaders. Its symbol of fertility and good luck springs from the uniqueness of the tree's blooming and bearing fruit at the same time.

From the early Egyptians and Romans came the custom of wearing the wedding ring upon the third finger of the left hand. They believed that a "love vein" ran from the heart to that finger.

The left hand is symbolic of the wife's submission to her husband. Some historians claim the ring is a relic of the fetters which shackled a bride during the ancient times, when it was customary for a young man to capture his mate from a neighboring village.

The era of marriage by capture is the basis for much of our modern wedding ceremony. The best man represents the strong friend who went along to help steal a maiden. The ushers and bridesmaids are reminders of friends and relatives who fought for or against her capture. The honeymoon is the period of hiding the bride from her searching relatives. During this month, or moon, the hiding couple drank a special wine made of honey, metheglin.

When the bride's father answers the question, "Who gives this woman?" he is re-enacting the selling of his daughter during the period of marriage by purchase. This custom of bride buying prevailed during the Middle Ages, until the great rise of Christianity made marriage a religious ceremony instead of a legal contract. Our very word "wedding" comes from the early Teuton "beweddung," the money or property which a man gave as his pledge to pay for his future wife.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

"My partner," writes a St. Louis correspondent, "needs a count of 90 and melds three deuces and four fours. This is insufficient, since it adds up to only 80 points.

"He is obliged to discard the cards he has put down, and discards one of the fours at his first turn. At his next two turns, he discards two more fours. This leaves him with one four and three deuces still on the table. In the meantime he has picked up two jacks and two nines and has them in his hand.

"Now he puts down the jacks and the nines with the three penalty deuces on the table, putting two deuces with the jacks and one deuce with the nines. He wants to call this an initial meld and expects to discard his last four to end the penalty.

"The opponents say he cannot alter the way those wild cards were melded. They say that the deuces were melded with fours and that they have to stay with fours or be discarded as a penalty. Who is right?"

The meld was correct and the opponents were wrong. The point is that the deuces were not melded at all. If a meld is illegal, it isn't a meld. The deuces and the fours happen to be down on the table together as penalty cards, but they do not form a meld. Those deuces can be used later on in any meld that really is a meld.

Whenever you have penalty cards on the table, you may use them to make correct melds—exactly as though they were in your hand. For example, you may combine some or all of those penalty cards with cards that are still in your hand. Or you may use penalty cards (with or without the addition of cards from your hand) to take the discard pile. The only difference between penalty cards and cards that are still in your hand is that you must discard a penalty card at each turn.

The penalty ends when you have melded or discarded all of those penalty cards. As soon as you can use a penalty card in a proper meld it ceases to be a penalty card.

✧ ✧ ✧

Q—I played in a Canasta tournament the other night, and somebody said that I couldn't pick up the previous discard if it happened to match my closed canasta. For example, I had a canasta of jacks. The player at my right discarded a jack. He said I couldn't pick it up. Is this a new rule?

✧ ✧ ✧

A—No. It isn't a new rule, and it isn't an old rule. It isn't a rule at all. A few little groups follow this as a sort of local understanding. There's even one book out that gives it as the proper way to play. However, the official rule is that you can take a discard that matches your closed canasta. If the player at your right throws a jack, you can take the jack and add it to your canasta. You also can take the rest of the discard pile.

Q—Are you allowed to discard a card that you can add to a meld? For example, you have a meld of three kings on the table. Are you then allowed to discard a king from your hand?

A—Yes. You are allowed to discard a king in this situation. You can never discard a card that you have already melded. If a card is merely meldable but not yet melded, you are allowed to discard it. This is often a very good play.

Canada To Have Queen's Rug Bought By IODE

TORONTO, June 28 —(CP)— The Royal carpet which Queen Mary worked eight years to complete will be purchased by the people of Canada.

This was disclosed yesterday with the announcement that a $100,000 bid by the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire has been accepted.

The announcement was made in London and Ottawa, but first Canadian to hear about it was Mrs. John A. Chipman of Toronto, national president of the IODE, who excitedly telephoned the news to Prime Minister St. Laurent.

"The Prime Minister was delighted," Mrs. Chipman said.

Now that the Queen Mother's carpet has been "purchased," the IODE is laying plans to raise the $100,000. A national campaign will be launched in August to which the Order hopes all Canadians will contribute.

When the objective is reached, the rug wil be turned over to the government for display in a public place, possibly the National Gallery at Ottawa.

The rug was seen by thousands during a tour this spring of Canada and the United States. Made up of 12 panels, each with a different floral design, it is about 10 by 6¾ feet, and was originally intended to be hung on the walls of Windsor Castle as a family heirloom.

However, Queen Mary gave it to the British Government as a contribution to Britain's dollar shortage.

The campaign for funds will open in August at the Canadian National Exhibition here and a moderate admission fee will be charged. Later, it will go on tour to any Canadian cities wishing to see it. During its previous tour it was not displayed in the Maritimes or the prairie provinces.

The IODE entered its bid last week through Princess Alice, wife of the Earl of Athlone, former Governor-General of Canada. Princess Alice is the IODE's representative in the United Kingdom.

Lady Reading, head of the women's voluntary services in the U.K. and a member of the committee which handled the carpet, telephoned Mrs. Chipman that the IODE offer had been accepted before informing any one else.

June Graduation Exercises Big Event at Queen Mary

The graduating class of the Queen Mary School held the spotlight Tuesday afternoon at one of the most delightful events ever held in the school auditorium.

The teaching staff together with the Home and School Association introduced a change of procedure by inviting the students, their parents and friends, to Graduation Exercises in June, rather than in September.

Mr. Frank Jobbitt was the chairman and congratulated the graduating students on behalf of all those present. The Rev. Dr. D. Bruce Gordon offered a prayer.

The musical program was an inspiration to the large audience, with four graduating students taking part. Ann Gordon sang the lovely French-Canadian folk song "Gay is the Rose," Lorraine Bacon played two piano solos, Claire de Lune, by Debussy; and Rustle of Spring by Linding. Murray Mander together with his sister, Ann Mander, gave four Marimba duets, "Brahm's Lullaby, "Men of Harleck," "Behold the Saviours", and the "Wm. Tell Overture", and Mary Lou Mackie was at the piano for "O Canada" and "The King".

Two valedictory addresses were thought fully prepared and given by Lorraine Bacon, from Mr. O. M. Steer's class, and Luane Dillman from Mr. L. McNeill's class.

Speaker of the afternoon, Mr. William Graff, Chief Librarian of the Peterborough Public Library, commented on the attitude of friendship with the teachers, who follow the course of each pupils' life. Students were advised to plan their courses in the next few months, with the help of the vocational guidance teacher at the Collegiate, and to put personal happiness ahead of greed for money.

In closing Mr. Graff gave this challenge, "We are at the threshhold of great development in this country, and people who succeed are the one who have a thirst for knowledge, and who put that kuowledge to work."

Mr. Jobbitt presented the Board of Education awards to the pupils with the highest scholastic standing, Lorraine Bacon and Duane Dilman. Mrs. George Reader presented awards from the Home and School Association to the pupils with second highest standing, Carol Hughson and Catherine Bertram.

Promotion cards bearing the school colors were presented by the three grade eight teachers, Principal O. M. Steer, Mr. H. Wilson and Mr. W. L. McNeill. Mr. Steer spoke briefly to the students and thanked the parents, teachers and the Home and School Association for making this event possible. Mr. Wilson stressed the point that students should strive to get along well socially as well as academically, and concluded with the advice "Do what you think is right." Mr. McNeill wished all success for the future.

Refreshments were served to the students by Mrs. V. Millen and Mrs. C. Northey, assisted by the executive of the Home and School Association.

Following are the graduates—

Mr. Steer's and Mr. Wilson's Class: Lorraine Bacon, Carol Hughson, Judith Hardill, Sonya McLaughlin, Wynne Whyte, David Houghton, Hazel Edwards, Carol Wood, Agnes Rose Marylou Mackie Sandra Dalgleish, Anne Gordon, Edythe Nicholls Dawn Jackson, Eleanor Everette, Joan Bradburn, Ronald Cooper, Anne Grant, Barbara Jones, Nancy Dixon, Hazel Moncrief, Gordon White, Beatrice Peterson, Gail Patterson, Bill McIlwain, June Skitch, Buddy Jackso, Jim Stewart Ronald Peltz, Leland Finn, Glen Taylor, Ronald Dunn.

Asling-Fairbairn

The marriage took place Saturday afternoon in St. Paul's Manse, the Rev. C. G. Boyd officiating, of Doreen Ellen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Fairbairn, RR 4, Peterborough, and Donald Calvert Asling, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Asling, Antrim St.

The bride wore a dress of white brocaded taffeta in street-length, white lace mittens and a short veil caught to a headdress of orange blossoms. Bridesmaid was her sister Miss Ruby Herron of Oshawa who wore a dress of embroidered eyelet, a large picture hat of straw and long mittens, all of white. Each of the girls wore a corsage of pink roses.

Attending the groom was his brother-in-law, William Curtis.

A reception at the bride's home followed the ceremony.

DOROTHY DIX

Not Smart To Be Thrifty When Scrimping Kills Love

DEAR MISS DIX: We are a young couple who love each other and have been married about a money. Our aim is to invest what money we both have in a home, but to maintain one on the income we now have would mean rigid economy for both of us. We are willing to make these sacrifices except that my husband will not agree to give up his cigarettes. This makes me feel that I will be foolish to deprive myself of good clothes, waves, etc., and pinch the pennies while my husband throws away the quarters on smoking—a habit which I regard as harmful and too expensive for him. I do not like to smoke but I think I might as well acquire the habit too, if he is going to waste money that way. M. E.

Dorothy Dix

ANSWER: And I think that you had better throw away your money on any foolishness than to let it come between you and your husband and cause you to quarrel over one getting a nickel's worth more pleasure than the other does. Believe me, children, there is no greater extravagance than throwing away love. That is what you are doing, and, if you don't watch out, the first thing you know you will be taking the money you have hoarded penny by penny and buying a divorce with it.

Allow for Some Pleasures

Every young couple should begin their married life by budgeting their income and saving some of it, but that does not mean that they must deny themselves every pleasure and indulgence and reduce life to nothing but a scraping together of pennies.

It is fine for you and your husband to desire a home and be willing to sacrifice to get it, but you can sacrifice more for it than it is worth. If he goes without his cigarettes to which he is accustomed and out of which he gets a harmless pleasure, he will be irritable and peevish and filled with a sense of resentment against you, and will probably wish he was single again so he could spend his money as he pleased. If you go shabby and your hair gets stringy for want of a wave in order that you may put a few more dollars in the savings account, you, too, will be fretful and hard to live with.

Remember that we pass this way but once. We have only one life, one youth, one chance to be happy, and if we miss that we can never get it back again. So I think it is very foolish to deny yourself any innocent pleasures you can possibly have, or to do without everything you want in order to have every possible cent for the future.

Be thrifty, but within reason. Save something, but not everything.

◇ ◇ ◇

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: How can I teach my husband to be more kindly to people? How can I make him more friendly? He seems to delight in saying harsh and cutting things to every one with whom we come in contact and we are swiftly losing friends through his abrupt actions and conversation. I try to keep our home life running smoothly all the time by being sweet to him, to offset his harshness, but nothing is right with the world or with anybody for him. I have never heard a pleasant phrase about any person come from his lips. How can I change him?

ANSWER: I don't think you can change him any more than you could turn vinegar into honey. There are just natures so soured that nothing can sweeten them. No people are more to be pitied than these bitter misanthropes who see no beauty in God's world, no good in anything; who believe no man honest, no woman virtuous, no child innocent; who suspect every one of being animated by the basest motives; who do not trust even their own wives and children.

They miss all that is best in life because our real happiness comes through our affections, through the good will and love of those about us, and if we have none of that, we have nothing. They even handicap themselves in their careers, for to succeed we must have the help of others and they turn every man's hand against them.

We can only surmise that these surly and disagreeable people get a morbid pleasure out of hurting other people and taking the joy out of life for them. Their sport is in treading on the toes of innocent strangers; their most enjoyable amusement is in deflating the little pink balloons that make society pleasant, and they never have such a good time at a party as when they wreck it.

◇ ◇ ◇

DEAR MISS DIX: I am an ex-convict, desperately in love with a fine girl. I am afraid to tell her of my past life lest I lose her, yet I cannot bring myself to ask her to marry me without telling her. I have gone absolutely straight for the past seven years but some people will never forget a kid's mistake.

DOUBTFUL LOVER

ANSWER: Tell her. Give her a chance to decide whether her love for you is great enough to share your past as well as your future. That is only giving her a fair break. If you married her without her knowing of the stain on your life, you would be perfectly miserable, for you would live in fear of her finding out about it, as she undoubtedly would sooner or later. But if you start with a clean slate, everything will have been wiped out and there will be happiness and confidence between you.

IT STARTED AS A PRANK — Mike O'Connor, 85, of Osceola, Ind., kisses his bride, the former Mrs. Alice Noble, 75, of Niles, Mich., after their marriage in Elkhart, Ind. The romance blossomed when Mrs. Noble, in a prankish mood, gave her name and address to the driver of a bus she frequently rode, with instructions to give it to "some nice man." The driver turned the note over to a favorite passenger, Mike O'Connor. An exchange of letters started the romance on its way.

Black Favorite For Autumn Style Elegance

NEW YORK —(CP)— Elegance is the keynote of the fall fashion symphony.

With the basic silhouette holding to the sleek, reed-slim line, at least for daytime hours, designers have turned to rich fabrics and to such details as a low-placed flounce, a wrapped effect or almond overskirt, to lend distinction to the season's mode.

Black and velvet is a high favorite. It appears on collar, cuffs and pockets of suits, in applique touches at dress necklines or on jacket lapels, in suits for the cocktail hour, and in long, slim sheaths for evening. Double-surfaced fabrics, fur fabrics, all-over embroidered wools and crepes, rich satins and silk brocades add their quota to the season's elegance.

First color choice is black. Others vying for popularity will be red and blue tones, brilliant orange, yellow, grays, browns and parma violet.

Fur Dinner Dress

Highlights of a fall showing by the New York fashion group included a strapless black fur dinner dress outlined in black lace; a suit with cutaway jacket in the Edwardian style; a short dinner dress, half-skirt and half culottes; a long-skirted ball gown in the grand manner.

In coats the newest look was provided by a three-quarter-length mannish topcoat. Full-length coats ranged through straight and fitted styles to the full, loose silhouette.

Notable in fall suits were longer jackets, lower necklines, arched hip lines and use of velvet and braid trimming. Sheath dress and jacket combinations were much in evidence for late day wear.

Expectation of a swing back to the long evening and dinner gown was evident.

A novelty of interest to the college set or for country wear was a fur sweater, which appeared teamed with plaid piper slacks.

Fur coats showed unusual variety in length. Large collars and convertible short sleeves were featured. A revival of popularity for fox and lynx scarves was predicted.

What's Right?

You go to a physician who recommends a course of treatment and you wonder what it will cost.

WRONG: Feel that you cannot ask in advance what the treatment will be.

RIGHT: Say frankly that you would like to know what his fee for the treatment will be.

TRENTON WOMAN

CHILD'S SULKY SPELLS WORRIED HER UNTIL...

If your child has moody, cross, irritable spells for what seems to be no reason, watch for "hidden" constipation. Oftentimes, youngsters' bowels, altho moving regularly, do not move completely. As a result, harmful wastes remain in the intestines, making the child listless, peevish and not feeling like eating. What may be needed is Children's Own Tablets. They help give the thorough evacuation that quickly helps make most children feel like their usual happy selves. Pleasant tasting, small, easy to swallow, Children's Own Tablets are especially prepared for kids from 3 to 15. Only 25¢ at your druggist. Get a box today.

LESS DANGER

Deaths in childbirth in Canada dropped from 5.6 deaths per 1,000 live births in 1928 to 1.5 in 1948.

Two Elderly Residents In Car Out Of Control

Two elderly Peterborough residents are in St. Joseph's Hospital after their car Tuesday afternoon went out of control and struck a telephone pole on the Keene road.

Miss J. B. Fairweather, 371 Reid St., received a facial injury and shock and another passenger, L. D. W. Magie, of the same address sustained an injury to his right knee.

Both are reported to have spent a comfortable night.

Mrs. Jessie Magie, wife of the injured man, escaped unhurt as did the driver of the car, Miss Wilhelmina Ross, 191A Murray St.

The car reportedly hit a loose patch of gravel on the 6th Concession of Otonabee, a mile north of Keene. It slid into the east ditch and snapped off a nearby telephone pole.

Miss Fairweather and Mr. Magie were taken to hospital by passing motorists.

Food Parcels Distributed To Pensioners

A hundred food parcels sent from the people of this city, through the United Emergency Fund for Britain, to the citizens of Peterborough, England, earlier this year, have been distributed among old age pensioners and a letter of thanks has been received by F. G. Mann, chairman of the Peterborough committee.

"May I say that your action in arranging for these gifts to be sent to the people of this city is deeply appreciated," writes Mayor J. R. Hall of Peterborough, England.

Explaining how the food was distributed, the mayor writes: "I obtained a list of old age pensioners who were receiving supplementary pensions (this indicating that they could be classified as needy) and also received recommendations from the councillors and welfare workers in the various wards. After sending a letter to each person, explaining that the parcels had been kindly donated by the people of Peterborough, Canada, I arranged for the distribution to take place in the Town Hall.

"As so many of the recipients were elderly, I had a team of helpers who filled in the acknowledgement cards as the parcels were collected and I am therefore able to return most of the cards herewith. A few will probably send receipts direct."

A few sidelights on the mayor's distribution day are shown by newspaper clippings, which the mayor enclosed with his letter to Mr. Mann.

One columnist writes: "That one old lady was very pleased with her gift, but was frightened to leave the reception room in case she fell down the steps."

"That a colleague of mine (the columnist's) did his good deed for the day by carrying her parcel and assisting her to the ground floor."

Another newspaper clipping states: "Mrs. A. E. Haddad of London, Ontario, who flew to England to see "the old country" saw food parcels from Peterborough, Canada, presented to citizens of Peterborough, England, at the Town Hall on Friday. The mayor, Councillor J. R. Hall, and the mayoress, Mrs. Hilda Lee, made the presentations."

Walker Couple Married Fifty Years Ago

WARKWORTH, June 28 (ENS)—Mr. and Mrs. George L. Walker celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on Monday.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Walker were born and have lived in this vicinity throughout their lives. Mrs. Walker, formerly Clara Wilhelmina Ross was the third daughter of Charles Ross and Margaret McDonald of Brighton township. Mr. Walker was the only son of Robert Walker and Sarah Ann Brintnell of Cramahe Township.

Mr. and Mrs. Walker were married in 1900 at the home of Mrs. Walker's father. The bride's sister Margaret (Mrs. W. Hermiston) was bridesmaid and her niece, Leta Ross (Mrs. Conrad Plumpton) was flower girl. The best man was the late James Buttars, a friend and neighbour of the groom. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. Alec. Craw, minister at that time of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Warkworth.

Farm In Cramahe

After their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Walker farmed in the northern part of Cramahe township, where their two daughters, Grace and Jean were born. Mrs. Walker then purchased the Ross homestead (now farmed by Ross Plumpton) where he farmed until 1919. The family then moved to Warkworth, where Mr. Walker conducted a garage business for a number of years, and where the couple still lives.

The anniversary was celebrated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walker with 50 guests, among whom were the immediate family and those still living of the 60 guests present at the marriage ceremony in 1900.

Mr. and Mrs. Walker have always taken a keen interest in the social, political and church activities of the community. Mrs. Walker is active in the ladies organizations of St. Paul's United Church and Mr. Walker is a keen outdoor man and enjoys hunting and fishing.

Gay With Flowers

Their pleasant home on Evergreen St. was gay with daisies, roses, the rare yellow lady slippers, and a profusion of garden flowers, as Mr. and Mrs. Walker received the guests. Among those invited were Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hermiston, Miss C. Ross, Mr. Bert Bush, Rochester, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. James Ross, Codrington; Mr. F. N. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Potter, Mr. and Mrs. C. Plumpton, Campbellford; Mr. Walter Glover, Mr. and Mrs. L. Darling and Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Darling, Morganston; Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Anderson, Mr. Frank and Mrs. Mary MacDonald, Mr. and Mrs. W. MacDonald, Campbellford; Mrs. Ethel Darling, Montreal; Mr. Wm. Ross, Campbellford; Mrs. Sara Diamond, Norham; Mr. and Mrs. B. Buchanan, Mrs. Lily Terril, Wooler; Rev. and Mrs. Lester, Mr. and Mrs. A. Franklin Boyce, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Smith, Mrs. C. Brown, Williamsburg; Mr. and Mrs. Leon Martin, Mrs. Ethel Ball, Perry, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Battesby, Campbellford; Mr. and Mrs. John Anderson, Toronto; Mrs. Minnie Tarney, Colborne; Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Darling, Trenton.

A surprise party of neighbours called during the evening and presented Mr. and Mrs. Walker with a table lamp and an end table. Other beautiful and much-appreciated gifts were also received. After the dinner, which was served on the lawn, music by Mr. Lester, Mr. Lorne Darling, Mrs. J. McCleary and Mr. R. M. Potter, and a sing-song by the guests was enjoyed.

During the evening Mr. and Mrs. Walker received a congratulatory telegram from Viscount Alexander, Governor-General of Canada.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE L. WALKER of Warkworth celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on Monday. Both have spent their entire lives in the vicinity, and for many years farmed on the Ross homestead, now farmed by Ross Plumpton. The occasion was celebrated at a party at Mr. and Mrs. Walker's home, attended by some 50 guests, members of the family and some of those who were at the wedding 50 years ago.

Passengers Uninjured Ships Crash

NEW YORK, June 28—(AP)—A Danish freighter collided Tuesday with the luxury liner Excalibur in New York harbor, and 114 passengers—off on a gay Mediterranean cruise—donned life belts and were taken ashore safely.

No injuries were reported on either ship, although the 5,146-ton freighter Colombia caught fire.

Crew members said the 9,644-ton Excalibur might have gone down like a rock had the crash come in deeper water. As it was, she was beached before she could sink. Both ships whistled frantically just before the crash. But the warnings went unheard, or unheeded.

Passengers aboard the Excalibur toppled like tenpins as the collision came. Dishes flew off their shelves and were shattered on the floor.

"The whole place was a mess," said 19-year-old Adriane Thoet, a college girl aboard the liner "Everybody began talking at once, but no one got hysterical."

"Seeing Things"

Sun-bathers looked on from the Brooklyn shore, unable to believe their eyes as the two ships moved relentlessly toward one another and then collided.

The sea was calm, riffled only a bit by wind. A bright sun poured its rays on the narrows, where New York harbor meets the Atlantic Ocean. Visibility was perfect, and the human eye could pick out objects for miles across the harbor.

There was no panic as the Excalibur's passengers pulled on life jackets and waited to be removed by tugs. The big ship listed badly, her bow dipped low in the water and her stern shot into the air. But she did not go down.

The passengers were taken back to Jersey City, N.J.—from where they had sailed just 45 minutes before the crash. The Excalibur was taken to a Brooklyn pier.

Toronto Man To Stand Trial For Hotel Murder

WINDSOR, June 28 —(CP)— William G. Clark, 24-year-old Toronto man, Tuesday was committed for trial, charged with the hotel-room murder of Mrs. Margaret Cody, 54, of Windsor.

Clarke spoke up only once in today's preliminary hearing. He cross-examined Ernest Lickman, a cab driver, who testified he drove Clark and Mrs. Cody to a downtown hotel the night before Mrs. Cody's body was found.

Clark, who surrendered to the police in Toronto after the slaying, admitted at that time being with Mrs. Cody at the hotel, but denied any connection with her death.

A night clerk at the hotel testified that on May 22 Clark registered with Mrs. Cody, giving their names as Mr. and Mrs. Clark of Toronto. He said Clark checked out the morning of May 23, about 12 hours before Mrs. Cody's strangled body was discovered.

Hears Talk On Missionary Work

SPRINGVILLE, June 28 (ENS) —The Rev. E. F. Linstead told of his missionary work among Indians near London, Ontario, at the June meeting of the WMS. He also showed a doll made by the Indians and given to his daughter when he and his family left that district.

Twenty-seven attended the meeting in the manse and Mrs. Murray led the opening exercises. Mrs. Dunford arranged for material to be bought to make lavettes for the bale and reported $109.50 had been contributed to the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund as a result of a Red Cross canvass.

Mrs. Dunford had charge of the program in which Mrs. Clifford Johnston conducted the worship period.

Mrs. Dunford, assisted by Mrs. Staples, Mrs. Bowles and Mrs. Murray, read reports on India, Angola and Canada. A social hour concluded the meeting.

The July meeting will be held in the basement of the church. The Mission Band will provide the program and refreshments will be provided by the WMS.

How to reduce tooth decay at no cost!

Nearly three years ago the Dental School at Northwestern University launched one of the most extensive, costly and practical experiments in dental history. The results indicate this:

So says Charles W. Freeman, D.D.S. Dean of N. U's dental school.

Suggest Col. Astor Next Gov.-General

LONDON, June 28 (Reuters)— The editor of The Yorkshire Post, W. L. Andrews, today put forward the name of Col. John J. Astor, president of the Empire Press Union, in a list of possible successors to Governor-General Viscount Alexander of Canada, whose term ends next year.

In an article published in The Post, Andrews, who is at the conference now being held in Canada, said:

"Col. the Hon. John J. Astor, chairman of The Times (of London) and president of the Imperial Press Conference, has made so outstanding an impression here that several influential Canadians have told me they wish he would be the next governor-general."

Truman Faces Dilemma On Soldiers

Time Running Out Ground Troops Believed Needed

WASHINGTON, June 29 — (AP)—President Truman was apparently confronted today with a decision on whether to order United States troops, as well as planes and warships, into the fight to save Southern Korea from Communist conquest.

Highly-placed informants here said late Wednesday night that no decision to put troops into action had yet been made.

The swift sweep of the tank-led Red columns indicated that the time for further American action, if it is taken, may be relatively short.

Whether Gen. Douglas MacArthur's flying visit to the Korean front had any relation to his ideas on using American troops could only be guessed at here; but the disclosure in Tokyo that some ground forces had been put on the alert indicated he may favor stronger American action and has gone to the combat zone to see how it can be made effective.

Watch For Clues

Top officials watched for clues of Russian reaction.

Two points have been considered of utmost importance in future Kremlin conduct: Whether the Soviet leaders would tell the Korean Communists to stop fighting and pull out and, if they did not do that, what attitude they would take toward aiding the Communists.

What is hoped for is that Soviet actions will be governed by a basic policy of avoiding a general outbreak of war and of keeping the Korean fighting localized. Thus far rumors, particularly in Europe, about Soviet or Communist troops taking threatening positions in other parts of the world have mostly gone without official confirmation here.

AMBASSADOR WARREN AUSTIN (centre), chief U.S. delegate to the United Nations' Security Council, shakes hands with Dr. John Chang, South Korean ambassador to the U.S., before the start of a recent Security Council session at Lake Success, N.Y. At left is T. F. Tsiang, Nationalist China's delegate to the council. The council met to consider a U.S. demand for backing President Truman's new policy of American military action to defend South Korea. A majority of the 11 council members backed the plan, including the U.S., Britain, France, China, Norway, Ecuador and Cuba.

UN Can't Agree About Eritrea

LAKE SUCCESS, NY, June 29 (AP).— The five-member United Nations Commission on Eritrea disclosed today that it is unable to agree on a single recommendation for the future status of the former Italian colony.

After months of study, the commission decided to send three proposals to the General Assembly. These are:

1—That Eritrea be constituted a self-governing unit of a federation under the Ethiopian crown. This was proposed by Burma and the Union of South Africa.

2—A proposal by Norway that Eritrea be joined outright to Ethiopia with the western province being left under the present British administration for a limited time.

3—A proposal by Pakistan and Guatemala that Eritrea be placed under direct UN trusteeship for a maximum period of 10 years, and that it then become independent.

Frosty Welcome Urged For Lie

LONDON, June 29 (AP) — Lord Vansittart, a Conservative Peer, proposed today to prepare a frosty reception for secretary-general Trygve Lie of the U. N.

Lie, who has urged U. N. approval of the Russian campaign to admit the Chinese Communist regime to the world organization, is due here Saturday and will address the British United Nations Associations Monday.

Lord Vansittart said he would ask the government in the House of Lords:

"Whether, seeing that the invasion of Korea has taken place in defiance of the authority of the United Nations, they (the government) will inform Mr. Lie that a visit by him to London for any purpose of appeasement would meet with strong public disapproval."

Canada Refuses Visas For Russ Group

OTTAWA, June 29 (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson said today applications for visas had been refused a Russian cultural delegation headed by Lt.-Gen. Alexander Gundorov to attend a "Slav congress" beginning today in Toronto.

"They play the kind of music we don't want to hear," the Minister said amid cheers from all sides of the Commons. He was answering a question by John Decore (L-Vegreville).

Mr. Decore said The Canadian Tribune, "a Communist publication," announced opening of the congress. He said a delegation headed by Gundorov was coming and added the Russian general was "no ordinary individual."

He was chairman of the All-Slav Conference held in Moscow in 1941 and presided over similar conferences in countries behind the iron curtain and in the United States. He had a reputation as a first-class organizer.

Gets 4,000 Volts Boy 9, Lives

HULL, Que., June 29 (CP) — Richard Collard, 9, is alive after experiencing the worst shock of his young life.

The youngster climbed a power pole to reach a bird's nest Wednesday night. His arm touched a high tension line and 4,000 volts of electricity coursed through his body.

Richard toppled 20 feet to the ground after the high voltage charge entered his upper left arm, muscle and burned a hole the size of a 10-cent piece in his flesh. It then travelled through his body and came out from his right hand, leaving a second hole the size of a large nail.

Rushed to hospital, young Richard was found to be suffering from deep shock and burns, but hospital authorities described his condition as good and said he will recover.

Russia Condemns Action Of United Nations—Illegal

LONDON, June 29—(AP)—Russia today condemned as illegal the United Nations Security Council's call for armed support of invaded South Korea. A Russian note to Trygve Lie, U.N. Secretary-General, broadcast by Moscow radio, was the first official statement by the Soviet government on Korea since fighting started there Sunday.

The Council resolution was illegal the note said, because:

1. Unanimous approval of the five permanent council members was needed. "Two permanent members, the U.S.S.R. and China, were absent."

(The Russians have refused to recognize the Chinese Nationalist delegation as legal representatives of China in the UN and have boycotted, since January, all UN meetings at which Nationalist China was represented.)

2. Seven votes were needed for adoption of the resolution. It was adopted "by six votes with the participation of a seventh Kuomingtangite Tsiang Ting Fu, who had no lawful right to represent China."

"It is quite plain that said decision of the Security Council on the Korean problem has no legal force," the Soviet not concluded.

Dwn To Business

The Council voted 7 to 1 at Lake Success Tuesday to ask all UN member countries to take military action against the Russian-trained forces of the Soviet-sponsored North Korean government.

Those voting for the resolution, in addition to its U.S. proposer, were Britain, France, China, Cuba, Norway and Ecuador. India and Egypt abstained. Yugoslavia, former satellite, cast the only dissenting vote.

The Council action gave international endorsement to President Truman's previously-announced plan to send U.S. military forces to aid the South Koreans.

VALETTA, Malta, June 29 — (Reuters)—A second fireworks factory blew up today following a similar explosion which killed four persons Wednesday. Buildings over a wide area in south Malta shook. No details of casualties, nor cause of either explosion, were known.

23 Senior Officers Graduate At Kingston

OTTAWA, June 29 — (CP) — Twenty-three senior officers of the fighting services and the civil service will graduate in a special defence class at the National Defence College, Kingston, tomorrow.

Third of its kind since the college was opened in 1948, the class has been studying military, government, supply and security problems connected with national defence.

Graduation of the class will be marked by a closing address by Defence Minister Claxton. The class has been in session since last November.

Groom Jailed 8 Mos. For Forging Cheque

OSHAWA, June 29 (CP)—A 23-year-old Trenton man who forged a $350 cheque to obtain funds for his marriage was sentenced today to eight months.

Charles Tann admitted at a previous hearing that he used a stolen passbook to establish credit and to cash the cheque at a Whitby bank. He bought a $235 engagement ring, got married and went on a honeymoon.

Lightweight Boxer TKO's 800-Lb. Bear

GERALDTON, June 29 (CP)—Paul Emil Cote, 23-year-old former Montreal lightweight boxer, won by a technical knockout over an 800-pound bear Tuesday.

Paul, who now weighs 190 pounds and works as a skidder in Northwestern Ontario lumber camps, said he came upon the bear along a forest trail.

"I threw out my left hand to ward him off . . . while at the same time I reached for my knife and stabbed him in the groin. He made a big noise, sank to the ground and slowly crawled away . . ."

Badly Wounded Convict Denies Shortt Shot Him

WINDSOR, June 28 (CP) — Gerald Beland, critically wounded in a Windsor apartment two weeks ago, denied from his hospital bed Wednesday that he was shot by John Shortt, 44, of Windsor, and today crown authorities said the charge of wounding laid against Shortt would be withdrawn.

Magistrate Angus W. MacMillan heard evidence at the bedside of the 32-year-old Toronto man after hospital authorities said Beland may not live because of infection in the bullet wound in his side.

Beland refused to name the man who shot him but said the third man in the apartment when the shooting occurred was a man known as John Dobson.

Police are searching for Dobson, who has since been identified as a former convict named Haelers.

When he was first taken to hospital Beland gave his name as Owen Thompson, but fingerprints showed he was Gerald Beland, who escaped from guards while being taken to Kingston penitentiary after conviction on a narcotics charge.

Lawyer Fights Fine

WINDSOR, June 29—(CP)—Windsor Lawyer Morris Kamin indicated today he will appeal a court decision in which he was fined $3 and costs for a parking meter violation. The lawyer pleaded innocent yesterday before Magistrate J. A. Hanrahan to two charges of parking violations, and intimated he was prepared to make a test case of the matter.

Still Sending Goods To N. Korea

Canadian Officials Report Ottawa Has Made No Change

OTTAWA, June 29—(CP)—The government so far has not decided to change its regulations permitting the export of "non-essential" goods to North Korea, an official said today.

Export of essential goods —that is, goods which are required in combat, such as trucks, tanks, aircraft, and raw materials which can be manufactured into car equipment—to North and South Korea and to other areas in or near Communist countries has been under permit control since last December, the official said.

No Changes Yet

"I have no instructions to change the regulations," added the official. "Canadians can still sell such goods as foodstuffs and clothing to North Koreans."

Canada's decision last December to enforce area control followed similar action taken by the United States. The permit control on essential commodities extends to some 64 countries. The main idea behind this control is to keep Canadian equipment useful in war out of the hands of the Communists.

U.S. Rejects Soviet Claim

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., June 29 (AP)—The United States has rejected Russia's contention that the U.N. Security Council intervention in the Korean conflict is illegal.

Informed sources said today Ambassador Ernest A. Gross made the U.S. position clear to the Soviet deputy foreign minister, Jakob A. Malik, at a private luncheon Tuesday that was just before the Russian-boycotted council voted 7 to 1 to invite use of arms to repel the Communist attack on South Korea.

Neither delegates nor U.N. officials showed any surprise over the Soviet note to Secretary-general Trygve Lie declaring the council action invalid.

Meanwhile, Lie and his top aides are sounding out the 59 United Nations on how far they will go in trying to stop the Korean conflict through aid to the Seoul Republic.

Rules Subsidy For Year Only

OTTAWA, June 29. — (CP). — Transport Minister Chevrier said Wednesday in the Commons there is no possibility of the Government extending its subsidy to the Canadian merchant marine beyond the end of the current fiscal year.

He told Howard Green (PC, Vancouver) that when Prime Minister St. Laurent announced a $3,000,000 subsidy for the merchant marine Dec. 9 last it was made clear the subsidy would be for one year only. There had been no change in the decision.

Nine ships now are tied up compared with 42 prior to announcement of the subsidy. No money has yet been paid to Canadian ship operators, but applications for assistance by more than 30 have been approved.

Mr. Chevrier said 95 Canadian-owned ships have been transferred to United Kingdom registry.

Eskimos Transferred To Resources Dept.

OTTAWA, June 29 (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent told the Commons today jurisdiction over Canada's 4,000 Eskimos has been transferred from the Citizenship to the Resources Department. However, since most of them were in territories administered by the Northwest Territories Council, it was felt they should be placed under resources. The council is under that department.

Wasting No Time

DETROIT, June 29—(CP)—Headquarters for Detroit's civilian defence in the event of war were being set up today. Maj.-Gen. Clyde E. Dougherty, Army Reserve Officer, was named Co-ordinator of Defence for the area. Maj.-Gen. Dougherty said one of the first objectives is an emergency communications network, especially one which could spread an air-raid warning through the four counties in the Detroit area.

British House To Debate Korea On Wednesday

LONDON, June 29 (Reuters) —The House of Commons will debate war in Korea next Wednesday, the deputy prime minister, Herbert Morrison, announced today.

Prime Minister Attlee briefly took the floor to tell the House about Australian and New Zealand naval forces joining the Americans in support of South Korea.

There were loud cheers when Attlee referred to an announcement by the Canadian External Affairs Minister, L. B. Pearson, that Canada, too, was deciding on what action she could and should take to lend a hand.

Labor left-winger James Hudson asked Attlee if he was "quite sure that the United States is acting within the directions of the Security Council."

Attlee did not reply, but there were some cheers from his side of the House.

The Prime Minister fended off Labor member Woodrow Wyatt who wanted Britain to start work on an Asiatic defence pact right away. Said the Prime Minister: "I don't think that arises."

Delay Judgment In Oleo Case

LONDON, June 29 — (CP).— The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council today reserved judgment in the Canadian margarine case.

In hearings extended over six days, the committee has been hearing legal arguments in an appeal brought by the Canadian Federation of Agriculture against Supreme Court judgment permitting the sale of margarine in Canada.

The Supreme Court found that Section 5A of the Dairy Industry Act, prohibiting the manufacture, sale or possession of margarine or other substitutes for butter, was ultra vires of the Canadian Parliament.

Five of seven Supreme Court judges held it was legislation in relation to civil rights and thus within exclusive jurisdiction of the provinces.

Heirs Get Estate

LONDON, June 29 (AP)—The high court formally directed today that an estate of more than £3,000,000 ($9,300,000) which King Victor Emanuel of Italy left in Britain be handed over to his heirs. Ownership of the fortune was decided last January in a three-sided court action involving the heirs, the republic of Italy and Hambros Bank, administrator of the estate.

Superforts Blast Invaders As MacArthur Tours Korean Battlefields

Order Han River Line Held At All Costs As Bombing Stepped Up U.S. Warships Hit At North Korean Units

TOKYO, June 29—(CP)—Behind the pounding of United States B-29 Superforts, South Korean forces today stormed back on the offensive and reoccupied strategic Kimpo airport, 16 miles northwest of fallen Seoul, their capital. While American bombers were blasting Communist North Korean invaders out of the field, U.S. and Korean strategists drew their main battle line along the Han River and ordered it held at all costs. About 25,000 troops on each side face each other along the line, which extends from a point just southeast of Seoul westward to the Yellow Sea and Communist-held Inchon. The Communist drive southward has not yet crossed the river.

TOKYO (AP) — American warships, ordered to prevent Communist seaborne reinforcements from landing, shelled North Korean naval and ground units near the Communist-held South Korea port of Inchon. Other U.S. warships struck at North Korean shore targets and naval units on the east coast in the area of Samchok, which is the border between the two Koreas.

The 75-mile battle line protects the American air beachhead in Korea and field headquarters of Gen. MacArthur's officers. MacArthur's officers said they believe the South Koreans can hold it now.

Recovering From Shock

MacArthur, back in Tokyo after a 15-hour flying visit to the front, appeared heartened by the stiffening resistance he saw and the morale of the Koreans, who cheered him. The southerners apparently were recovering from the initial shock of the Communist invasion. Infantry units once cut off by the Red tank attack which enveloped Seoul were being regrouped swiftly to join the counter-offensive, U.S. military observers said.

The South Koreans moved in—at least temporarily—on Kimpo airfield just after American bombers blasted the Communists out of the field. Seoul appeared for the present firmly in Red hands, with street fighting virtually at an end.

American bombing and supply operations were stepped up with the entrance of the B-29 Superforts into the mounting offensive. Other B-29s bombed targets near Inchon and Seoul and along the Australian Navy Near Japan To Assist U.S.

CANBERRA, June 29 (CP). — Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies announced today that Australian naval units in Japanese waters will support United States forces fighting in South Korea.

Ships immediately concerned are the frigate Shoal Haven and the destroyer Bataan.

An authoritative government source said that until the Korean situation is clarified, the 3,000 Australian soldiers now in Japan probably will be kept there. They had been scheduled for early withdrawl.

Menzies in a statement said his government had informed the United Nations Security Council and the United States that it would support the Council resolution calling for military support of the South Korean government.

Notify Britain

Australia's decision also has been communicated to the British government, Menzies said.

No decision has been reached on the use of the Royal Australian Air Force fighter squadron in Japan, reliable sources said.

In Auckland Prime Minister Sydney C. Holland of New Zealand said his government was prepared to make units of the Royal New Zealand Navy available to the United States also.

His government, Holland said, would do all in its power to fulfill its UN obligations, and was consulting with the British government on the matter.

Holland added: "The New Zealand government welcomes the measures promptly taken by the Security Council and fully approves the terms of the Council resolution."

Plane Crashes In Bush Four Men Uninjured

TIMAGAMI, June 29 (CP) — Four forestry men escaped unhurt today when the aircraft in which they had taken off from a lake crashed 200 yards in the bush, 10 miles northwest of here.

Pilot Cal Hull and his passengers, L. L. Bronson, "Bud" Perkins and Wiliam Hueston, reported by radio they were unhurt.

They had landed at the lake to check timber in the area. Another Forestry plane has been dispatched to the scene.

Need Heavy Guns Plea From Korea

TOKYO, June 29 (Reuters).— President Syngman Rhee of South Korea warned today that there is "little hope" in South Korea until heavy guns reach the battlefront in the war with Communist invaders.

In an appeal from Taejon, central town in the Korean peninsula, Rhee said:

"There is little optimism in South Korea because we have no artillery. There can be little hope until heavy arms are supplied."

South Koreans were falling back from the Han River defences where it had been hoped the North Korean invaders could be stemmed, air force sources said.

Mrs. Pitre Ordered To Stand On Trial

QUEBEC, June 29 (CP)—Judge Laetare Roy today ordered Mrs. Arthur Pitre, important figure in Quebec's airliner time-bombing case, to stand trial on a charge of witness intimidation.

Judge Roy gave his ruling—that the 41-year-old woman be tried at autumn term of criminal assizes—after a brief preliminary hearing today.

Bail of $2,000 on which Mrs. Pitre has been at liberty since June 14 when the charge against her was laid was extended to cover the period until her trial.

Fear Fight For Home Rule In Scotland 'Dangerous'

TORONTO, June 29 (CP) — Gilbert Carmichael of Minneapolis, Royal Chief of the Loyal Order of Scottish Clans in United States and Canada, said today many North Americans of Scottish descent are afraid the fight for home rule in Scotland will divide the United Kingdom with "another Irish question."

The leader of 50,000 North American Scots was commenting on a speech to the Ladies Auxiliary of the Scottish Clans today by John M. MacCormick, head of a four-man delegation of Scottish covenanters now touring the United States and Canada.

The covenant movement, representing 1,500,000 Scotsmen, is pledged to fight "for home rule in Scotland within the framework of the United Kingdom."

Mr. MacCormick told the auxiliary, in convention here, that there is a "malaise in the national life of Scotland which can only be overcome by the restoration of a national identity through a home rule parliament."

Mr. Carmichael, who has made several trips to Scotland to report on conditions there to Paul Hoffman, U.S. economic co-operation administration chief, said in an interview that "economic conditions in Scotland were never better."

"It would be foolish to disturb them with another Irish question now."

No Great Rush For Television McCann Says

OTTAWA, June 29 — (CP) — Revenue Minister McCann Wednesday told the Commons that private industry has "not been in too great a hurry" to establish television stations in Canada.

Replying to charges by Donald Fleming (PC, Toronto Eglinton) that the government has been dilatory in announcing a television policy and in carrying it out, Dr. McCann said Canada has benefitted by proceeding slowly.

To Mr. Fleming's statement that Canada would have had television long ago had private stations been allowed to enter the field, Dr. McCann replied:

"Private industry has not been in too great a hurry to get into this business . . . It costs approximately $500,000 to set up a station and you must be prepared to take a loss of $500,000 before commercial advertising will place you on an earning basis.

"We have guarded the Canadian people against the granting of licences to people who are not prepared to go ahead . . ."

No Comment

A. L. Smith (PC, Calgary West) drew no comment from the minister when he said he could not see why anyone who wanted to lose $500,000 in television development was not allowed to go ahead.

The discussion occurred as the Chamber studied the estimates of the Revenue Department which reports to parliament for the publicly-owned CBC.

In study of Tranpsort Department estimates, members voted

Fresh Selling Wave Halts Stock Recovery

TORONTO, June 29 (CP)—A fresh wave of selling halted a recovery movement on the Toronto stock exchange today and sent prices reeling backwards in continuation of Monday and Tuesday's declines. Volume for the first three hours was 1,457,000 shares.

The sudden decline followed a sharp setback in New York. Leading industrials showed losses ranging from practions to more than three points. Activity slowed in mid-session and the market paused for breath. Interlisted issues were hardest hit.

Losses ranging up to 35 cents in key junior- gold producers depressed that list to new low level for the year. Activity was practically at a standstill in the recently brisk-trading low-priced stocks.

Base metals sagged over a broad front following news of a cut in the price of lead. Consolidated Smelters and Noranda were down $1.

Western oils made the best early recovery but leaders in this group were also pushed lower.

38th parallel. Behind the assault the resurgent defenders drove back into Kimpo field and to the north, engaged the Reds at captured Uijongbu, 12 miles north of Seoul.

MacArthur, commander - in - chief of U. S. Pacific forces, who is leading the United Nations in determined measures to stop the Red invasion, drove by automobile to the edge of Seoul and saw the toughening resistance behind American air strength. After 15 hours at the front, he returned to Tokyo. Communist planes dogged him and one which tried to attack his unarmed transport was driven off by an American fighter escort.

The Communist radio in Pyongyang, capital of North Korea, tonight said northern forces had made advances of 45 to 65 miles south of the 38th parellel in the last four days.

The 38th parallel is the dividing line between the Koreas.

The broadcast monitored here said the Red forces had "liberated" an area of 8,000 square miles, including the cities of Seoul and Kaesong, and more than 5,000 villages.

The radio declared that northern troops landed at Paengyongdo island June 27 and succeeded in capturing what it called that "key enemy naval base."

(Paengyongdo is about 20 miles west of Ongjin Peninsula, just south of the 38th parallel in western Korea.)

At an American base in southern Japan, nine unidentified planes found on the radar sent the base a 45-minute blackout tonight. Five U.S. planes took to the air but the unidentified aircraft disappeared before the American planes could make contact.

MacArthur ordered the heavy U.S. bombers to knock out three vital bridges to prevent North Korean tanks from resuming their southward drive.

U.S. military leaders said Australian Mustang fighters are urgently needed over Sowun and Seoul, and MacArthur requested they be placed at his disposal.

Lt.-Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, commander of the Far East Air Force, told Reuters News Agency:

"The 77th Royal Australian Air Force squadron at Iwakuni is a very fine one indeed and you can quote me as saying I would like them very much."

Short Run

Stratemeyer explained that in trying to maintain a continual air umbrella over Suwon from Japan with jets and Mustangs, the jets had only 10 or 15 minutes over Suwon when fuel forced them to return.

Dr. Harold Noble, political advisor to the American embassy in Korea, said Mustangs appeared to be ideal for the present long-range protection and strafing. The jets, apart from fuel difficulties, appeared to be too fast for accurate strafing, he said.

Stratemeyer denied reports that any North Korean planes were manned by Russian pilots.

A headquarters announcement said U.S. warships hit North Korean naval and ground units near Inchon, the port of Seoul west of the lost capital of South Korea.

The bridges ordered blasted by the B-29s are across the Ho river where South Korean forces are entrenched on the south bank.

North Korean forces had established a bridgehead across the river with tanks, but they withdrew after B-29s from Okinawa heavily bombed their positions.

The front line stretches 75 miles along the Han from its confluence with the Pukhon river westward to the sea at Inchon. South Korean forces have been told to hold it at all costs because it is vital to the American aerial beachhead at Suwon, 20 miles south of Seoul.

Superforts Attack

Shortly after MacArthur's plane landed in Korea, Stratemeyer's headquarters announced in Tokyo that the Superfortresses made their first attack this morning.

The big bombers—capable of carrying atomic bombs—blasted Seoul's Kimpo airfield with conventional bombs. Air headquarters did not disclose how many participated but said primary targets were hit with "good results." All returned to their base, presumably Guam.

The Korean mission in Tokyo said that South Korean forces, aided by the Superfort assault stormed back on the offensive. They were driving back the heavy Red concentration of Soviet-made tanks from the western sector of the capital, it asserted.

The mission also said that fierce fighting was going on at Kimpo airfield, 16 miles west-northwest of Seoul, and at Red-held Uijong-Bu, 12 miles north of Seoul.

Going Well

The southern counter-thrust was going so well, the mission claimed, that army headquarters were moved back to Shihung between Seoul and Suwon, 20 miles south.

Before the mission issued its encouraging statement, the southern forces were reported in grave condition—so bad, that authoritative sources in Tokyo said some American combat troops had been placed on the alert to move into Korea "at a moment's notice."

So far, no U.S. ground combat troops have been sent to the war zone.

Reports—not carried by The Canadian or Associated Press—that the 1st Cavalry Division had been ordered to the front from Japan were denied officially.

In addition to the B-29s, the United States has thrown F-80 Lockheed jet and F-82 twin-fuselage Mustang fighters and B-26 Douglas Invader light bombers into combat.

The Air Force also is airlifting supplies to the South Koreans with a fleet of four-engined C-54s and twin-engined C-46s and C-47s. The around-the-clock schedule was increased with the arrival of a squadron of C-54s from the Phillipines.

Plane Destroyed

Tom Lambert, Associated Press correspondent, reported from Suwon, airbase used by US pilots, that one of the four-engined transports was destroyed Wednesday night by North Korean Russian-built Yak fighters. This was the second C-54 destroyed on the ground since the Red invasion began Sunday.

At sea, units of the US Navy were on undisclosed missions. Britain placed at MacArthur's disposal ships of its Far Eastern fleet—22 or 23 in all, including the light fleet carrier Triumph.

Authoritative sources said the US also has a signal corps unit in Korea working on communications.

Lambert said the appearance of the Superforts caused "a remarkable change" in the attitude of Americans and Koreans at Suwon.

The big bombers blasted an old American ammunition dump on the outskirts of Seoul. The concusion carried to Suwon.

Best Estimate

Before the Korean mission reported the South Korean rally, this was the best estimate here on the military position:

The Reds had pushed several miles south of Seoul and the heaviest fighting was between Seoul and Suwon. From this area the Red line stretched across the peninsula to the east coast just south of Samchok, 40 miles south of the 38th Parallel—the dividing line between South and Norh Korea.

A thrust inland by Red forces who landed on the south-east coast near Pohangdong also was reported. Fighting was said to be raging along the road linking Taegu with Seoul, 147 air miles north-west.

Fog, Kill Scent One Operation

New mown hay, pines or winter green—you can have your choice. Householders who wish to have their homes freed from insect inhabitants can also have one of these refreshing scents [illegible] in rooms and halls after a fogging operation has been completed. According to H. P. Coleman, General Sales Manager of the Habegail Fogging Co., the scent of new mown hay rates high on the popularity list.

Mosquitoes or flies just haven't a chance when they come up against this fog, new mown hay or not. Even after the fog has lifted, the insect can't survive as an invisible residue remains that retains its activity inside a building from six months to a year. All the insect has to do is to come in contact with this residue and it can say good-bye to this world. The chemicals used completely paralyse the insects nervous system and instant death follows. Fortunately this fog is non-toxic for birds, bees, animals and humans and will not injure even the finest fabrics. The cost for normally fogging is only a little more than that paid for insecticides.

Fogging is a comparatively new method for the extermination and control of insects both in buildings and outside. It originated in Todd Shipyards in New York and was used in the South Pacific during the last war for the protection of troops against insects. The idea was introduced in Peterborough by the Spray Motor Limited, London, who gave a demonstration to the Health Department of this city.

Makes Sure Machine Won't Kill Others

PORT DOVER, June 29 (CP)—A man whose son was killed when a carnival-ride car plunged 40 feet to the ground here last fall is determined that the machine will claim no other lives.

Harry Lalone of Simcoe bought the ride which took the life of his son James, 12, and rebuilt it with "foolproof" safety devices.

He said he originally intended to sell it after rebuilding it but the high cost of purchase forces him to run it himself.

Needling In Court Angers Judge Ring Theft Case

The Crown finished its case at noon today against William Holland, 23, charged with the theft of a diamond ring and brooch from the home of Mrs. Blanche Dixon, Rubidge St.

Holland Pleaded Not Guilty

Three Crown witnesses were heard—Mrs. Dixon, her son Roy Dixon of Stewart St., and Detective Sergeant W. A. Clarke of the city police.

Highlight of the morning was a verbal duel between Holland's counsel, B. J. Spencer Pitt of Toronto and Detective Sergeant Clarke. Stung by Mr. Pitt's insistent cross questioning the officer started to give as good as he got.

At one point of his testimony, the officer, in relating a conversation with Holland, said Holland had asked for a psychiatrist. Later he corrected this to "doctor."

Referring to this slip Mr. Pitt suggested that maybe Holland wasn't the only one in need of a psychiatrist.

The mutual needling ended at noon when Judge S. L. Smoke ticked the Detective Sergeant off for not directly answering questions.

"And I don't want any of your back talk, either," said the angry Judge.

Ring, Brooch Recovered

Both Mrs. Dixon's diamond ring valued at $125 and the borach at about $140 were recovered. The ring was personally handed back to the owner by Holland and the brooch he obtained from the room of his girl friend on Stewart St.

The accused was a border at the home of Mrs. Dixon and when Detective Sergeant Clarke heard of the reported thefts, Holland, largely because of a previous record, became No. 1 suspect.

John Davern, a clerk at Ostrander's Jewellers, said Holland had walked into the store shortly before he was arrested and asked if the ring was a diamond. He did not see the brooch.

Mrs. Dixon said she kept the ring in a dresser drawer or a jewel box and the brooch was in a box in her closet. Holland's room was just down the hall, she testified.

Questions By Detective

Detective Sergeant Clarke said he went to the restaurant where Holland works to question him. Holland admitted he "took the ring," said the detective. And he said he could get the brooch.

Roy Dixon testified that at the police station Holland had said: "Just give me one more chance."

"I replied 'it doesn't look to me as though one more chance will do you one bit of good with your record.'"

"I saw the accused hand Mrs. Dixon a ring," said Detective Sergeant Clarke. "I don't know where he got it, but it seemed to be from his person."

At the girl friend's boarding house Holland reached around a door and unhooked the brooch from a coat, the detective continued.

"Did you see him?" queried Mr. Pitt.

"No, when he opened the door he was between me and the coat. I can't see through a man," countered the detective.

A considerable portion of the morning was occupied with "a trial within a trial" to determine if Holland's statements to Roy Dixon were admissable evidence.

Representing the crown was Crown Attorney John Bradshaw. Mr. Pitt, representing the accused, became well known locally through his defence of William Yuzwa, charged in Lindsay with the murder of Jack Loucks.

The trial is continuing.

Gold Smuggling Revived In Rand

JOHANNESBURG — (CP). — World market conditions have resulted in a large-scale revival of gold smuggling on the Rand, where the unique opportunities for "IGB" — illicit gold buying —once lured the world's adventurers.

Prices paid for raw gold in some foreign countries range as high as £27 ($83.50) an ounce, and have attracted many international operators to the illegal traffic.

Much of the gold reaching the black market from the rich Rand mines is smuggled from the mine premises by natives, who have become skilled not only in concealing the metal, but have be come experts in smelting and refining processes.

Gold is harder to hide about the person than diamonds, but the formerly ingenuous African soon learns new tricks.

Police and mine officials, to whom the new outbreak of "IGB" means sleepless nights and lots of aspirin, recently seized innocent-looking pieces of rag and waste carried by the native workers as they left mine premises.

Examination showed some of the rags to be heavily impregnated with gold in crude form.

Drunk Driver Gets 7 Days, Car Impounded

Wesley Wright, 503 Elm St., was today convicted of being drunk in control of a car and sentenced to seven days in jail by Magistrate W. R. Philp, K.C. Wright's car was ordered impounded for three months.

Herbert Sherwin testified he was trying to drive his car into the driveway at the Queen's Hotel, when Wright was driving out. Sherwin's left rear fender was damaged when the two autos collided.

Wright testified the accident took place in the driveway at the American Hotel. It was in the parking lot at the rear of this hotel that Wright was later arrested by PC Serman Killele.

Both PC Killiele and Mr. Sherwin testified that Wright was very drunk. The officer said that when he found Wright, the man was trying to start his car, but couldn't.

"PC Allan Edmison and I had to support him when he got out of the car," PC Killiele said.

Wright's nephew, Wesley Wright, 503 Elm St., was fined $10 and $2.50 costs when he pleaded guilty to a drunk charge.

A part bottle of wine found in his uncle's car was claimed by him. He said he had two drinks out of it and then shoved it under a blanket in the rear seat of the car.

Holding the bottle up, and showing it more than half gone, defence counsel W. J. Arthur Fair said: "Do you call that two drinks"

"Well, a little might have leaked out, but I don't think so," the younger Wright answered.

Can't Houseclean Since Fall Sues for $1,000 Damages

COBOURG, June 29—(ENS)— An action for damages brough: by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Brown, of Cobourg, against the Northumberland Fish and Game Association, Frank Stover and the British Israel movement, was heard in court Wednesday by Judge M. A Miller, who reserved his decision.

The claim was for $1,000 made up of medical accounts and loss of earning power by Mrs. Brown, who claimed she suffered injuries to an ankle when a step gave way Dec. 1, 1948, on the stairway of Mr. Stover's property, which led to the Fish and Game Club's rooms.

Mrs. Brown, according to her evidence, attended a meeting called by local adherents of the British Israel movement, which was held in the Fish and Game rooms. While on her way down the stairs after the meeting, accompanied by her husband a ster gave way and she hurt her ankle.

Dr. Edgar Hayden, who attended her after the accident, said that her left ankle was swollen and painful and that he took her to the office of Dr. Blackwell, where the latter x-rayed the ankle. She was in bed for four or five weeks and couldn't walk on it for two or three weeks after that, Dr. Hayden said.

Dr. Blackwell said the bone was not broken but that it continued after some time to give her pain, so he sent her to Dr. R. K. McGee, Peterborough specialist.

"Seemed To Drop Out"

Mrs. Brown testified that on the way down the stairs, the step seemed to drop out and both her feet went through. Prior to the accident she had worked in homes doing household duties, but since then she had been unable to do so because her ankle still bothered her.

To A. R. Willmott, counsel for Mr. Stover, Mrs. Brown said she couldn't scrub a floor because her ankle would not bend when she was down on the floor in a scrubbing position. To J. C. MacCorkindale of Toronto, she said she was not interested in the British Israel movement but went because it was advertised as a public meeting. She said that going up the stairs, she saw nothing about their condition to make her apprehensive. Mrs. Brown said she weighed 200 pounds.

Robert Austin told the court he had inserted the notice in the paper and had also called up those whom he knew were interested. He had secured the hall before from th Fish and Gabe Association at n ocharge and on Dec. 1, he had got the keys from one of the members. Nobody in the club asked for rental of the hall but he gave the club a donation of $2.

Report On Stairs

Austin told Harry Deyman, counsel for the Fish and Game Association that the club never charged him for the hall and there was no arrangement for payment.

John Steele, Toronto construction man, called by the British Israel group, said he examined the stairway last April and found the timber solid. The reason the tread of the particular step gave way was because the nails had been driven too close to the edge of the tread through the risers and nobody would notice that the nails were driven that way until after it happened. A heavy step down would cause the treadv to chip off at the nails and collapse

Owner of the Building

Frank Stover testified that he had no lease with the Fish and Game Association but allowed them the use of the rooms. He said he had used the stairs daily as they were next to his store and that he never noticed anything wrong with the steps. Winston Fisher, a director of the Fish and Game Association said that he too, had never seen anything wrong with the stairs. Carpenters called by the defence said that the steps had been sound so far as could be seen. A carpenter called by the plaintiff said that one of the stringers had warped.

A wide variety of cases were quoted by counsel in their arguments and argued the status of each defendant in relation to the use of the hall. Judge Miller commented that it would appear that the case hinged on whether or not a reasonable inspection of the stairs had been made.

J. C. M. German was counsel for the plaintiff.

American Strongarm

Twelve years ago the western democracies shilly-shallied when Czechoslovakia was threatened by the Germans. Appeasement neither saved Czechoslovakia nor prevented world war. Today another political philosophy threatens the western democracies, from another corner of the world. When the Communist Koreans invaded the southern Republic of Korea, the United States intervened at once, and drastically, even before the United Nations Security Council called on its members to use military force. Not only is American force equipment being provided the South Koreans; American airmen, sailors and soldiers are on the spot. The United States has taken a terrible risk, but it was a risk that Congress has approved. It is proof that a democracy can act speedily. It is reassurance that the United States, as the chief western power, is taking leadership.

• • •

Some may condemn the U.S.A. for interfering in a purely Korean war. They will say that the U.S.A. jumped into Korea with warlike fervour, and afterwards persuaded the Security Council to approve its actions. The Russians have used the occasion as proof that the U.S.A. is thirsty for blood and conquest. We may regret that it did not wait for the Security Council to call it to arms, but to have done so might have played straight into Russia's hands. Immediate action was needed. It is not true that the Security Council has merely whitewashed the American course. The Security Council and U.N. are not under the heel of the U.S.A. Their subsequent call to member nations to give military aid justifies in other nation's eyes the American intervention.

• • •

The risks are great, but up to the time of writing there has been no confirmation of reports that Russian soldiers or airmen are taking a direct part in the war. In fact, Prime Minister Attlee, announcing yesterday that British ships in the Orient were being put at the disposal of the U.S.A. stated his Government's belief that Russia will not intervene to touch off a global war, because Russia does not want war. Russian intervention, following the American, would produce a most critical situation.

• • •

The American strong-arm action is the kind that Russia understands. That, coupled with the United Nations' approval, and the active assistance of other western democracies, may be the best preventative of a major war. The American intervention is neither pretty nor gentle, but now is not the time for the niceties of diplomatic action, apropos of Russia and Communism.

New Jersey Example

Ontario licenses any car whose owner wants to have it licensed. The licensing authorities are not at all concerned with the condition of the vehicle; all they are looking for is the ten or fifteen dollar fee. In fact, it is ridiculous to call an automobile license a license; it is merely a special tax. We have protested in these columns before about this lax system. Cars in bad condition are a menace. They cause accidents. However, the licensing authorities do not seem to be interested in that aspect. If an accident occurs because of faulty brakes, lights or steering gear, the courts may penalize the car owner, after an accident that might have been prevented. The traffic police do occasionally carry out brake and lights tests, and periodically a warning is issued against driving with defective brakes. That is as far as our stupid Ontario system goes. This province could take a lesson from the state of New Jersey.

For a number of years now New Jersey law demands that all vehicles in the state be inspected twice a year. Inspecting depots have been set up and staffed by state government inspectors. A truck or car owner sends his machine to the depot where in a few minutes its lights are tested, its braking system carefully examined, and the visibility from the driver's seat determined. The vehicle is jacked up and a complete check is made of the steering mechanism. If the vehicle meets the standards—and they are high—a sticker is affixed to the windshield noting that it was approved in, say, June, and is due for re-examination in December. If there are any defects, even small ones, the car owner is given a few days to have them remedied. He then returns for another inspection. If he does not return, his car license is straightway cancelled. Inspecting men are transferred from one depot to another periodically, to lessen the chance of their developing favourites, paying off grudges, or winking the inspecting eye at the behest of a large trucking firm with many vehicles. Each inspection costs the car owner fifty cents, that is, a dollar a year. New Jersey car owners and drivers do not begrudge this small cost which ensures greater safety on streets and highways. And the fifty cent fee seems to pay for the system.

There are many points to the New Jersey system to recommend it to Ontario. It is time that Ontario knew what kind and condition of vehicles it was licensing. Bad cars are as dangerous as bad drivers.

Inconsolable Billionaires

We were leafing an American pocket magazine in a dentist's office the other day— a current issue of it—and fastened on an article called "Meet a Billionaire". The billionaire was the typical American —the author. He was telling what was good about the country. He had a house with heat: "No monarch of old, with all his magicians, could change the climate by a fingertip as I can". He had a house with plumbing. He had a radio for Tschaikowsky or a hillbilly band. He could travel where he wanted and by conveyance of his own choice; plane, train, bus or car, for a few cents a mile. And so the credit side of his ledger was expanded. It was a glossy picture of the goods and services an ordinary citizen of this continent had spread out before him. It was proof that every American today is a billionaire in comparison with his forefathers in mediaeval England, feudal Hungary or hungry Greece.

But the article was as hollow as the tooth we were waiting to get filled. To be a billionaire is not a good in itself. It may be a means to an end. Is the billionaire North American happier, more at peace with his gods, less lonely than his less rich ancestors?

The chief purpose of living is not to be a billionaire. If the average American's billion (his plumbing, his easy means of travel, his opportunity to work where, when and how he will) gives him joy, contentment and kinship with his world, it is good to be such a billionaire. If it does not, wherefor is his advantage? It sometimes seems the privilege of the 'billionaire' American (and we must include Canadians in this category of the prosperous and mechanically-served) to be unhappy in his plenty, to be a malcontent in the midst of his plumbing, and to be lonely among a hundred thousand of his fellow billionaires.

Canadian Dollar At Par

There are rumours that the Canadian Government may see fit to bring the dollar up to par again with the U.S. dollar. We do not profess to understand the intricacies of international finance, but we have seen little reason for the Government to change its mind on the devaluation it made on September 20th last, the day following the devaluations of British and a score of other currencies. At that time the Minister of Finance stated in the House of Commons that:

The substantial devaluation of currencies throughout the sterling area, and in many other countries as well, cannot fail to have important implications for our balance of payments position. Many of our exports are bound to face increased price competition in both the non-dollar and dollar markets. At the same time the extensive exchange adjustments abroad will tend to result in an increase in the total value of our imports. While we stand ready to cooperate with the efforts of overseas countries to expand their sales to us we cannot receive more imports from all sources without going into deficit in our international accounts.

The American dollar is now worth $1.10 in Canadian currency; conversely, the Canadian dollar is worth 91 cents in American terms. If the Canadian financial experts and the Government should decide upon a return to par (a movement in which the American Government would have a distinct interest) the change is unlikely to be made before this tourist season is ended. The cheaper Canadian dollar is at present one of our strongest attractions to visiting Americans, and Canada needs American tourist dollars more than it wants a par Canadian dollar.

New Colonialism In Puerto Rico

By W. ARTHUR LEWIS

FLYING six hours south from New York, we come to Puerto Rico, the "Gateway to the Caribbean and to Latin America". The epithet is well chosen, for Puerto Rico looks both ways. Spanish is the language of the people, the radio and the newspapers; and Spanish is its pride. But for fifty years this has been an American colony, and its ideas, its little skyscrapers, its roads, its cars, and its general orientation are American.

ITS life is Caribbean. As soon as one reaches the tropics one feels again that the secret of good living is known only between the two 23 degrees parallel of latitude. Driving to the beach for a Sunday morning dip, for one long moment one envies the Puerto Rican middle class its good living, its lovely airy houses, its big, hideously grinning American cars, its apparent freedom from care, its picnics, its six children, even (reputedly but slanderously) its three wives. The moment passes, as the splendid facade of the capital city gives way to the poverty of the countryside. The secret of good living has not been widely shared.

Distinctions are of income rather than of colour. To the casual observer, unfamiliar with Latin types, eighty per cent of the people look various shades of brown. But actually three-quarters claim to be white, and are accepted as white, because the rule, contrary to normal U.S. practice, is that if you are not black you are white. Negroes are to be met inter-married at all social levels and, though they are undoubtedly a shade less acceptable, colour prejudice is not acute.

THE main problem in this island is that there are too many mouths to feed. Two million people live on a million acres of arable land. Put the whole population of the world into the United States of America, and you get a density about equal to Puerto Rico's. And it increases by three per cent. per annum.

The Government is trying hard. Nowhere else in the world is any people putting more drive and enthusiasm into a programme of economic development. The island has been a complete revolution of ideas in the past ten years. For fifty years its leaders were preoccupied with demanding independence from the United States, and the island's politics were noted for their extravagant emotionalism and flamboyance. Today, this energy is practically all harnessed for economic regeneration.

◇ ◇ ◇

GREAT sums are pouring into agricultural development. Every ounce of water that can be trapped is being harnessed for hydro-electricity and for irrigation, and the limits of cultivation are being pushed as far as possible. New stations have been created for agricultural research and for experimenting with new crops. There is an extensive programme for rural education, co-operatives, resettlement, and agricultural credit. The sugar industry is highly efficient, and subsidiary crops are being brought up to date.

BUT when all this is done it is still impossible for agriculture to employ more than a fraction of this dense population. New jobs have to be created off the land in order to cope with endemic unemployment and with an extraordinary fertility.

For this purpose, reliance is placed on attracting manufacturing industries to the island. The local market is attractive, but small; the intention is chiefly to export to the U.S. mainland, which includes Puerto Rico within its tariff area. This programme has had spectacular success so far. With high productivity and low wages (3/- to 4/- per hour, low for the U.S. but high for the United Kingdom) light industries can undersell continental manufacturers in the New York market, and branch factories are being tried out. The island has hardly any raw materials, and must therefore keep out of heavy industries, but it has fair prospects in industries where transport costs are small. Seventy-five new factories have been started in the past three years, and the movement is gaining momentum.

THEN there is the tourist trade. Puerto Rico has beaches, mountains, moonlight, Spanish historical monuments, handicrafts, beautiful women, romance, and all the usual Caribbean stuff. To foster the trade, the Government has just built a 7,000,000 dollar hotel which it has leased to private management. This is a super, for supers, but there are also smaller and cheaper hotels for you and me.

Puerto Ricans are proud of the energy and drive which they are putting into their "bootstraps operation". They have suggested to the United Nations that their island be used as a model school for persons who want to learn the technique of developing backward countries. From their own resources they have voted 50,000 dollars a year to be spent on scholarships for technicians coming from abroad, whom they will be glad to show around, and they have asked the U.S. Government to set aside another 1,000,000 dollars from the Point Four allocation, for the same purpose. It is this same pride that caused the island to invite the United Nations to hold in Puerto Rico in May its international conference of "experts" on the development of backward areas. The experts enjoyed equally the unrivalled hospitality of the islanders, and the opportunity of seeing in practice what they were discussing in theory.

THE maker of this revolution of ideas is one of the world's greatest statesmen, the present Governor, Munoz Marin. Munoz is a bilingual Puerto Rican, who has succeeded both in capturing the imagination of his people, and in persuading them to postpone further consideration of the independence issue until they have succeeded in making the island self-supporting.

For self-supporting it is not. It is self-governing; it elects its own Governor, and is as free within the American system as is Southern Rhodesia within the British system. But its economy is buttressed by the fact that federal services spend heavily in the island, while federal taxation is waived. In fact, the U.S. Federal Government spends in Puerto Rico about 150,000,000 dollars a year. It is realization of this that has put the independence issue into cold storage, for who can afford an independence that would cost a quarter of the national income?

"WHAT fools we should be", said my Puerto Rican chauffeur, "if we were to give up the only colony we possess," which is the United States of America".

In this sense, Puerto Rico is the ideal colony. Its people govern themselves, and because of this they welcome any one from the metropolis who is willing to help with knowledge or capital, in the civil service, in business or otherwise. Because of this, too, they have now channelled into development the heat which went formerly into anti-imperialist politics. At the same time they get the benefits of colonialism in lying behind a helpful tariff and in receiving enormous subventions. This is new-style colonialism, American pattern. How different the world picture would be if other imperial powers were to follow this example!

(Special to The Examiner from the London Observer.)

"BLEST BE THE TIE THAT BINDS"

Letter To The Editor

NEWFOUNDLAND STILL HAS A THIN SKIN

Sir: I have read your editorial "Newfoundland has a thin skin" in your issue of June 26, and I would like to make a few comments.

On June 24, Newfoundland celebrated the 453rd anniversary of her discovery, and to fittingly observe the occasion high-ranking representatives of the other nine provinces were invited to Newfoundland, and were, I understand, given a most warm and hearty welcome to the shores of Canada's newest province. At a time when other newspapers are writing about Newfoundland in a very favourable light, I was rather surprised when the heading "Newfoundland has a thin skin" caught my eye as I scanned the editorial columns of your paper. At such a time as this when Newfoundland is celebrating the 453rd anniversary of her discovery, it would have been much better if you had devoted your energies to writing an editorial of an informative nature which would give Canadians some information about their 10th province. I, sir, have found that many Canadians are abominably ignorant of Newfoundland, and it is high time that they learned something about this province. To give you an example of this ignorance, one Canadian in Saskatchewan asked me the question; What language do the people of Newfoundland speak? At first I was rather amused, but later I felt sory for that person who knew so little about the 10th province of his own country.

With direct reference to your editorial: you reach the conclusion that "Newfoundland has a thin skin" by taking two extracts from Newfoundland newspapers. Regarding the extract taken from the Western Star in which the editor takes exception to the words of the Minister of Finance that "Newfoundland has imposed a considerable net burden on the Canadian budget": I agree for the most part with these words, but I do not agree with their general implications. The Minister of Finance would seem to imply that Canada is getting little or nothing from Newfoundland. This, of course, is not true, and I suspect that the editor of the Western Star objects, not so much to the actual words of the Finance Minister but to their implications. In fact, Mr. Editor, ever since Confederation took place last year most of the emphasis has been on what Canada has to offer Newfoundland—an entirely one-sided emphasis, and I think the editor of the Western Star had reason to object.

With reference to the comment of the Evening Telegram on the Parliamentary Press Gallery's rather feeble attempt at humour: It is my humble opinion, Mr. Editor, that Newfoundland has been the butt of too many jokes of this type. I think Newfoundlanders can take a joke as well as the people of any other province, but they are a proud and independent people (that is why so many of them were opposed to Confederation), and they resent any implication that they are beggars, as it were, at Canada's doorstep. The design of the flag with the baby having its hand outstretched would seem to suggest this. I think that the objection of the Evening Telegram to the brand of humour displayed by the Parliamentary Press Gallery is quite justified.

I take particular exception to the following words especially the ones which I have underlined: Confederation will enable the island to rid itself of some of the disgraceful conditions which have characterized it for so long. Here you are writing in vague generalities, and I would gather from this statement that you have never been in Newfoundland. I myself have travelled in Newfoundland extensively, and hence I am in a position to say something about this province. While I would say that conditions in Newfoundland are not as favourable, perhaps, as they are in certain other parts of the Dominion, I would certainly not speak of the "disgraceful conditions which have characterized Newfoundland for so long". This is not true. You would have us believe that a characteristic of Newfoundland is the disgraceful conditions which exist there—again I say: I don't think you have ever been in Newfoundland or you wouldn't make such a statement. I may say, Mr. Editor, that I have seen conditions here in the mainland provinces which are none too favourable. I could elaborate on that statement, but I won't as my letter is long enough already!

Writing, of the type which your editorial on Newfoundland presents, is the cause of the disunity which exists today between the provinces of Canada—for such disunity does exist. At a time when there seems to be a definite movement under way to promote Canadian unity and a Canadian national consciousness your editorial is extremely ill-timed and out of place. You are certainly not doing anything to promote Canadian unity by writing such an editorial. I suggest that you be more constructive in your editorials in the future, and do your part to promote Canadian unity.

In conclusion, Mr. Editor, I would say: Why not go to Newfoundland sometime? It is not a rich country economically although I think there is room for development. But it is rich spiritually, and rich also in heritage and tradition and in the quality of its people. And I am sure that as time goes by, Newfoundland will take her rightful place among the 10 provinces, and will make a definite contribution to our Canadian nation.

Yours very truly,
MORLEY F. HODDER.

ED. NOTE: We refer our correspondent to several informative and complimentary editorials on Newfoundland in these columns during the past twelve months. And our reference to disgraceful conditions was no generality: we referred to the low educational standards of the island, and much that stems from them.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

O give thanks unto the Lord; call upon his name: make known his deeds among the people . . . Glory ye in his holy name: let the heart of them rejoice that seek the Lord. (Ps. 105: 1, 3.)

◇ ◇ ◇

Arise, shine; for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee. For, behold, the darkness shall cover the earth, and gross darkness the people: but the Lord shall arise upon thee, and his glory shall be seen upon thee. And the Gentiles shall come to thy light, and kings to the brightness of thy rising. (Isa. 60: 1-3.)

And Jesus walked in the temple in Solomon's porch. Then came the Jews round about him, and said unto him, How long dost thou make us to doubt? If thou be the Christ, tell us plainly.

Jesus answered them, I told you, and ye believed not: the works that I do in my Father's name, they bear witness of me . . . My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me . . . My Father, which gave them me is greater than all; and no man is able to pluck them out of my Father's hand.

I and my Father are one. (John 10, 23-25, 27, 29, 30.)

A BRITISH OPINION

"The Tories ought to stop these footballers coming back saying there are no countries worse off than England."

Sain Unthrones Phillies As Braves Triumph 3-1

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Rabbit ball or no, the 20-Victory-Club for pitchers is headed for a big year.

Johnny Sain of Boston Braves, Bob Lemon of Cleveland and Art Houtteman of Detroit hit the 10-triumph mark Wednesday, and the season won't be half over until July 9.

Eight more are one step back. Another dozen still have a chance to crash the exclusive lodge.

Now 10 victories in June are no guarantee of 20 come October. But it's a good bet. Only seven made it last year, five in the American and two in the National.

Sain, staging the "comeback of the year" for the Braves, made No. 10 a big one. He knocked Philadelphia Phillies out of first place in the National League with his 3-1 decision, spacing eight hits.

Brooklyn, a 5-3 winner over New York, slid back into the lead when the Phillies bowed.

Now Leading

Sain flopped last season when he dipped to a 10-17 record. Now he is ahead of his 1948-pennant-winning pace. That year he won 24 games.

Preacher Roe, a 20-game candidate, won his ninth for Brooklyn on Gene Hermanski's homer that broke a 3-3 seven-inning tie.

Carl Furillo, hit on the head by a Sheldon Jones pitch in the eighth inning, hammered a two-run homer and singled in earlier appearances. Furillo suffered no serious injury.

Chicago massacred St. Louis Cardinals 15-3, the Cubs' biggest total of the season. Roy Smalley was high man for the Cubs with his 12th homer, a triple, double and single in five trips.

Pittsburgh edged Cincinnati 6-5.

Needed Win

Houtteman, Detroit's fine 22-year-old righthander, actually was the first major leaguer to win his 10th. He did it in the afternoon, whipping Chicago 6-2. Both Sain and Lemon joined him at night.

Detroit needed the victory to protect a 4½-game American League edge over New York Yankees. Hoot Evers' 420-foot inside-the-park homer with a man on broke a 1-1 tie. Don Kolloway added two more in the sixth with a homer.

Cleveland ran up a whopping 18-2 score against St. Louis Browns, scoring 11 runs in the seventh inning. That made it easy for Lemon to ride home for victory No. 10.

The Indians gave Lemon a four-run cushion in the first inning on Al Rosen's 20th homer, two doubles and a single. Luke Easter and Jim Hegan homered in the big seventh when 15 men paraded to the plate.

Boston Red Sox won their sixth straight under the direction of manager Steve O'Neill, drubbing Philadelphia, 6-2. Ted Williams hit his 23rd homer, Vern Stephens his 17th and Dom DiMaggio is third in the attack on Lou Brissie.

Allie Reynolds cut down Washington with three hits as the Yanks won 5-1.

Lindsay Trounced By Bowmanville

BOWMANVILLE, June 29. — Bowmanville gained a full game on Lindsay here Wednesday night in the battle for fourth place in the Lakeshore Intermediate "B" Baseball League.

Hooper's single in the final frame drove home the winning run and hoisted the home Brookdales to a 3 to 2 decision. Lindsay's two runs came in the first inning when Karrys hit a home run with a mate aboard.

After Karry's potent clout, Legree, on the winners' hill, was impressive, allowing only one more hit and striking out three. He walked only two.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Aubrey (Dit) Clapper of Peterborough has been elected a member of the board of directors of Boston Bruins.

Clapper, who starred for the Bruins for 20 seasons after joining the club as a 20-year-old rookie in 1927, resigned as coach after the 1948-49 season to devote full time to his sports goods business.

A star right winger and defenceman, Clapper became the only active player to be elected to the International Hockey Hall of Fame in 1947.

The Bruins have been without a coach since George (Buck) Boucher severed his connections with the club at the close of last season and there has been much speculation that Adams and general manager Art Ross desired Clapper to return to their bench for the 1950-51 season.

"We are unable to name our new coach at this time," a club spokesman said, "and we can not indicate just when we will be able to do so."

Charlie Conacher who quit Chicago Black Hawks at the close of last season, also has been named as a Boston coaching possibility.

Brazil, one of the favorites to win the world soccer cup, was unexpectedly held to a 2-2 draw by Switzerland at Sao Paulo, Brazil Wednesday. The Brazilians will have to beat Yugoslavia at Rio Saturday if they are to reach the final playoffs.

Yugoslavia easily defeated Mexico 4-1 in the other pool a match and leads by one point in this pool.

Beau Jack, former lightweight champion, stopped 22-year-old Ronnie Harper of Detroit Wednesday night in the fifth round of their scheduled 10-round bout at Indianapolis.

The former shoe shine boy had an edge of 5½ pounds at 141, plus a lot of experience. The fight was stopped at 2:13 of the fifth.

The Canadian Lawn Tennis Association has completed its 1950 Davis Cup team with the selection of George Robinson of Montreal, a recognized doubles star.

Canada's four-man representation against Australia in the first-round American zone tie here July 14-16 will be made up of Robinson and two other Montrealers—Henri Rochon and Brendan Macken—and the young Vancouver star Lorne Main.

Philadelphia Phillies of the National League will hold a four-day baseball try-out school at Hargreaves Park in Kirkland Lake July 10-13.

Age limit for the school is 16-22 and Philadelphia scouts Dale Jones and Pat Colgan will be in charge.

A similar school will be held in Sarnia earlier next month.

Three professional hockey clubs of the Chicago Black Hawk organization will train in Northern Ontario next September.

The Black Hawks of the National Hockey League will work out at North Bay, along with their American Hockey League farm team, the St. Louis Flyers. And the Milwaukee team of the United States Hockey League is to train at New Liskeard.

All three teams move into their training camps Sept. 10.

Many members of the Galt Black Hawks, Ontario Hockey Association junior team, are expected to be on hand when the workouts start at North Bay.

Williams At Loggerheads With Fans And Writers

By JOE REICHLER

BOSTON, June 29 —(AP)— Most baseball players seek to win the favor of fans and sports writers.

Not so Ted Williams. He is at sword's point with all but a few Boston newspaper men. And the exchange of insults between Williams and Fenway Park's left-field bleacher crowd has already caused an explosion.

"I don't give a damn about the fans," says the Boston Red Sox outfielder. "Most of them can go to hell.

"The majority of the fans are all right but those bums in left field are just plain morons."

Why doesn't he get along with writers?

"They can go to hell, too. Not all. But most of them all they're interested in is digging up dirt."

Can't Stand Reporters

A Boston newspaper man Al Hershberg, of the Post, says:

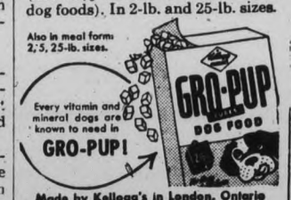
"He'll do anything for the underdog. But for some reason he'll not get along with a fellow who can help him, such as newspapermen.

"He just doesn't want people to see he's a nice guy. He's great with people individually but hates people collectively."

Few Boston writers talk to Williams except when necessary. And that's the way Ted wants it.

What about those gestures he made in the direction of the fans during a doubleheader with Detroit Tigers late in May?

"I'd rather forget about that. I've regretted that incident ever since. I was sincere when I apologized publicly to the fans."



In writing about the incident that Williams would like to forget, Rev. John S. Kennedy, who writes for the Catholic Transcript of Hartford, Conn., said:

"What Williams did was disgusting. But what about the good old fans? They were like a pack of animals, howling, bellowing, screeching, yelping, yowling in a way not even remotely human. They behaved like denizens of a zoo which have not been fed or watered for a week..."

Rochester Edges Springfield In 5-4 Victory

By The Associated Press

Don Richmond, veteran third baseman of Rochester Red Wings, is a manager's delight.

The bespectacled infielder, one of the best clutch hitters in the International League, always is in top shape. He doesn't smoke or drink. There's little chance that he will be tossed out of a game by an umpire. Richmond doesn't use profanity.

Richmond, who once had a whirl with Philadelphia Athletics, is enjoying one of his finest years at bat and attributes his improved hitting to playing winter ball in Cuba.

Wednesday night Richmond socked his ninth home run of the season to give the league-leading Wings a 5-4 10-inning victory over the slumping Springfield Cubs. The Cubs now have lost nine straight games.

Whip Orioles

The second-place Montreal Royals remained a game behind the Wings by defeating Baltimore Orioles 5-1.

Lefty Irv Medlinger had the Royals shut out 1-0 going into the eighth inning when the roof caved in. The Royals shoved across all of their runs on three walks with five hits. Don Thompson and Johnny Welaj drove home two runs apiece. Clyde King, lifted for a pinch-hitter in the big eighth, gained his seventh victory.

Jersey City's third-place Giants knocked off Toronto Maple Leafs 9-6 to stay 1½ games back of the Red Wings

The Giants scored three runs in the first inning and were never headed although the Leafs threatened several times.

Lefty Kent Peterson turned in his first victory in six decisions as he pitched Syracuse Chiefs to a 5-2 victory over the last-place Buffalo Bisons.

Peterson allowed six hits and walked seven but pitched brilliantly after the fourth inning, yielding only one hit and one walk over the last five rounds. Peterson also fanned seven.

STRETCH OUT—Tookie Gilbert reaches desperately for home plate with his hand, but Del Rice of the Cardinals made the tag on the Giants' first baseman in the Polo Grounds. The front end of an attempted double steal, Gilbert broke for home when Rice threw to head off Eddie Stanky going to second. Shortstop Eddie Miller cut off the throw, fired back to Rice in time.

Mimico Laces Weston 23-8

MIMICO, June 29 (CP) — Mimico's lowly Mountaineers turned on Weston Lions Wednesday night and administered a 23-8 drubbing in an Ontario Lacrosse Association senior game.

The win was Mimico's second in 10 starts and moved them into a tie with Weston for sixth place.

Weston, minus two key players, put up a much stiffer battle than the score would indicate, but suffered a temporary lapse in the second period, when Mounties rapped home 11 goals.

Defenceman Chuck Simpson paced the winners with four goals, while Kenny Dixon and Scoop Hayes each nabbed three. Lumley and Southwell each scored twice for the losers.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

We have already (once or twice) mentioned the open tournament, mixed doubles, for Saturday — that's that. Now, about our other big open tournament — the Lift Lock Gold Trophy for men's doubles. It will be held all day Wednesday, July 12, and that is not far away. The entry list will close one week from tonight. The response from the outside clubs has been equal to other years, but our own members have been somewhat slow. No, the entry list of 96 pairs is not yet complete, but, boys, it is mighty close. Don't be surprised that this coming week-end may see a full entry. And when you consider that the prize list is valued at $1,000 and that there will be 20 sets of prizes given—or put it this way: when you consider that one pair out of every five pairs receives a prize, is it any wonder that each year we have to refuse entries? You local boys, get busy and contact Robt. Gamble, or the visitors may just get in ahead of you.

Down at Cobourg on the half-holiday the ladies' club was represented by six rinks—almost half of the total entry, but not quite. Two of the six rinks got in the prize department.

Cobourg Silver Cup and each a shopping bag (3 wins)—Mrs. J. Cullen, Mrs. N. Killingbeck, Mrs. J. Arnold, Mrs. W. Hepburn, skip.

Each a set of bridge cards (1 win)—Mrs. H. Wilson, Mrs. A. Jackson, Mrs. R. Dyer, Mrs. C. Renaud, skip.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

The surface at Miller Bowl is dirt, good hard dirt. It is definitely not a waxed dance floor as in the Owen Sound arena. And for that reason we expect the Petes will surprise the OLA league-leading senior Owen Sound Crescents here tomorrow night at 8.45 when they tee off on each other. The Crescents won 10-5 at home o'er the Creighton crew on Tuesday, but the Petes shy two men, drew a lot of minor slashing penalties and found the slippery footing tough on their dashes. We rather expect 'em to come up with a victory at home Friday, but it'll be a terrific scrap as the Crescents aren't atop the loop by accident. They're good.

* * * * * *

Watching the rugged senior brand of lacrosse, you might think that this game—like pro wrestling—has practically no rules. It has plenty. But how often does one see Sec. 18 of Rule 10 enforced strictly? It says: "A player shall not hold an opponent's stick with his hands, arms or between his legs, nor hold, strike or trip him with his stick, run in front of an opponent or interfere with him in any way to keep him from the ball until another players reaches it. Nor shall he bodycheck any opponent not in possession of the ball." Or subsection (i): "Interfere in any way with another player who is pursuing an opponent." Or as in (k) "Attempt to influence the decision of the referee, judge of play or umpires." Hah!

* * * * * *

Why Do They Do It?

Over at the Bowl recently we saw a pitcher toss a slightly darkened softball to the ump and ask for a brand new one, which he got. In a senior ball game in Toronto not long ago we noted a catcher examine a baseball that had been fouled into the screen and then ask the umpire for a better one, which he got. And we wondered what sort of diamond strategy those incidents were. The opposition in neither case objected, and why should they? That was playing right into their hands. The ordinary intelligent pitcher or catcher will use a darkened or damaged ball just as long as he can get away with it.

* * * * * *

It is all to the advantage of a pitcher to try to whistle a dark ball—rather than a shiny new one—past the batter. The bright one gives the batter more chance to hit it. And a ball with the covering cut or roughened permits the pitcher to get more "stuff" on it, whereas a brand new one is slippery in his grip. Big league ballsters—knowing the rule about discoloring balls—manage to let a new one fall in the dirt and they manage to scoop up a bit of dirt as they pick it up, rubbing it briskly ere letting the twirler have it. Indeed, they often have dirt in one hand and saliva on the glove as they really work the new apple till it no longer shines.

Girls Play It Snappy

Both girls' softball games at the Bowl last evening were keen and interesting. Ashby's broke through a good defence put up by Marines to tally four in the seventh for a 4-0 victory. The hustling Westclox colleens took a 6-2 decision over Electrics, who went well most of the way but kicked the cabbage around the patch at a few critical times. We hear Al Watkins may return to the managerical role of the Outboards. The two tilts last eve were run off in fast time. Contests tomorrow: CGE vs. Ashby's, and Westclox vs. Marines. The Clockers then go on their holidays.

A U.P. dispatch out of Boston says: "Aubrey (Dit) Clapper, forward and defenceman of the Boston Bruins for 20 years, has been elected a member of the club's board of directors, it was announced today. President Weston W. Adams revealed the selection of Clapper, who joined the Bruins as a 20-year-old rookie in 1927 and played until February of 1947, when he became the first and only active player to be elected to the Hockey Hall of Fame. Clapper was named coach after his retirement as a player, but left after another season to devote full time to his business at Peterborough, Ont." Good stuff, Dit.

Peterborough Golf

Some good scores are marked these days as Peterborough Club golfers are settling down to business. The first round of the club championships has been completed after a number of close contests. Ross Cutmore, Jack Hardill, Joe Watson, Herb Bradburn, Les Reid, Arnold O'Heron, Hugh Waddell and Don Marquis are the lucky eight to playoff in the second round. The draw is posted on the board for the Westclox and Stratton Trophies, and players are asked to contact opponents and get playing.

They are all talking of Reg. Stewart's hole-in-one on the 16th par three 195-yard hole. Reg. used a driver into a stiff wind to drop the ball on the edge, and it rolled in for the ace. Gord Harrison, Arnold O'Heron and Bruce Meredith (Kawartha) completed the foursome.

Westclox Gains A Neat One Over Electrics

Westclox girl softballers romped to another victory at the Bowl last night, taking a 6-2 triumph over CGE. They played their usual brand of heads-up ball to earn the duke, and both sides showed lots of zip in a real game one-hour joust. The score was quite tight right to the finish, the Clockers counting three markers in the top of the ninth inning. Each side had nine hits, but CGE were a bit loose in the field. Both pitchers threw steady ball most of the route.

J. Vass and B. Morrow stood out defensively for the winners, with M. Batley and M. Owen shining on the other side. B. Morrow and I. Bullock each had three safeties for Westclox at the plate, as B. Anderson clouted a three-bagger. M. Hodson, M. Owen and T. DeCarlo each came through with two hits for CGE, and M. Batley banged out a triple.

Dodgers Defeat Locals 8-7 In Intermediate Ball Fray

A twilight game called at the end of the seventh with Colborne Dodgers leading 8-7 over the local intermediates provided the Dodgers with their second win of the year Wednesday night. The locals wiped out a six-run deficit in the fifth and sixth innings to tie the score but in the top of the seventh Colborne pushed in the winning run on two hits off relief hurler Carmen Jaquith.

Jaquith relieved starter Brian Wade at the end of four and one-third innings when the Dodgers began to feel out Wade's deliveries. Up to the fourth, Wade was only touched for three hits while his backing slipped twice to allow three runs to score.

In the second with two men out and one runner on, McGrath errored on the third strike to allow Rowsome to reach first. Black, the Dodger catcher, immediately slammed a triple into centre to score two runs. Cleary flied out to end the rally. A walk, a stolen base and a pass ball combined with a single by Frank Ball in the third for the Dodgers' third run.

Two errors by the intermediates' infield opened the Dodger drive in the fourth. Black again did the honors by singling to left scoring two runs. The next two batters managed to reach base as the intermediates tried to settle down by knocking them off one at a time. Cec Hall, the shortstop and eventually winning pitcher, singled to centre to score the third and fourth runs of the inning. After a walk to Post, Wade was lifted for Jaquith.

The Fatal Seventh

Jaquith tamed the Dodgers until the fatal seventh when Eric Cowie, a pinch-hitter, doubled to right to start the inning. Beatty, a second pinch-hitter, singled to score Cowie for the winning run. Jaquith allowed three hits in his appearance and Wade five.

While Dodgers were nicking two Peterborough hurlers, the Petes were touching three Colborne flingers. Charlie Hall started but gave way to Bill Ball in the third when his arm tired. During the second inning the Petes managed to score a run on an error at short followed by a single by Currie to right.

His successor, Ball, ran into trouble in the third but with two aboard his team pulled through to help him out. After an easy fourth the Petes drifted into Ball for three hits and four runs. Legrow started the spree with a double later scoring on a single by Don Pagett. Ray Fitzgerald reached first on a fielder's choice which caught Conway at the plate. George Sullivan then homered over the right field fence into the river for the last runs of the inning.

Drove Ball Out

The Petes waved goodbye to Ball in the sixth when he issued a base on balls to McGrath, hit Legrow and allowed Conway to double to deep centre scoring McGrath and Legrow. Cec Hall was sent to the rescue and with help retired the side.

Hall found himself in trouble in the last of the seventh with the Dodgers out in front by one run. Wade slipped a single through short to advance to third on Sullivan's single. Jaquith received a free trip to fill the bases. McGrath then tried a bunt which nipped Wade at the plate. Legrow popped out to second to end the game.

Ashby Colleens Take Win Over Marines

Ashby's blanked Marines 4-0 in a classy girls' softball fixture in the Bowl last evening, scoring all their runs in the seventh on a couple of miscues and bunched blows. The winners gave D. McFadden fine support with one error which wasn't costly being their only slip. Their twirler threw seven-hit ball and had six strikeouts in a good showing. P. Williams also pitched well for Outboards, giving up nine hits and striking out seven.

B. Callan and E. McFadden went best defensively for the victors in this keen contest, while M. Behan and M. Hill appeared the pick of the other side. The game lasted just 10 minutes over the hour. E. McFadden and L. Jordan had two hits each for Ashby's, and M. Carr led the losers at bat with two safe blows in as many official appearances.

The teams:

Ashby's: E. McFadden, 3b; D. Callan, cf; L. Jordan, c, ss; M. Stewart 1b; I. Downer, 2b, rf; G. Dracup, lf; B. Callan, ss, 2b; P. Stewart, rf; J. Reynolds, c; D. McFadden, p.

Lewis-Martin Team Squelches Milton Berle

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, June 29 (AP) Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis are back from the east after a remarkable achievement—topping Milton Berle.

Berle is the recognized master of the flip quip, the fast squelch and the upstage technique.

That's why the trade marvelled when two such newcomers as Martin and Lewis whipped Berle at his own game. On his television show he often seemed bewildered when two such newcomers as by their wild antics.

I asked Lewis, the funny man of the duo, how he was able to beat Berle.

"Very simple," he replied. "I didn't try to play smart. I was very humble—just the funny kid who did crazy things. That threw him off completely."

Berle Loses

Lewis said he has used other tactics when he has met Berle on night club floors. "I've taken him on three times and cut him to ribbons," he said.

Lewis admitted he has feuded with Berle for some time. "I like Milton, but I don't like the way he treats other performers," he remarked.

Then why do Martin and Lewis appear on his TV show?

"It pays good money," Lewis answered. "And besides, you get an audience of 31,000,000. That's too good to pass up."

Hear More Arguments In Margarine Appeal

LONDON, June 29 CP)—L. E. Beaulieu, representing the Attorney-General of Quebec, Wednesday argued that the judicial committee of the Privy Council should affirm a judgment of the Supreme Court of Canada which permits the sale of margarine in the Dominion.

The Attorney - General of Quebec and Senator W. D. Euler of Ontario, who led the campaign against a federal law banning margarine sales, are opposing an appeal brought by the Canadian Federation of Agrisulture against the Supreme Court's ruling. The hearing continues today.

Beaulieu submitted that the words 'civil rights," used in their widest sense, included not merely rights flowing from civil and commercial contracts, but also what he would call the common law of any individual to engage in any profession or occupation of his choice.

Furthermore, it conceded the right of an individual to carry on any trade or business he might select for purposes of earning a living.

Ask Chevrier Better CNR Pension Plan

OTTAWA, June 29 — (CP) — John Diefenbaker (PC, Lake Centre) asked Transport Minister Chevrier Wednesday to better the position of 29,000 retired Canadian National Railway employees who, he said, receive pensions of only $25 a month.

Rising during Commons study of transport estimates, he said the pension may or may not have been adequate at one time but today it was "unjustifiably low" in view of the high cost of living.

Mr. Chevrier said the railway's directors had studied the question and had advised the railway brotherhoods that they were unable to include a pension increase in the CNR's annual budget.

UK Makes Million On Canadian Apples

LONDON, June 29 — (CP) — Britain made a profit of about £500,000 ($1,500,000) in the disposition of gift apples from Britsih Columbia, Food Minister Maurice Webb told the House of Commons Wednesday.

He said Premier Byron Johnson of British Columbia was in full agreement with the way Britain handled the gift "but as this resulted in a profit we are considering what is the best way of dealing with the profit."

Hotel Suing Bob Hope For Libel

NEW YORK, June 29—(AP)—Bob Hope faces a $100,000 libel and slander suit because of a wisecrack about a Manhattan hotel.

The Nesa Realty Corporation, which owns the Forrest Hotel on West 49th Street, sued Leslie Towne Hope—the comedian's real name—and the Paramount Pictures Theatres Corporation, which operates the Paramount Theatre.

The suit involves a remark Hope made during a personal appearance on the stage of the theatre. The complaint in the suit said the remark was as follows:

"I got into town today and the mayor met me and gave me the key to to the city and I checked in at the Forrest Hotel on 49th Street, where they gave me a cell—the maid changes the rat every day."

Queen Of Lakes Nearing End

HAMILTON, June 29 —(CP)— A former "queen of the lakes," the S.S. Manitoba is nearing the end of her 61-year-old career.

The Manitoba, once a Canadian Pacific steamships passenger carrier, is berthed at the Wentworth Street docks. She still looks sleek and trim from a distance but the big, white steamer is gradually being disemboweled by a wrecking crew.

Built in Owen Sound in 1889, she is 303 feet long, 38 feet wide and draws 4.8 feet, with a gross tonnage of 2,616 and registered tonnage of 1,699. Retired from service, she was purchased by the Steel Company of Canada and will be towed off to the scrap yards as soon as stripping is completed.

WET BLANKET—This blanket dashed hopes of searchers that any of the 58 persons aboard a missing Northwest Airlines DC-4 were still alive. It was found in Lake Michigan, where the plane was last heard from. Examining it in Benton Harbor, Mich., are Paul Benscoter (LEFT), of the airline company, and two rescuers, James Bryson and Captain N. Fulford.

Shotgun Fired Arrest Farmer

ST. CATHARINES, June 29—(CP)—A woman screaming from a rooftop sent police racing to a Queenston St. home Wednesday where they arrested a shotgun toting farmer, Frank Kasperek, 47 of RR 4, St. Catharines.

Cpl. Vic Dawson and Constable Gord Morris forced their way into the house. Kasperek was found struggling on the floor of a bedroom with his wife while nearby lay the smoking shotgun. Mrs. Mary Kasperek was half choked when police separated the two, and Kasperek was bleeding from a wound in his head, apparently cause by a part of a blast from the gun.

Police said Kasperek may be charged with attempted murder or committed to a mental institution.

The Kasperek's have not been living together for some time. Frank appeared in court Monday on a charge of assaulting his wife and breaking her arm.

See First Thawing In UK Wage Freeze

LONDON, June 29 —(CP)— The first signs of an official thaw in Britain's 2½-year-old wage freeze was reported Wednesday.

A special committee representing organized labor, is understood to have recommended that the present rigid policy be relaxed.

In future, unions would be instructed to approve only those wage claims which they regard as "reasonable."

The recommendation was made by a special economic committee of the Trades Union Congress representing some 8,000,000 workers. It must still be approved by the TUC's general council, a 33-member executive body.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Find 60 Bodies After Explosion

DAMASCUS, Syria, June 29—(AP)—Rescue workers had uncovered 60 bodies today in wreckage from a fuel depot explosion near Homs 100 miles north of Damascus. A late count showed 93 persons injured in the blast Tuesday.

Reliable sources said 16 houses had been destroyed by the explosion and material loss was "very heavy."

A fire which swept through the fuel depot was reported to have caused the explosion.

An Arab news agency dispatch received in Cairo said the damage at Homs was stimated at the equivalent of $630,000.

The Duke of Edinburgh, Princess Elizabeth's husband, left Homs only 25 minutes before the blast. He is on a tour of the middle East.

Glad To Investigate Car Radio Trouble

OTTAWA, June 29 — (CP) — Transport Minister Chevrier said Wednesday in the Commons his department would be glad to investigate any cases where leaks in power transmission lines caused interference on car radios.

He made that statement in reply to G. K. Fraser (PC, Peterborough West) who asked if the department could do anything about such interference.

Mr. Fraser said the minister could locate many spots where there was such interference by listening to the radio in his car. Mr. Chevrier said he was not fortunate enough to have a car radio.

Store Takes Fire

LONDON, Ont., June 29 (CP) —Firemen had to don respirators late Wednesday to combat a fast-travelling blaze that destroyed the interior of Marsh's drygoods store in the east side Dundas St. business area. Loss was estimated at about $45,000. The cause was not determined.

Shower Held For Helen Robinson

HAVELOCK, June 29 (ENS) Miss Helen Robinson was hostess on Monday evening for a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Joan Dooley, whose marriage to William H. Peters, will take place in Havelock United Church on July 3.

A novel idea in decorations was carried out when the bride-elect was led to a decorated chair at one end of the room and presented by the hostess with a cluster of pink and white streamers, each one leading to a guest, who offered their congratulations.

The guest of honor was then presented by Miss Robinson with the gifts, which were arranged in a large basket decorated in red and white.

There were games and dancing and prize winners for the bingo were Miss Elva Gerow, Mrs. C. Toms, Miss Shirley Bennett, Miss Marie Vanderburgh, Mrs. R. Campney, Mrs. D. Burridge, Miss Dooley and Miss Robinson.

Lunch was served by the hostess.

Congregations Unite For Summer Services

HAVELOCK, June 29 (ENS) The congregations of Knox Presbyterian Church and Havelock United Church will hold joint services for the months of July and August, one being held each Sunday.

The services in July will be at 11 a.m. in Knox Church with the Rev. F. R. Vanderburgh in charge and for August they will be held in the United Church at 7.30 p.m. the Rev. R D. Duncanson in charge.

Buy '49 Cod Stocks From Nfld. Fishermen

OTTAWA, June 29 —(CP)— The Fisheries Prices Support Board will buy 1949 salt cod stocks still in the hands of Newfoundland fishermen, Fisheries Minister Mayhew announced Wednesday in the Commons.

At the same time, the Minister said the government had decided not to accept representations from Newfoundland and Quebec that a floor price be placed beneath the 1950 catch of codfish.

The fish purchased in Newfoundland will be paid for at two-thirds the price received by fishermen for their 1948 production, the Minister said.

The board will buy only the "relatively small quantity" of salt cod in the hands of the fishermen. It will not take up those stocks in the hands of processors and exporters.

Court Dismisses Charge Against Striker

LONDON, Ont., June 29 (CP) —A charge against one striker at the Empire Brass Manufacturing Company plant was dismissed in police court Wednesday and a charge against another was withdrawn.

Joseph R. Ward, 23, was freed on a charge of causing wilful damage to an automobile because Magistrate D. B. Menzies said it was laid under the wrong section of the Criminal Code. Crown Attorney C. C. Savage said a new charge would be laid.

The crown withdrew a charge of obstructing police, laid against 19-year-old Aubrey Gibson. Both resulted from police clashes with a picket line.

Re-Elect Talmadge

ATLANTA, Ga., June 29 (AP) Georgia Wednesday re-elected Herman Talmadge as Governor although he failed to get the most votes. Former Governor M. E Thompson held a steady lead in popular votes but in Georgia county, unit votes are decisive. In returns from 154 of 159 counties, Talmadge led in 116 counties with 272 unit votes; Thompson led in 38 counties with 126 unit votes. Thompson's popular vote margin was 175,751 to 165,678.

See Traffic Toll High

Chiang Co-operates Has Halted Attacks

TAIPEI, Formosa, June 29—(AP)—China's Nationalists, assured that the United States seventh fleet will protect Formosa, Wednesday ordered their planes and warships to halt attacks on the Communist mainland.

Thus an uneasy truce prevails in the civil war. The Communists are free to violate it but only at the risk of a clash with the warships, jet fighters and bombers of the U.S. Seventh Fleet.

The cease fire in no way affects the National guerrillas on the mainland. They have been reported increasingly active in the south and east. For the time being they carry the burden of the struggle.

It was emphasized that the cease fire is a temporary measure. The Nationalists do not consider that it ties their hands permanently.

Shotgun Fired Arrest Farmer

ST. CATHARINES, June 29—(CP)—A woman screaming from a rooftop sent police racing to a Queenston St. home Wednesday where they arrested a shotgun toting farmer, Frank Kasperek, 47 of RR 4, St. Catharines.

Cpl. Vic Dawson and Constable Gord Morris forced their way into the house. Kasperek was found struggling on the floor of a bedroom with his wife while nearby lay the smoking shotgun. Mrs. Mary Kasperek was half choked when police separated the two, and Kasperek was bleeding from a wound in his head, apparently cause by a part of a blast from the gun.

Police said Kasperek may be charged with attempted murder or committed to a mental institution.

The Kasperek's have not been living together for some time. Frank appeared in court Monday on a charge of assaulting his wife and breaking her arm.

Recapture Minhla

RANGOON, June 29 (AP) — A communique Wednesday said that government forces have recaptured Minhla, about 360 miles north of Rangoon, from rebel troops. The communique also said nearly 2,000 white band PVO's (Communists) have surrendered in various parts of Burma since the government offered them an amnesty and pardon May 9.

IN TROUBLED CITY — Dr. Martin G. Geil, who once lived in Kitchener, Ont., now is in the Communist besieged city of Seoul, Korea, where he arrived last Tuesday to take up an appointment as lecturer in psychology at State University. Good Neighbors Help Treaty

DES JOACHIMS, Que., June 29 (CP)—Premier Frost said Wednesday Ontario thinks United States approval of the Niagara and St. Lawrence Hydro Electric projects "is due to us as good neighbors."

Mr. Frost, speaking at the opening of the 480,000-horsepower Des Joachims development on the Ottawa river said still more power is needed in Ontario.

"We must turn without delay to the Niagara and the St. Lawrence. We look to the Congress of the U.S. for the speedy and favorable consideration of the treaties involved.

Earlier Premier Frost announced the end of all power restrictions in Ontario.

LIGHT FOR LIVING

The light of many billions of lamps will illuminate the world tomorrow and will bring us entirely new concepts of lighting in homes, offices and public places.

Most interesting of all will be the new ideas in lighting your home. It won't be a question merely of having light enough. Lighting is going to be an important part of decoration, too. The architect will use light as a "material," just as he now uses wood, plastics and draperies. He will think of light not as a bright spot coming from one point in the room, but as whole surfaces glowing like the sky.

Outdoors, the light comes from all around us and gives us great beauty and color. To bring this same principle indoors will mean that we shall obtain emotional effects never before possible. Electric light used to be a soft yellow-white — that is, all colors combined into one. Tomorrow you can have strong illumination in any color you like.

And the purpose of all this? So that we may discover a new beauty in life, and a new satisfaction in living through the wonderful sense of vision.

GIFTS FROM BRITAIN—Gifts from the United Kingdom are flooding into the Women's Volunteer Services headquarters in London for shipment to Manitoba flood victims and to Quebec families who lost their homes in the recent Rimouski and Cabano fires. This silver tureen being examined by a WVS worker is the gift of Mrs. F. Heath of Greetham, near Oakham, England, and is about 150 years old.

Lack Of Any Controversial Issues Made Session Very Unexciting

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL

OTTAWA, June 29 —(CP)—Lack of a major controversial issue made the second session of Canada's 21st parliament one of the most unexciting since the end of the war.

Prime Minister St. Laurent and George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, set the trend toward quiet, serious discussion.

Progressive Conservatvies and CCF parties attempted to reintroduce the combines controversy of the last session, but interest lagged and it was soon dropped.

The controversy started after Justice Minister Garson disclosed that a report of an alleged price-fixing combine in flour-milling was withheld from publication for 10 months when the law requifed that it be published in 15 days. F. A. McGregor resigned as chief combine investigator as a result of the government's action.

Later Mr. Garson announced establishment of a four-man commission to overhaul the combine legislation.

The legislative program of the government was largely non-controversial in character.

Quick Passage

The government obtained quick passage of a bill providing supplementary unemployment insurance benefits to some of those out of work. The measure extended coverage to new categories of workers and brought within insurable groups persons earning $4,800 a year or less. Previously the ceiling was $3,120.

Unemployment reached a peak of about 383,000 and then began to drop with the return of good weather.

Following a supreme court ruling that federal rent controls were valid, the government obtained approval of a bill extending the controls until May 1, 1951.

Bills giving permanent effect to the Agricultural Prices Support Act and the Fisheries Prices Support Act were approved.

In the 1950-51 budget, Finance Minister Abbott provided only minor tax relief. There were no income tax changes.

Mr. Abbott forecast a budgetary surplus of $20,000,000 for 1950-51 compared with $111,000,000 in 1949-50.

While fighting raged in Korea, members voted $425,000,000 for defence purposes.

Controversy Loomed

A controversy threatened over a bill to provide a new charter for Canada's 135,000 Indians. But the government withdrew the measure until next session to permit study of the proposed changes by Indian bands.

The Dominion Elections Act was amended to extend the vote to Eskimos, and to Indians willing to give up exemption from income tax.

From the opening of the session until June 1, members of different parties carried on a filibuster against bills incorporating Alberta Natural Gas Company and Prairie Transmission Lines Limited. The two companies plan natural gas pipelines from Alberta fields to the Pacific coast. Some members objected to their incorporation because they would not undertake to built their lines on all-Canadian routes.

The measures finally passed both Houses.

Much of the session's work was done without fanfare by more than a score of committees established by the Senate and the Commons to deal with various topics.

Dominion Has 83rd Birthday

By The Canadian Press

Canadians across the country will put work to one side Saturday and celebrate the Dominion's 83rd birthday.

Saturday is Dominion Day.

City dwellers will don overalls, slacks and sweaters and head out for the country. Country dwellers will don suits and dresses and head in for the city.

Highways, waterways and airways are expected to be jammed with travellers.

But it will be no holiday for police, who predict a heavy run of holiday accidents and smash-ups, a Canadian Press survey shows.

Ontario residents steeled themselves for a heavy run of traffic from the northern United States. Border officials in Windsor predicted the Detroit-Windsor tunnel and bridges will be jammed.

Added incentive is that July 1 marks the beginning of the open season on black bass and maskinonge in the province.

Regattas are planned in Toronto, Hamilton and Cornwall. Old Home Week opens in the town of Cochrane and Mitchell, and 1,500 residents in Tecumser, Mich., will pay a neighborly visit to Tecumseh, Ont., in return for a similar trip the other way last year.

House Destroyed

ST. THOMAS, June 29 (CP)—Ald. Lyle Cook got a little added incentive Tuesday in his fight for better fire fighting services in nearby Yarmouth. While he was out of town on business, Cook's two-storey brick home was gutted by fire. Firefighters were handicapped by a shortage of water.

It's No Sale

OTTAWA, June 29 (CP) — Revenue Minister McCann says 76,665 individual cheques covering the refundable portion of wartime income taxes still are going begging. Claims still are coming in, but at a "diminishing rate." The department has done its best, but it can't locate the recipients.

Step Up Tax Drive

OTTAWA, June 29 (CP)—The income tax authorities are stepping up their drive for collection of unpaid taxes. Revenue Minister McCann told the Commons Wednesday his department has launched a program "to ensure that taxes for 1949 and prior years will have been collected in full by the end of March, 1951.

Big Tourist Year

TORONTO, June 29 (CP) — Prospects for another big tourist year in Ontario are good despite a decline in U. S. motor car entries up to the end of May, Ontario Deputy Travel Minister Tom McCall said Wednesday. Bad weather in May and the fact that the U. S. Decoration Day holiday fell on a week-day accounted for a four per cent decline in entries in that month.

Adjourn Conference

TORONTO, June 29 (CP)—Representatives of the Toronto Builders' Exchange and of the Bricklayers' Union (AFL) met Wednesday for six hours in the office of Labor Minister Daley and adjourned until July 3. Rundown Woman Praises Syntona for Helping Her

Was Always Tired; Nerves On Edge, Had Poor Digestion, Frequent Headaches and Dizzy Spells. Feels Much Different Since Taking the Herbal Compound.

MRS. DORIS ANSLOW

"I am certainly glad I began taking Syntona when I did, and I do not hesitate to recommend it to other sufferers,' said Mrs. Doris Anslow, 2359 Taylor St., Niagara Falls, Ontario, in a recent report.

"I was in a badly rundown condition and always felt tired and worn out. My nerves were so jumpy I could hardly stand the children coming home from school. Everything I ate would repeat on me giving me sour risings, indigestion, and heartburn. My head ached at the time. I would get dizzy spells and my sleep was restless. I had pains in my back, limbs and muscles.

"Reading in the paper about Syntona helping other people, I decided to try it and after taking only one bottle I found more relief. I kept right on taking it, and now I feel on top of the world. Syntona relieved all the trouble with my stomach, the headaches and dizziness cleared up. I am free of aches and pains and my strength returned. Instead of feeling tired all the time, I now have my old energy and even my work is easier to do."

Syntona is made from the pure liquid extracts of twelve of Nature's Finest Herbs and Roots. It acts on stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels—aids in the elimination of excess acids and impurities and promotes better assimilation of food for increased strength and energy.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store. (Advt.)

Glittering Spectacle On Seine Closes Spring Social Season

By CARTER L. DAVIDSON

PARIS, June 29 —(AP)— An uppercrust cocktail party that started 100 years ago and then got out of hand will bring some 250,000 people and the brightest stars of the entertainment world to the banks of the Seine Saturday night.

This is the "grand night of Paris," which traditionally ends the spring social season.

The show is for the benefit of orphans of policemen and French resistance fighters. The Seine River, the Eiffel Tower and the sprawling Palace of Chaillot form part of the stage setting.

Two floating stages have been built on barges on the Seine. One of them will hold the New York skating show, "Holiday on Ice," the other a ballet performance of the Paris Opera.

When one show is finished, tugboats will haul its stage downstream and another barge-supported platform will float into place before specially - built grandstands.

Prices range from 200 francs (about 60 cents) to 5,000 francs (about $15).

The whole idea began in 1851 when the city's socialite set had a final July 1 fling to bid each other goodbye for the summer—when it was a social stigma to stay in Paris.

Asked Form Gov't

PARIS, June 29 (Reuters)—President Vincent Auriol today asked out-going Premier Georges Bidault whose government fell last Saturday, to form a new cabinet. Earlier Radicalist leader Rene Mayer turned down the chance of becoming Prime Minister. He suggested the President concentrate on persuading Bidault or Henri Queuille, also a former premier, to reconsider their decisions.

Around the Home...

TOM GARD'S NOTE BOOK

"And what is so rare as a day in June?" rings through my mind on these first beautiful days of summer. "Then, if ever, come perfect days" has been true again this year. I don't suppose those lines will ever go from my memory, impressed there by being written out twenty times back in my public school days!

Rustic Table

I was finally bullied into leaving my garden long enough to take the family on a picnic yesterday. We journeyed to a secluded spot not far from the city and had a thoroughly enjoyable time. The highlight of the day for me was finding a rustic picnic table I could copy. I have been wanting to build one in front of the barbecue I finished early this month. If my first table turns out successfully I'll be making one for the cottage.

Garden Ornaments

The indiscriminate use of garden ornaments always bothers me. One house we passed on our way home from the picnic brought this whole subject back to my mind. The yard was so cluttered up with wooden ducks, dogs, girls with bright parasols and statues it looked more like a graveyard than a garden. Properly chosen and placed, ornaments do add to the beauty of the surroundings; especially if they are out of the ordinary—a carboy, sundial or painted butterfly.

No garden is complete without suitable pathways to carry the traffic. The type of material used in construction can be as varied as the shapes the path can be given. The subject is important enough to require lengthy treatment but a few ideas are given here.

The Abused Tin Can

Next week I must brush up on my tin-can craft as today's mail brought a request to help with handicraft at a summer camp for boys. No hobby is easier to master nor the equipment required more easily found. One or two suggestions are offered but you will find more in the booklet "Around The Home" now ready for distribution.

More information on these and other ideas in the booklet "AROUND THE HOME". Write for your copy to Tom Gard, c/o MOLSON'S (Ontario) LIMITED, P.O. Box 490, Adelaide St. Station, TORONTO.

Events Affecting Economic Law Moving Faster

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Events in the last few years have moved so fast that sometimes we get a bit tangled up in sorting them out.

We used to hear of economic laws and gave them the nod that they were correct. Probably they were and still are correct, but we must remember that a lot of new factors have been thrown in.

Of course, new factors have been coming in these many thousands of years. The invention of the wheel was a real revolution. It didn't change economic laws at all, at all—it just widened the field in which they operated.

But in those days it took a few centuries to absorb the fact of the wheel. Now we haven't that sort of time. We haven't centuries to digest a new development. We must absorb it into our thinking right away for, literally, tomorrow there will be another one.

Should we like all this rapid development? Depends upon one's outlook. George Ade, American humorist, remarked a few years ago in his 70s that he was satisfied—he had seen within his lifetime the greatest show ever staged on earth.

See Greatest Show

That's the way we still are and will be—we're looking at a show incomprehensibly greater than any our long line of grandfathers could have dreamed about, and it will grow.

Was it Wordsworth, speaking of the times of the French revolution, who said something like this:

this:

"Bliss was it in that dawn to be alive, but to be young was very heaven."

It would be nice if there were a Wordsworth today to coin an expression of a greater world occasion. If there were, commentators on the present Korean crisis would use it.

What has this to do with business? It has everything to do with it. It could be the dawn of a world in which we really get down to the matter of supplying people's needs—the needs of all the peoples of the world.

It offers just a slight ray of hope that this may be done without fighting another war. It is tonic in its effect because otherwise the war seemed inevitable. It is tonic, too, in the sense that, whatever the long road, it now is embarked upon.

FORGETFUL FRIENDS

In the year ending June 30, 1949, the Australian post office received 450 letters bearing no address whatsoever.

Canoes Race in the Library Only for Children Who Read

Two canoes have already set out from Lakefield, starting the school summer holiday race through the Kawarthas and another 71 are lined up ready to leave the wharf on Lake Katchawanooka as soon as they get their signal.

This is no ordinary canoe race. In the first place it is to be run by children only and will be carried right through the school holidays.

The race is taking place in the children's room at the Public Library and the canoes proceed on a relief map of the Kawarthas, not by the power of the oarsman's arm, but according to the number of books the owner reads.

Holiday Device

The children's canoe club has been formed at the library by Mrs. M. E. Phippen and Miss Marion McTeague to encourage children in their holiday reading, particularly those who will be spending all or most of their holidays in the city.

Seventy-three children have enrolled in the club and have each been given a paper canoe in which is sitting an Indian, firmly fixed with a pin, which is used to attach the canoe to the table relief map.

The canoes start at Lakefield and as each child reads another book, the canoe is moved to the next buoy. There are 20 buoys on the entire course, which takes the reader through six lakes.

Before the canoe can be moved on, the child must write a one-page review in the small note book provided by the library.

The race course goes through the beautiful country north of Lakefield, through Katchawanooka, Clear Lake, Stony Lake, Buckhorn Lake, Harrington Narrows, Chemong Lake and Little Mud Lake, the Chemong Lake causeway being the finishing point.

Geographic Details

There are many landmarks familiar to the youngsters and there has been great excitement recently as the children spot out the places they know, where their parents and friends have cottages, where they went for a picnic last summer and so on.

There is the Grove School represented by paper houses surrounded by pines, the light house with its red tower on Stony Lake across from South Beach. On Clear Lake the Y' Men's camp is a familiar landmark and across on the shores of Harrington Lake Indian reserve.

Several parents visiting the library with their children have also become enthusiatic and a steady stream of visitors has been spotting familiar places.

Children living in the south of the city are also taking part in the race, which is running simultaneously at the branch library. There they have a map of the same area pinned on the bulletin board.

Miss Barbara Johnson, a student of Toronto University, is in charge for the summer.

Guild Members Fail To Agree

WASHINGTON, June 29 (AP) —Delegates at the American Newspaper Guild (CIO) convention failed to agree today on a proposal to set up a separate district in Canada, with a vice-president and a member on the Guild's international executive board.

A majority of the convention constitution committee rejected the proposal and said a report should be made to next year's conclave for action. But a minority pressed for a floor vote, insisting that a separate Canadian division be set up. Members work under different labor laws.

A vote was deferred until today.

The Guild claims about 25,000 newspaper workers in the U.S. and Canada as members.

Indian Paper Criticizes U.S.

BOMBAY, June 29 (Reuters)—The independent Times of India today expresses opposition to United States intervention in Korea and demands that Asian countries "uncompromisingly fight all foreign intervention, direct or indirect, in their affairs."

Civil strife and foreign intervention were laying waste many rich regions of southeast Asia and an international war would only pile up new horrors, the Times says.

The Nationalist Bombay Chronicle supports the suggestion by Benegal Naasing Rau, India's representative to the United Nations ,for a meeting between President Truman and Prime Minister Stalin on the Korean problem.

"With the Soviet Union still silent about American intervention, it is perhaps the only ray of hope to save humanity from a global war," the Chronicle says.

(The government of India has not yet expressed its views on the Korean conflict.)

Business Booms On Great Lakes

DETROIT, June 29 (AP) — Business will be booming in the Great Lakes area this summer, the Great Lakes Regional Advisory Board said Wednesday.

It forecast that shippers in the area will need an increase of 16 6 per cent in the number of railroad cars in the third quarter of 1950 over the number used in the same period a year ago.

Actual loadings in the third quarter of 1949 were 627,793. The board estimated 733,518 for July, August and September this year.

"The increase," the advisory board said, "is one of the largest ever anticipated by the board in its 27 years existence, and indicates a high level of industrial activity in the district during the next several months."

Similar forecasts by the board since 1923 have been 96 per cent accurate.

Industry In U.S. Can Change To Arms Quickly

DETROIT, June 29 (AP)—The United States' giant automobile industry built $29,000,000,000 worth of armament in the second world war. It could build much more much faster if another emergency arose.

That's the view of high industry sources today.

They don't talk about war-production possibilities excepting in generalities. Yet it probably isn't much of a secret that just about every auto industry plant has been surveyed as to its adaptability to armament production and that every manufacturer knows what he will be asked to make.

One executive, preferring to remain unidentified, said recently:

"Of course, we have some military work under way; right now it is mainly replacement work on parts and materials for vehicles in the field. The volume isn't great—it couldn't be while we are turning out close to 200,000 peace-time vehicles a week. But we are working closely with the military."

Amazing Job

The automobile industry in the second world war made almost every type of armament from bullets to 60-ton tanks. Before the war's end it had one plant alone turning out airplane bombers at the rate of one every hour.

The industry also had a share in development work on the atom bomb. This secret work was carried on in what appeared to be a department store building in the process of alteration in the heart of downtown Detroit.

The industry's productive capacity has been greatly expanded since the second world war.

Informed sources say that if another emergency arises the conversion to arms production will be quick.

Conviction Quashed For Whitby Builder

TORONTO, June 29 — (CP) — Ontario Appeal Court Wednesday quashed a conviction and $4,000 damage award against Charles Brown, 45, Whitby contractor, and ruled he was innocent of alienating the affections of the wife of Fitzroy Welstead, of Pickering, Ont.

Brown was alleged to have alienated the woman's affections over a period in which he drove her to work in his car. Welstead charged that Brown was father of a daughter borne by his wife.

Opposition members urged that the freight-rate burden be equalized across the country.

In the debate on radio and television, Dr. McCann said that in the last two years about $50,000,000 has been spent in the United States on experimental television work. Canada now was abole "to start in with no cost at all and take advantage of the advances that have been mde."

TORONTO, June 29 — (CP) — Jack Bolander, president of the printing firm of Bolander and Company Limited, died Wednesday from a seizure. He came to Canada in 1909 as an electrical engineer on loan from the government of his native Sweden to assist in building the Trent River canal system. In 1914 he joined the Ontario Hydro Commission and for several years was supervisor of the Chippawa Power Plant at Niagara Falls before going into the printing business.

The Ontario Department of Education has announced the appointment of Joseph C. Doyle, [illegible], as Inspector of Separate Schools for Inspectorate No. 19, with residence in Peterborough. The appointment is effective Sept. 1, 1950.

Mr. Doyle received his elementary education in SS No. 6 Georgina Township, York County, and attended the Sutton West Continuation School, finishing his matriculation course in Newmarket High School.

Graduating from Toronto Normal School, he taught for several years in a rural school, then he attended St. Michael's College, Toronto, where he obtained the Bachelor of Arts degree.

Later he won his Bachelor of Pedagogy Degree from the University of Toronto, and he now has completed academic requirements for the Doctor of Pedagogy Degree, which he will receive on completion and acceptance of a thesis. He also holds the High School Assistant's Certificate, and supervisor of physical training.

Taught in Toronto

For several years Mr. Doyle has taught in Toronto and suburban separate schools. He has held many posts in teachers' organizations, having been the first president of the Toronto branch of the OECTA, as well as a member of the first Board of Governors of the Ontario Teachers' Federation and president of the Toronto Catholic Men Teachers, Association. During his term of rural school teaching he was, for a year, president of the Ontario North Teachers' Institute.

OLD AND NEW IN KOREA—South Koreans, battling to defend their homes against invading North Korean Communists, are fighting with a mixture of old and new equipment. Some modern equipment, like these jeeps, is used, but the ancient ferry is the only way of crossing the Imjin River near the dividing line 38th parallel. This is a detachment of U.S. soldiers, who have been training South Korea's fighters.

Liquor Vote Lost But Majority Vote In Favor

BANCROFT, June 29— A proposal to introduce the sale of liquor in Bancroft was defeated on Wednesday by a vote of ratepayers. Although the majority were in favor of having a liquor store in the village, the necessary 60 per cent vote in favor of the proposal was not reached.

The vote was 358 for and 299 against. Another 43 votes would have been required before a store could be opened.

Total number of eligible voters is around 700, of whom 657 cast votes.

$15,000 Building Proposed In Morrow Park

Directors of Peterborough Exhibition are meeting tonight at the office of the Department of Agriculture Friday morning they have an engagement with the members of the council to discuss the proposed $15,000 building at Morrow Park.

Some type of agriculture centre was considered years ago by the Department of Agriculture. It was then visualized that the office of the county representative of the Department would be moved to that building, and that it would become the hub of farm affairs, commodity groups, Junior Farmers,—a community, social and service centre.

It was an appealing conception, but costs became increasingly involved in that plan, and it was quietly discarded.

The present idea united Exhibition, rural and urban accommodation. Council is interested, more or less, in the prospect of a community centre for the large south section of the city. Estimated cost of $15,000 out of a total of $45,000 to be spent by the Exhibition in a three-way contribution by the city, province and Dominion does not hold out much attraction. You don't get much building for $15,000, in the estimating of several of the aldermen.

Water Sports Program Part Of Centennial Year Events

A thrilling program of water sports will take place at Little Lake, Saturday evening as a part of the Centennial celebration on July 1. Such outstanding water skiers as Norma McIntosh Gordon, winner of the Canadian Women's Championship, 1949, and Russ McIntosh, Bobcaygeon will perform daring feats on aquaplanes and skiis.

One of the highlights of the entertainment will be a demonstration of slalom skiing as used in competition, by Russ McIntosh who was winner of this event at the Canadian championships, last August. Norma Gordon will perform a single ski routine in which she will drop one ski and will ride with the rope lead on one foot and then do a second run with both feet on one ski with the rope lead behind her knees.

As well as aquaplaning and skiing, the attractions on the lake will include a demonstration of canoe stunts. Other members of the water sport's cast will be Miss Alta Mae Thomas and Junior, age 13, Ack McIntosh of Bobcaygeon Herb Cardwell and his two sons, Bobby and George, Bill Taylor, Eric Denison, Ab Bianco and others of Peterborough.

After the water sports a $1,500 fireworks display will be set off from McDonald's Point.

Hospital Opening Set For July

Removal of patients from the old hospital to the new Civic Hospital sometime in July has been set as an objective "but we can't be sure that we'll make it" superintendent John Hornall said today.

"We hope to be in before August 1 and it may be even sooner," Mr. Hornal says "but we won't be able to give the definite date until a week before we move."

The new laundry has already been in use for testing purposes and on Monday it will start full time operations. All the laundry from the present hospital and the new linen to be used, will be washed at the new laundry after this week.

"Several beds are already in the new building and the rest will be here soon," says Mr. Hornal. "It's not only a case of waiting for delivery, but everything has to be checked when it arrives."

Mr. Hornal moved into his new office several weeks ago. He was the first to move in and has been on the spot from the beginning to supervise the work.

Colored Tourists Find Cabins Not Available

When a colored family of American tourists arrived Wednesday at a Rice Lake tourist resort, they were told that their previously-reserved accommodation wasn't ready and their deposit was returned.

Arthur Braithwaite owner of Braithwaite's cabins, four miles off Highway 45 on Rice Lake, denied today that he refused them accommodation. He admitted that he wouldn't have known what to do if the accommodation had been ready for the family.

Some time ago he explained he had a similar case at his resort when he accepted colored visitors. At that time, he added, other Americans, white, staying at his cabins, said they would leave if he allowed the colored persons to stay.

Mr. Braithwaite suggested that American colored tourists should explain when they apply for accommodation that they are colored. In Wednesday's case the accommodation was arranged through the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce without any reference to color.

Policy Problem

It is believed that the family later secured accommodation at one of the few resorts which receive colored tourists. Several resorts on Rice Lake have during the past four years accepted colored tourists.

Arthur Aldridge, who has cabins situated between Cold Springs and Gore's Landing, said today he has been accepting Negro tourists for the last four years. All but one of his cabins this weekend will be filled by Negro tourists.

Mr. Aldridge explained that it is not a good policy to have both colored and white tourists in the same camp unless they are related in some manner.

Another resort operator, M. J. McDonald who has cabins seven miles off Highway 28 near Rice Lake said today he has one group of colored people for the first time.

Woodlot Owners Fail To Reap Benefit Of Land

Owners of woodlots must realize they have a crop to farm, the same as apples or cattle; the main difference is that it takes a forest longer to mature.

Gordon H. Bayly, assistant chief, division of reforestation, Department of Lands and Forests Wednesday night explained the importance of woodlots in Ontario. The so-called atomic age may yet turn out to be "the age of wood."

He was addressing the assembled reeves of Peterborough County, their wives, friends and others interested in municipal affairs, at the annual warden's banquet. This year it was decided to hold the banquet in the summertime and Gil-Mar Lodge on Sturgeon Lake was chosen.

Largest County Forest.

Mr. Bayly felt that an address on "the age of wood" was particularly appropriate in Peterborough county because of 5,0000-acre county fores tnorth-east of Norwood. Of the eight counties with municipal forests —owned outright and not under any agreement with the Crown — Peterborough has the largest.

It came as a bit of a start, however, to some of the council lors (at present worried because the area is not financially self sustaining) when Mr. Bayly said that 10 men could be employed cutting timber there and a profit still be shown.

There is an ever-increasing demand for wood and wood products, said Mr. Bayly. And through his address ran the theme that the future might be the "age of wood."

"The atomic age we talk of may yet turn out to be the age of wood," he suggested.

Plastics, fuel, paper, and food can be manufactured from wood products. Bread— yes, and even hamburger were made from wood by the Germans.

"Peterborough is extremely well situated in the event of an ageof wood," he continued. "You have untold quantities of forest lands and much of the area can produce little else. You have numerous wood industries and the people working in these industries provide the know-how."

More than a third of the pulpwood used east of the Rockies is from farmer's woodlots —less than a tenth of the pulpwood available. The amazing thing was that most of the forests owned by those farmers were "ruinously managed."

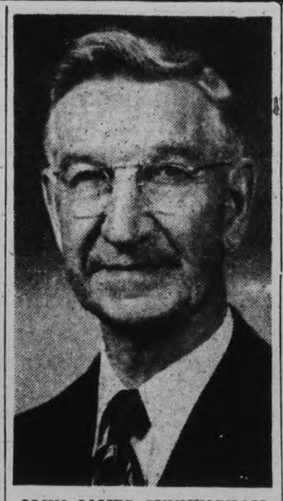
Deputy Opposes Highway Park

PORT HOPE, June 29.—Jack Miller, Deputy Minister of Highways, told business men Monday, that a new four-lane highway just north of the town limits would add to the trade in Port Hope. Mr. Miller did not give the exact route of the new highway which will be a continuation of the Toronto-Oshawa highway except to state that it would cross north of the town somewhere in the vicinity of the old art school.

There will be two clover-leafs for the town, at the west and east end. According to the Deputy Minister, the new highway will eliminate the congested traffic conditions on the main street.



Mr. Miller gave no encouragement to plans for the park project in Corbett's Pond area. He made it clear that the Provincial Department of Highways would not allow any roadside park to lead directly off the highway. "Any park that you may eventually make here will have to be entered from the town side," stated the Deputy Minister.

Lightning Paralyzes Lindsay Mother

LINDSAY, June 29.—Mrs. Milton Loucks, Minden, was knocked to the ground when a lightning bolt struck a gate near which she was walking during the electrical storm, last Friday night. On her way from the barn to the farm house, Mrs. Loucks' legs seemed paralyzed after the bolt and she was forced to crawl the rest of the way.

On reaching the house, she found that the casing around a window had been ripped off. Her father-in-law had been sitting near the window with his granddaughter, four-year-old Rhonda Loucks on his knee and the charge had knocked the chair out from under him and hurled the little girl to the floor.

The child soon recovered from the shock and the mother also regained the use of her legs.

Club, Arena Official Goes To Meaford Bank

Mr. A. D. Cameron, accountant on the staff of the Peterborough branch of the Bank of Montreal for the last three years, has been appointed manager of the branch in Meaford, Ont.

This promotion takes effect in three weeks. Mr. Cameron expects to leave for Meaford by July 24. His background beginning in Scotland extends in banking experience through ten or eleven branches of the Bank of Montreal in Ontario and Quebec. Two of the offices in which he was employed were in Ottawa and Sudbury.

Local friends of Mr. Cameron will be highly pleased with the announcement of his managership, although they will regret that he has to leave Peterborough.

He has been treasurer of the Lions Club, and secretary-treasurer of the Civic Arena committee of management, whose recent financial statement for 1949-50 confirmed the confidence of the council in its appointees on that board, including Mr. Cameron.

MAIN ST. TOPICS

BANK CLEARINGS

Bank clearings for the past week ending today as reported by the secretary of the Peterborough Clearing House amounted to $2,653,683. One week ago the total was $2,902,318.

SAUNDERS REMANDED

William D. Saunders of St. Catharines, charged with fraudulently obtaining lodging from the Empress Hotel, was Wednesday remanded to June 30 by Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC.

TO TEACH IN UK

One Peterborough public school teacher, a Campbellford teacher and one from Oshawa, are among 40 Canadian teachers who will be sailing to the U. K. in the next few weeks. Miss M. F. Mutton, King Edward School, Miss E. J. Redner of Campbellford and Miss Frances McLean, Oshawa, are going to Britain for a year to exchange posts with U. K. teachers.

SWALLOWS ON WIRES

The June moon is at the full tonight, but morning clouds threatened to veil its glory. Broods of swallows are already lining up along the telephone wires. C.N.E. 'ads' are here and there, and Peterborough Exhibition is only seven weeks off. The summer is approaching its meridian, and in a few days the recent turn of the year at the tropic of Cancer will be perceptible in the evening light.

Rain Hampering Hay Cropping

Merely as an observation and not as a criticism of the weather's dispensation, it is apparent that too much rain these days is hampering the job of taking off the hay crop.

Peterborough farmers will recall that Grassland Day in 1949 was just exactly one year ago, that there had been no rain in four weeks, and consequently the grass crop was extremely lean. The committee was faced with the prospect of having to abandon that event, first of its kind ever held in crop improvement enterprise around here, but an exceptional stand of hay in those general conditions was found on the Ferd Rowland farm on the Peterborough-Lindsay highway.

Rain came that night, but too late to bring about material recovery in most fields.

Big Season

This district now has a big hay crop. It has been on the move for the last three weeks, but there is still a great deal uncut.

The fall wheat is filling out and will soon be taking on the color of maturity. Work is beginning to back-log on the farming community.

An Emily farmer decided to take in a big field of hay Tuesday. It was entirely a mechanical operation, and to keep up with the speed of loading he hired two trucks from Peterborough for the afternoon. By evening the job was finished.

Youth, 17, Gets One Year For Car Theft

Albert O'Dette, 17, of 352 Armstrong Dr., was today sentenced to one year in reformatory by Magistrate W. R. Philp on a charge of car theft. O'Dette pleaded not guilty at his trial last Saturday.

O'Dette was charged with theft of a car belonging to D. O. Taylor of Huntington, Que., who testified he had parked the auto at the rear of the King George Hotel June 19. When he went out half an hour later, he said, the car was gone.

William Burns, 390 Queen St., facing the same charge, was remanded for judgment again until July 6.

Evidence revealed at the original trial that O'Dette had taken the car and later picked up Burns on George St. The pair drove to Lindsay in the car where they picked up Burns' girl friend, and were arrested later in the evening by Provincial Constable Howard Markle.

Constable Markle testified he followed them for five miles at speeds of 80 and 85 miles an hour along highway 12 between Manchester and Sunderland.

When the pair were taken to Peterborough, PC C. J. McGillen, who drove the police truck, said there was some discussion between the pair as to who would "take the rap" for it.

Burns Case

In the case against Burns, arguments arose today between defence counsel J. C. N. Currelly and acting crown counsel Walter Howell on a point of law.

Mr. Currelly argued that Burns could not be found guilty of theft; that joyriding was the strongest charge on which he could be convicted. He claimed Burns had the intention of returning the car "at a propitious time".

Mr. Howell argued that Burns could be found guilty of theft, as by the definition, theft was "a continuing thing", and that both the taking of the car and the holding of it were parts of the same act.

Magistrate Philp said he would remand the case for judgment, as he wanted time to consider argument offered by both counsel. Burns is at present out on suspended sentence for theft of gasoline.

DEDICATE COLORS

The dedication of colors for the Buckhorn Boy Scout troop was held recently at St. Matthew's Anglican Church in Buckhorn. The Rev. Walter Gilling of St. Luke's Anglican Church officiated. The 10 scouts paraded to the church ceremony under the direction of Scoutmaster Earl Stanfield.

Liberals Won't Admit Loss Open New UK Headquarters

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, June 29—(CP)—Equipped with new headquarters, a new press officer and a bigger and better publicity journal, the Liberal party remains doggedly determined to become a fighting force in Britain's next general election. The indefatigably - optimistic Liberals have already adopted 150 candidates for the next vote, whenever it comes. Spokesmen say the number may be doubled or trebled in the months ahead.

The Liberals, in short, just won't admit they are beaten. Banished from memory are the harrowing experiences of the election last February, when only nine of 474 candidates were successful.

Still Cocky

Again, all is cheerful confidence amony Liberal leader Clement Davies and his cohorts. Instead of quietly licking their wounds at their old headquarters at Gayfere Street, the Liberal's threw a housewarming party in their new Victoria Street headquarters and is was made known that:

1. Phyllis Preston, for eight years on the headquarters staff, has been appointed full-time press officer. She succeeds the late James Sinclair, who died suddenly during the election.

2. The Weekly Liberal News, founded in 1946 by Edward Martell (now one of the nine Liberals in the House of Commons), is being enlarged. The circulation now is 30,000.

3. A fresh appeal for funds will be launched in the next few weeks.

Expecting Baby

HOLLYWOOD, June 29 (AP)—Lana Turner, wife of tinplate heir Bob Topping, disclosed Wednesday she is going to have a baby next January. She and Topping were married in April, 1948. She has a daughter, Cheryl, who will be seven next month. Cheryl's father is broker Steve Crane.

THAT'S THE LONG ARM OF THE LAW extended in your direction, lady. The big man in the foreground is one of Montreal's newly-hired 21 water waste inspectors, and the noise of water pouring from a hose brought him to this front lawn. The housewife is warned that water must not be trained on lawns or gardens between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. It's part of the program to conserve water and those who ignore warnings are in line for trouble in the form of court actions.

Master Penmen Plan Nipissing Convention

OTTAWA, June 29 — (CP) — Master penmen from Canada and the United States will gather at Nipissing for a week-long convention starting July 15.

The international convention, first of its kind to be held in Canada, is being organized by Fred D. Richardson, instructor in handwriting at Ottawa's Commercial High School.

Between 10 and 20 of North America's finest penmen and their wives are expected to attend the gathering at which delegates will exchange ideas and discuss various handwriting instruction techniques

Cabbie Convicted

CAPETOWN, South Africa, June 29 (Reuters)—A white taxi driver was convicted Wednesday of raping a Negro woman whom he had kept chained to his bed for more than nine months. Leslie Sampson, 40, was sentenced to two years' hard labor, but was released on $560 bail pending an appeal.

Charge Espionage

WARSAW, June 29 (Reuters)—A Polish government spokesman Wednesday accused the Jehovah's Witnesses of being one of the main bases of United States espionage in Poland, the official Polish news agency reported.

Plan School On Indian Archaeology

MIDLAND (CP) — Some 40 years ago, a farmer and his eight-year-old son found on their farm near London, Ont., bits of pottery and arrowheads which indicated the presence of an Indian village.

Father and son, fascinated by their discovery, then began one of the pioneer archaeological excavations in Western Ontario. These investigations finally led to the discovery of Fort Ste. Marie and, later, St. Ignace, site of the martyr's shrine.

The father, Amos Jury, an artist turned farmer, is now 89 and retired from both agricultural and archaeological work.

The son, however, is Dr. Wilfred Jury, curator of the Museum of Indian Archaeology at the University of Western Ontario. From July 2 to 14, Dr. Jury will direct Canada's first summer school of Indian archaeology at nearby Fort Ste. Marie I.

Lecture Subjects

Among lecture subjects at the school will be Indian culture, history, geology, soil chemistry, cataloguing of relics and surveying. The faculty will be comprised of professors from Western University, Dr. and Mrs. Jury, Franklin Davey McDowell, John Fisher and others.

Field work on the site of Fort Ste. Marie I, founded in 1639 and destroyed 10 years later, one of Canada's most historic spots, will form a large part of the course.

"Comparatively little is known of the life that existed in Canada centuries ago," says Dr. Jury. "What we have found points to a golden treasury of history deep within our soil."

Indict Ex-President

HAVANA, Cuba, June 29 (AP)—Prosecutors in a case charging misapplication of $175,000,000 in government funds have asked a court to indict Ramon Grau San Martin, president from 1944 to 1948.

Slug It Out

MILAN, Italy, June 29 (AP)—Communist sympathizers and anti-Communists slugged it out Wednesday night in Milan's Piazza Del Duomo over United States intervention in Korea. There were no reports of injuries or arrests.

Man 40 Loses An Eye

BOLTON, Ont., June 29 (CP)—Albert Scott, 40, who said he was struck in the face by his son during an argument on his nearby Albion, Ont., farm Wednesday underwent an operation in Toronto for removal of his right eye.

Find Reporters Less Competent

MONTREAL, June 29—(CP)—Arthur G. Penny, of Quebec, Wednesday told delegates to the Canadian Authors' Association convention that he found "an appreciable drop in the competency of the average reporter."

Mr. Penny, formerly an officia of the Quebec Chronicle Telegraph, said that less good materia is being attracted to newspape work and those who do develo are finding their way into relate fields, such as public relations.

Take Korean News Very Calmly

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW, June 29.—(AP). — The fighting in Korea has made the Russian people neither excited nor nervous.

For all that the behavior of the men and women in the street would indicate, this week has been just like any other.

Nothing even resembling undue agitation among the people has appeared.

The city's summer social season is at its height for the diplomatic corps, with numerous parties being given. Last night black ties and bare shoulders scurried to radios to hear President Truman speak to the American Newspaper Guild. Reception was good.

Moscow newspapers follow the Korean situation closely. Here are some of today's headlines:

"People's Army Liberates City of Seoul."

"Aggressive Actions by United States in Korea."

"American Reports on Military Actions in Korea."

"How Aggression Against Korean People's Democratic Republic Was Prepared."

The Korean situation certainly is being talked about. But it is difficult to say whether it is as hot a topic among the Russian people as the current situation in the Soviet Union's big league football race or the nice weather Moscow has been having.

The foreign diplomatic corps, however, has not been so busy in a long time. Drawing rooms buzz with whispered confidences, questions and statements, all largely based on the Korean question.

Missed Signal Car, Truck Crash

Accidents on Wednesday were of a minor nature, causing slight damage to five cars and a truck.

Bruce Waddell, 648 Charlotte St., was driving a soft drink truck east on Charlotte St., and hod stopped for the Aylmer St. traffic light, where he signalled a right turn. Gerrard Nogle, of Toronto, said he had pulled up to Waddell's right, and did not see the signal. When Nogle tried to drive ahead, his car collided with the truck.

Minor damage was done to two autos when they collided Wednesday at Western and Clonsilla Aves. Gordon Hancock, 1081 Western Ave., was driving west on Clonsilla and slowed to turn on to Western Ave. Wesley Seale of Louisa, Que., also driving west braked his car, but due to the wet road skidded and struck the rear of Hancock's auto.

A car driven by Dr. Ralph Clark, 319 Stewart St., was slightly damaged Wednesday at Charlotte and Reid Sts. Dr. Clark stopped his car behind an auto driven by Ralph Meyers, 301 Reid St. Meyers backed up, striking the doctor's car. Both had been driving south on Reid St.

Blaze In Office

TORONTO, June 29 (CP) — A second-alarm fire on the fifth floor of the 12-storey national building on downtown Bay St. was brought under control Wednesday night in half an hour. The blaze was confined to one room, the office of the Weaver Coal Company, unoccupied at the time of the outbreak.

Boat Captain Fined

WINDSOR, June 29 (CP) — Capt. Samuel Bell of Midland, master of the Great Lakes freighter Superior, was fined $50 in city court Wednesday when he was convicted of having United States tobacco and cigarets on which duty had not been paid. Capt. Bell pleaded guilty to the charge.

Jailed 30 Days

BRAMPTON, June 29 (CP) — Harold Leslie, 19, and his brother Norman, 20, Wednesday were sentenced to 30 days on a charge of assault. Murry Glover was given suspended sentence on the same charge. The three men were charged with beating up 19-year-old Donald Manderson of Streetsville, Ont., and covering him with shoe polish.

ENMITY WILL GROW with age, but right now Blackie, the Dog, and Foxy, the fox, both 30 days old, are on the friendliest terms. Both were gifts to Capt. Ubald Legault of the constabulary division of Provincial Police. Until quarters are found for the animals, they are living right in the captain's office in the Court House.

Says Korean Events May Change UK Policy

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya, June 29 (Reuters)—Lt.-Gen. Sir Harold Briggs, Britain's anti-guerrilla leader in Malaya, said today Korean events might cause Britain to revise her projected policy of recognizing the Chinese Communist regime.

"Revision of that policy should have a very beneficial effect in Malaya," he added.

He said he had no information concerning mobilization in Malaya or diversion to Japan of Royal Navy units now engaged in Malayan coastal operations.

Pulls A Whopper!

MARMORA, June 29 (ENS) —Whoever heard of an asparagus stock 22 inches in length? When a guest of Dr. C. V. Wallace went into the doctor's garden to pick some asparagus, that was the size of the prize she came in with.

A well kept vegetable garden is Dr. Wallace's pride and he usually has a good crop of asparagus. But this beats all records.

Matched Equipment In The Kitchen is one of the things which, in my opinion, make modern kitchens not only more attractive, but also more work-saving and time-saving. That's why I like that catch-phrase slogan the Frigidaire people thought up for the FRIGIDAIRE REFRIGERATOR and FRIGIDAIRE ELECTRIC RANGE: "Your matching pair—both Frigidaire!" In just five words it tells you what you really want to know about these two appliances . . . that they "go together" beautifully in your kitchen . . . and that they both give you the convenience, the economy and the dependability that has been identified with the Frigidaire name for a quarter century. Go see them at your Frigidaire Dealer's. Remember, only General Motors makes Frigidaire products.

Here's The Quickest, surest way I know to make tender, beautifully set jams and jellies . . . use CERTO Fruit Pectin! For Certo is the natural substance in fruit that makes jams "jam" and jellies "jell"—extracted, concentrated and conveniently bottled. Certo recipes use fruits at their choicest—fully-ripe, full-flavoured—and retain the precious flavour and tempting colour you lose by the long-boil method! (Certo recipes cut the boiling time to just 1 minute for both jams and jellies, and make up to 50% more jam or jelly from the same amount of fruit.) Yes, you can make thrifty use of this summer's fruits with Certo . . . and end all the guesswork by following exactly the recipes under the label of each Certo bottle!

Specially Designed For Your Meal-Getting Convenience . . . that's the new DURHAM CORN STARCH package. It's so easy to open and close! Then, when you've finished using as much "Durham" as you need at the time, replace the top. It fits snugly—keeps out every last particle of dust and prevents any starch from spilling out. You'll be delighted, as I was, with this handy-to-handle package. And you'll be thrilled with the marvelous Ann Adam recipes on the package! Try the Ann Adam Lemon Pie soon! . . . so good and so economical, too!

When You're Making iced tea for that garden party—or just for the folks . . . remember to order an extra-large supply of plump, juicy lemons! For that zestful lemon flavour gives added spice and life to iced tea. Particularly when the lemons are SUNKIST CALIFORNIA LEMONS, for they're the finest, juiciest grown! And, of course, these best of lemons make the tastiest, tangiest lemonade, too! So ask for Sunkist lemons next time you're shopping. Slice them in thick, juicy wedges for iced tea . . . drink them in refreshing lemonade!

I Love A Long Walk on a bright June day . . . but one thing I always remember is this: even though my eyes seldom complain, I know they get tired from the June sun-glare—for they're hard at work while I'm at play! Know how I give them the rest they deserve? I just put 2 drops of MURINE in each eye whenever they feel tired . . . for Murine's 7 ingredients blend perfectly with the natural eye fluids, soothing delicate eye tissues gently as a tear . . . resting and refreshing them in seconds! That's why I always keep one bottle of Murine at home and carry one with me wherever I go. Why don't you do the same?

I Thoroughly Approve of this happy habit of making afternoon tea a "fourth meal"! And I particularly approve when it's BLUE RIBBON TEA that's served! That full-flavoured deliciousness of Blue Ribbon Tea is by no means an accident! The Blue Ribbon folks are obsessed with the idea of giving you quality for your money. They've made their Blue Ribbon blend from some of the finest India and Ceylon Teas. It's composed of the tender small tea leaves from hill-top estates . . . tea leaves picked in the "full-flavour" months at the peak of their quality. And, by the way . . . Blue Ribbon Tea is unconditionally guaranteed to the consumer! That shows how proud they are of their tea! Ask your grocer for Blue Ribbon Tea—Red Label—for full-bodied richness and flavour . . . Orange Label—finest Orange Pekoe with that rich delicious flavour!

Just Think of all the money you can save this easy, easy way! Instead of repainting dingy-looking woodwork . . . just clean it with LAVOLINE instead! Lavoline literally lifts off dirt—without rubbing 'n' scrubbing! You see, it contains a marvelous cleaning agent called SANOVAL that produces mounds of billowy suds and dissolves grease and dirt like magic! Your kitchen sink—your bathtub—linoleum floors—the family wash . . . are all so quick and easy to clean the new Lavoline way! So take my tip and ask for Lavoline—new, improved Lavoline—at A & P, Dominion, Loblaw stores and your corner grocer!

Sparing the Rod May Send Junior to the Hospital

MONTREAL — (CP) — Sparing the rod and spoiling the child is probably the greatest source of children's accidents, doctors at the Montreal Children's Memorial Hospital say.

The doctors said that usually more than 60 per cent of the hospital's 174 beds are occupied by victims of preventable accidents creating a dangerous shortage of beds for regular functions.

The doctors, Dudley Ross, chief surgeon; Alton Goldbloom, chief physician and W. G. Breckenridge, orthopedic specialist are unanimous in support of spanking to emphasize parents' advice if accidents are to be prevented.

"Sometimes the man in blue has more influence than parents," Dr. Breckenridge noted.

Outline Precautions

The doctors said their advice to spank would probably be disregarded anyway and outline a few precautions to minimize children's accidents.

"Read the label on any bottle before giving a child some of its contents," cautioned Dr. Goldbloom.

"If a child swallows lye get him to hospital immediately," said Dr. Ross. "Sometimes parents feel the child will recover because there is little pain and swallowing is possible. The very opposite is true."

"Don't let children run with pencils or pointed objects in their mouths," warned Dr. Breckenridge. "A fall means a perforated palate."

Dr. F. M. Woolhouse, plastic surgeon, urged parents to make children wear protective masks when catching at baseball and similar sports.

All agreed that galleries, roofs and windows should be screened or fenced to protect youngsters from falls.

"And watch electrical outlets where they can poke things into them," they warned.

"The only thing we can do is urge parents to be careful and recommend the axiom "Spare the rod and spoil the child," the doctors concluded.

Rainbow in Sky Coincides With St. George's Guild Tea

Mrs. Robert Pilling of the Afternoon Guild at St. George's Anglican Church achieved a really and truly "rainbow" effect in her decoration of the church basement for the Rainbow Tea on Wednesday afternoon. She has put her spare time of the past two months into the preparations and she was rewarded by the crowd that came to view the result.

More than 150 guests were served, and also a good many children who particularly enjoyed the ice cream and strawberries, obtainable at small additional cost.

Like a piece of a rainbow was the central tea table as seen from the doorway but many were unfortunate in missing it because of the crowd. Bands of mauve, green, yellow, blue and pink were just rightly blended under an ecru lace cloth. The finishing touch was a centrepiece of pink roses around feathery white peonies with touches of purple heather, pansies and pink sweet peas—this arranged in a glass dish more than 200 years old, highly valued in a sentimental way by the owner, Mr. Robert Pilling, and very much sought after by antique collectors because it was designed for a bread tray and bears the inscription in glass "Give us this day our daily bread." Tiny bowls filled with velvety pansies flanked this dish.

Squares of each of the rainbow colors and white topped the 10 guest tables, each attractively more colorful with a border of two of the other colors and so arranged that no two tables were alike. Five varieties of summer flowers canterbury bells, cornflower, sweet peas, peonies and roses, were arranged differently for each table.

Baskets of peonies and ferns loaned by Mrs. O. F. Boucher were alternated on window sills and overhung with balloons and streamers. The pretty, frilled streamers also criss-crossed the room and hung down the walls.

Tea cup reading was an interesting feature of the tea and the "teller" was outfitted in a pretty cap and apron of mauve with yellow trim. Other combinations of the colors made caps and varied styles of aprons for the tea assistants.

An interesting coincidence of this event is that at exactly the time the tea was ending, one of the most beautiful rainbows appeared in the eastern sky, clearly reflecting each of the colors in Mrs. Pilling's decorative scheme.

Mrs. L. Warren, past president of the Guild after 13 years in office, was receiving with Mrs. E. C. Moore, and president Mrs. F. Dorrell was acting as hostess.

Mrs. F. Hines was in charge of supplies for the tea table and servers were Mrs. S. Parkes Jr., Mrs. R. Stroud and Mrs. C. Blackbourn. Making up the refreshments in the kitchen under convenership of Mrs. A. Green were Mrs. A. Howarth, Mrs. L. Moore, Mrs. J. Gaskell, Mrs. W. Firth, Mrs. E. McIlwain, Mrs. L. Rowley, Mrs. D. Edwards and Mrs. T. Hawkins.

Fancywork and household necessities were offered for sale with Mrs. I. Harrison and Mrs. W. Farr in charge. The home cooking table, thoroughly cleaned off in a short time, was attended by Mrs. C. Robinson and Mrs. A. Cooke.

Hold Surprise Anniversary Party For Couple

ROSENEATH, June 29 (ENS)—Mr. and Mrs. Elden George, Roseneath, were hosts on Wednesday evening in honor of Mrs. George's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bray, Baltimore, who were celebrating their 45th wedding anniversary.

In the form of a surprise party, the members gathered together bringing a three-tier wedding cake, presented by the grandchildren, flowers from their great grandchild, Bonnie Chrysler, of Cobourg, and gifts from the immediate family.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bray were married on June 28, 1905, at the Presbyterian Manse, Bethesda North, near Harwood, driving to the manse with a horse and buggy. The Rev. Johnston, resident minister, was the officiating clergyman. In a reminiscent mood they recalled, the weather was similar to the weather today.

Following their marriage, they took up residence on their farm, on the Baltimore-Harwood road, three miles north of Baltimore, and have spent their entire married life there. They said that is where they expect to spend the rest of their lives.

Six Children

Six children were born of this union; four daughters, Mrs. John Ferguson (Bernice), Baltimore; Mrs. Gordon Sandercock Irene), Fenella; Mrs. Neil Myerscough (Helen), Brantford; Mrs. Elden George (Mavis), Roseneath; two sons, Osborne, of Smith Falls, and Earl, of Oshawa.

Mrs. Bray was the former Eva O'Connell, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John O'Connell, Harwood. Mr. Bray is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Bray, Baltimore. Mrs. Bray remarked that she is one of a family of seven and that all are still living. Mrs. Bray has one sister, Mrs. George Harper, Cold Springs.

The evening was spent playing progressive euchre. Lunch was served at midnight.

Mr. and Mrs. Bray also have seven granddaughters and one great granddaughter.

Nurses To Seek Shorter Day Sliding Wages

VANCOUVER, June 29 (CP)—Canadian nurses will seek a nation-wide labor code to end long working hours and establish a wage scale to fit the existing cost of living index. These minimum standards of employment were outlined by Ina Broadfoot, chairman of the labor relations committee of the Canadian Nurses' Association. A resolution embodying these standards was passed by the 1,000 delegates at the CNA convention.

A 44-hour week with evening and night shifts limited to no longer than two weeks and wherever possible a two-week period of day duty to follow, is asked by the code.

One day off for statutory holidays—on the holiday or as a substitute day—and three weeks' vacation with pay or four weeks after three years of service, are other demands.

The code said the bargaining agent for the nurses would be the Registered Nurses' Association in each province. Salaries would be based on the cost of living index and reviewed annually.

A shorter training period for nurses was suggested by various delegates.

Agnes J. MacLeod, Ottawa, chairman of the administration committee of a demonstration nursing school at Windsor, Ont., said a nurse could be prepared for staff level graduate nursing in 25 months.

High-powered recruiting is not the solution to the current nurse shortage, Miss Kathleen Russell, director oft he University of Toronto School of Nursing, suggested.

She was commenting on the report presented by Miss Ethel Cryderman at the CNA biennial meeting at Vancouver, in which the national president warned that the shortage may become a national emergency unless immediate action is taken.

Miss Russell expressed the hope that the public would not conclude that recruiting is the only need since there are more young women entering the nursing profession than ever before in Canada.

"There is reason to think," she said, "that we may be reaching the maximum number that we can expect to train for nursing in Canada. The total group of young people available in the country has to be shared with so many other professions and occupations effering opportunities to young women with high school education."

The profession is urging not only conservation of nurses' time and skill, she went on, but also that nursing school conditions be such that care of the sick is made a satisfying experience for the student and she will want to remain in the work after graduation.

EARLY WOMAN DOCTOR—Dr. Irma Levasseur, first woman admitted to membership in Quebec College of Physicians and Surgeons, recently became a life member of Laval University Women Graduates Association to mark her 50th year as a doctor. Born in Quebec, she served during a typhus epidemic in Serbia in 1915 and later helped to found the St. Justice Hospital for children in Montreal and the Infant Jesus Hospital in Quebec.

Woodlot Owners

Need Better Management.

"What is needed is better management. We must prove to owners of wood lots that it pays to farm them, just like any other crop."

Perhaps driven by necessity European countries have long realized the value of wood, he said. Sweden's economy is based on this indutsry and most of it is of the highest quality. It is seldom a Swedish farmer has a woodlot that he fails to "farm" and so shows a profiti.

Great Britain is another country that realizes the urgency of managing its forest properly. The U-Boat blocade in the First World War forced Great Britain to practically denude itself of forests; immediately afterwards an intensive reforestation scheme was begun.

When the Second World War broke out these trees had grown to a useable size and they and their by-products once more filled a national need as the U-Boat menace again became acute.

In 1917, Mr. Bayly said, he attended the Imperial Forestry Conference in England and he found that the third round of reforestation was two years under way.

What practical reasons are there to support the belief that wood will become increasing valuable?

One— With increasing demand people will realize that wood is a valuable commodityand the demand and price will tend to rise together.

Two—In the coming "age of wood" there will be more and more use for it.

Three— A personal opinion, emphasized — the strength of labor unions is increasing and they are forever pushing up their wage demands. Because of this we are not likely to see deflation; at present it is an inflationary spiral.

Yield Big Dividends.

The dollar, as time goes on, is able to purchase less and less of a commodity. So a dollar spent now in wood lot investment will yield big dividends in perhaps 20 years.

This year Ontario planted 20,500,000 acres of trees— some 20-30 square miles. But according to the Select Committee of the Legislature this figure should be increased to 150,000,000 acres a year.

It's a case of taking a tip from European experience. Invest in wood.

Mr. Baylay was introduced by Reeve Melville Johnston of North Monaghan and thanked by Reeve James Gifford of Ennismore. Warden Norman Wilson of Burleigh-Anstruteh was in the chair.

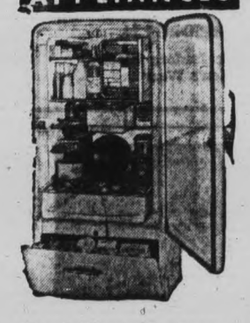
Catherine Proctor Plays Many Roles

Catherine Procter, actress, who is starring this week in the Peterborough Summer Theatre's production of "Harvey" is a veteran of many widely-known plays.

She is now playing the embarrassed elder sister of the beHarveyed Elwood P. Dowd and winning praise for her elegance and subtlety. Last year she played for appreciative local audiences as one of the befuddled sisters in "Arsenic and Old Lace" and as a direct result of her coming to Peterborough she was engaged for a tour of this play to Ontario towns and cities and Montreal.

Experiences of which she is most proud are topped with her role as leading lady to Leo Dietrickstein, a continental actor, in New York and on tour in "Matinee Hero," and "Marquis de Preela." She played with Basil Rathbone in the New York revival of "Importance of Being Earnest."



Her roles have been varied, going at one time directly from the ingenue in "The Concert" to the star part of "Governor's Lady" in which she played a woman of 60. In "East of Suez" she had a sinister Chinese character part.

END OF 35-MINUTE CRUISE—A rescued passenger looks at the American Export Lines' cruise ship, Excalibur, sinking in New York Harbor after a collision with a Danish freighter, the Colombia. The Excalibur was later beached by tugs. The photo was made by another rescued passenger, Dr. William Hartz of Philadelphia, from the rescue vessel, Carol Moran, a tug. All 114 passengers were taken off the Excalibur, which had left on a cruise just 35 minutes before the crash.

Celebrating July 1st In Peterborough

With the co-operation of the citizens and organizations, an interesting program for the holiday on Saturday, celebrating Canada's birthday, has been arranged by the Centennial Committee.

In the afternoon, commencing at one o'clock, there will be the Annual Y's Men's Club Soap Box Derby. This Derby is gaining a reputation for its excellence. The contestants will test their speed and skill down Hunter Street, commencing at Armour Hill. The program will last approximately two hours.

In the evening, commencing at 7.30 o'clock, in Little Lake, the Peterborough Canoe Company and Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Company are sponsoring a display of aquatic sports, including water skiing, canoe skills, etc.

At night, commencing with darkness, there will be a giant fireworks display. These fireworks are intended to assist in marking Peterboroughs Centennial Celebrations. They are to be fired from Point St. Charles, which juts out into Little Lake, and the display should be clearly visible from most points around the shore of Little Lake, and particularly from Burnham's Point and Crescent Street.

Teen-age Boy Wants to Know If He Should Go Steady

DEAR MISS DIX: Will you please answer these questions: (1) Do you think it wise to spend much money on a high school girl? (2) How can a boy tell if a girl really cares for him, or isn't there any way to tell? (3) Is it best for a high school boy to go steady with a girl as long as possible? (4) Every time I go to a dance with a certain girl her family pay my way. If they didn't I coundn't go out with her, as I have no money of my own. I love her so much I can't seem to keep away from her. Please tell me what to do.

L. K.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: (1) A schoolboy shouldn't spend much money on girls because it isn't his own money that he is spending. It is his parents' and he should make as few demands upon them as possible.

Dorothy Dix

(2) There is no absolute infallible way of telling whether a girl is in love with you or not, since even the most apparently artless maiden is adept in dissimulation. But, as a general thing, a girl in love gives plenty of indications of the state of her feelings for you to judge by. Is she always hanging around and contriving accidental meetings? A girl in love is generally as much underfoot as a cat.

Are You First Choice?

Does she pass up other boys for you? If she breaks dates, watch out. She is only using you for a stand-by and a filler-in when no more glamorous youth appears on the scene. Does she make opportunities for you to be alone, or does she always want to be in a crowd? Does she come down with her hat on ready to step out when you call, or does she prefer spending a quiet evening at home listening to you talk? Does she try to save your money, or merely use you as a means to a good time? Is she unselfish toward you?

(3) I think it is foolish for school girls and boys to go "steady" with any particular boy or girl. They make a mistake in tying themselves down so early. They should roam around and have many contacts with many different types of boys and girls, for in that way only can they find out what they really want later on in a husband or wife.

(4) You must be a nice boy and one that a girl's parents approve of if they are willing to pay for the tickets for you to take their daughter out. There is no harm in accepting such favors occasionally, but don't do it often. It will break down your morale and your self-respect.

It won't be long now until you are out of school and able to earn money. Wait until then to show girls a good time.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My wife is neat, attractive, energetic, a splendid cook, economical and a model housekeeper. The house is always dark and dreary because the blinds are drawn to protect the carpet from the sun. Even on the hottest night all the windows and door are closed to protect the curtains. She knows each blade of grass on the lawn by its first name and it is exactly the length of its fellow. She will spend hours preparing a delicious meal, then rake me up one side and down the other because I tracked in a little dust. No furred or feathered pets around our house and you may wager all the tea in China that no baby's gooey finger will ever mar the polish on our furniture. What to do?

ANSWER: I too, have met the woman who was so intent on being the model housekeeper that she missed entirely making a home. I too, have been in houses that were just as sanitary and clean and uncomfortable as a model jail and where every inmate was as well-disciplined and had as little personal freedom as if he were a prisoner.

I have known women who were such meticulous housekeepers that they turned their children out on the street to play to keep them from mussing up things in their own home, and whose husbands wouldn't have dared to lie down on a couch, no matter how tired they were. And I haven't wondered that the husbands and children of such women fled from their over-scrubbed, over-manicured home to homes presided over by sloppy women whose houses were places of comfort and rest and cheer in which everybody relaxed and had a good time.

I am sorry for you, Harry, but when a woman gets the housekeeping complex as badly as your wife has it, she is incurable. Your only recourse is to join some comfortable home-like club.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been married a year and a half to the best man in the world. He has a mother and a grown sister. We have lived with them and supported them. My husband and I both work hard every day while they run around and have a good time. Don't you think it is up to them to get out and look for a job and give us a break?

WORRIED.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: If a mother is old and helpless it is certainly a son's duty to support her, but if she is middle-aged or youngish, and able-bodied, there is no reason in the world for her to festoon herself like a millstone around her married son's neck. She should get out and look for a job. So should the sister.

Here Comes the Bride

They Tossed Stockings Before Bouquets

By VIRGINIA NELLE WILSON
Written for NEA Service

How modern are our modern weddings?

Today's bride walks to the altar down an aisle of petals just as the medieval bride walked on a path of grain scattered by two small girls carrying garlands of wheat. The symbolism of happiness and insured fertility did not change when wheat was replaced by flowers in the late 17th century.

Flowers always have been important in a wedding. At one time a garland for the bride's head was known as the "coronet of the good girl." The misty veil which replaced that garland is the symbol of the wife's submission to her husband.

Veil has replaced the garland.

The covering of the bride until after the marriage rite was, and still is, a strictly followed custom in many lands, especially the Far East. From this tradition comes the superstition that ill-luck will befall the bride if her groom sees her on her wedding day, before the ceremony.

Since white has been sacred to many people, both civilized and barbaric, it has become the bride's color throughout most of the world. To the ancient Greeks and Romans it was the symbol of joy and purity, thus the appropriate color for marriage garments.

The words of the old couplet, "Something old and something new, something borrowed and something blue," are relics of the ancient Israelite marriage ritual in which the bride was demanded to wear blue ribbons upon her shoulders as proof of her love, fidelity and purity.

The use of ribbons and knots in the wedding has been popular in other lands also. The early Anglo-Saxon bride gave to her friends bits of knotted ribbon as symbols of faith and the inseparable ties of love and duty in marriage. Today the boutonnieres and the bouquets of the bridal attendants, as well as the shower of ribbons flowing from our bride's own bouquet or prayer book, perpetuates this early custom.

The tossing of the bridal bouquet is another remnant of the past. During the 14th century in France, securing the bride's garter guaranteed a futuré marriage. Even though the bride left one garter dangling conveniently about her ankle, an over-enthusiastic group of girls were capable of giving her a severe beating.

During the next century the garter grabbing lost favor and was replaced by the stocking throwing. But since a stocking is not the most easily removed piece of wearing apparel, the bride usually became the centre of a tussle. One wise girl, wishing to save herself a mauling, swiftly tossed her bouquet into the surprised group gathered about her. Other girls followed her example, and a new custom began.

Ask World Marys To Aid Old Church

LONDON — (CP) — Every woman in the world named Mary is asked to help provide a new organ for All Hallows-by-the-Tower, oldest Parish church in the City of London.

Queen Mary has contributed the first pipe and given her name to a £7,000 ($21,700) appeal for funds to build the organ.

All Hallows, near the Tower of London, was badly damaged by German bombs.

Formerly known as All Hallows Berkyngechirche by-the-Tower, the church is built on Saxon and Roman foundations. It was temporary resting place for the heart of Richard Coeur de Lion; the Te Deum first was sung there in the native tongue in 1535; John Quincy Adams, sixth president of the United States, was married there.

What's Right?

A girl from a family with very little money is marrying a young man whose parents are wealthy.

WRONG: She lets his parents pay for the wedding.

RIGHT: However simple the wedding must be, the bride's parents always give and pay for it.

The rough road safely o'er,
And our dear one we loved so well
Has only gone before.

And took from us a shining light.
Please God forgive a silent tear,
A silent wish that our son were here.

Monster Moves to Africa Makes Home in Big River

JOHANNESBURG, June 29 — (Reuters) —Along the bushy banks of the Ingwempisi, not far from the borders of Swaziland, there lives in a secret lair deep in the lonely hinterland, a black, snakelike monster, 70 feet long and thick as a man's body.

At least, that's the report of George Atherstone, described by police as a reliable business man, from the town of Piet Retief. He says he saw the monster's great head and the coils of its undulating body at a spot where it had frightened African women.

He told police the women stopped him at the roadside, and he went with them. He saw the river "boiling as if from a depth charge where normally it flows calm and deep."

Then he saw the black, snakelike head appear.

The monster undulated through the water as if swimming. At one time the tail was on one bank and the thickest part of the body—thick as a man—was on the other, 40 feet across, and the head was swaying menacingly in midstream."

Police rushed to the Ingwempisi. They have seen no part of the monster, but they have seen the water boiling furiously "where normally it flows calm and deep," they said.

Power Reserve Ample–Engineer

NEW YORK, June 29 (AP)—A Connecticut engineer said today the electric reserves of the private power companies of the Northeast United States are double the entire estimated output of the proposed St. Lawrence power projec.

Clarence W. Mayott, a Hartford Electric Light Company official, compared the power situation in the northeast with the proposed St. Lawrence development in a personal survey.

He said there is no power shortage in New England or New York and he added that reserves in both areas are ample.

Mayott estimated the proposed St. Lawrence development would be capable of producing about 570,000 kilowatts, compared with a 1949 capability of 8,925,000 kilowatts for New York state and New England.

From a national defence angle, Mayott said, the St. Lawrence project would not increase the amount of reserves available for unforeseen defence loads.

At the most, he said, the proposed St. Lawrence development would substitute for an equivalent amount of steam capacity.

Protest Assessment

SAULT STE. MARIE, June 29 (CP)—The Federal government Wednesday protested 1950 local assessment rolls, claiming the Sault had no right to collect taxes on Crown-owned buildings on land adjoining the ship canal here. A court of revision referred the matter to city solicitor Harry S. Hamilton.

CanadianGroupOffers $750,000 For Hotel

PARIS, June 29 — (AP) — A Canadian investment group has offered $750,000 for the 200-room Hotel de Paris, familiar haunt of Allied soldiers after the liberation of Paris in 1944. The hotel now is owned by the French government, which took it over as enemy property. It formerly was owned by Michael Solnikoff, a known collaborator who was mysteriously killed in Spain a year after the war.

Mrs. Babette Parent who owns a hotel in the Laurentians of Qubeec said she was representing a Canadian group which planned to buy the hotel as a tourist hostel "catering to North Americans."

May Extend Gold Assistance

OTTAWA, June 29 (CP) — Revenue Minister McCann said today the government hopes to be able to disclose its decision on possible extension of emergency gold mining assistance in time to enable mine operators to do future planning on the basis of the announced policy.

The acting Mines Minister told the Commons the government has been too busy with parliamentary duties to consider representations by industry for extension of the production bonus policy. It is slated to end Dec. 31.

Rodney Adamson (PC-York West) said it is "very important" that the industry know what the final decision is so it can chart its course accordingly.

Mr. McCann reiterated to him his original statement that "we hope to be able to give the mines as much time as possible for future planning."

West Indies Ready To Win Test Match

LONDON, June 29—(Reuters) —The West Indies cricket team was set today to win their first test match in England.

At lunch on the final day of the second test at Lords, England was 258 for nine wickets and still wanted 343 ruus to win.

England batting this morning suggested they would delay the end as long as possible but there was no hope of getting the runs to win.

Cyril Washbrook was out before adding to his overnight score of 114 but the team did not go under without a fight. Washbrook, who played a splendid innings, batted five hours and 20 minutes and hit one six and 14 fours.

Sonny Ramadhin, the young West Indies spin bowler, had taken four wickets for 12 runs by lunch.

MP's Watch Rainstorm 10 Miles Away—By Radar

OTTAWA, June 29. — (CP). — Ten members of Parliament Wednesday watched a rainstorm sweeping toward them for a distance of 10 miles without looking at the sky. They were watching a radar screen.

The members, enjoying a brief respite from the Commons, were cruising down the Ottawa River in the National Research Council's latest radar experimental ship —the Radel II.

Six of them were members of the parliamentary NRC committee, under the chairmanship of George J. McIlwraith, Liberal member for Ottawa West.

The Radel II, equipped with the NRC's newest radar gadgets, set off down the river in brilliant sunshine. Soon after flickering lines on the radar screen indicated an approaching rainstorm. Twenty minutes later the members were running for shelter as heavy rain slashed across the decks.

This was described as a minor example of long-range detection. Onthe open sea the range can be extended to about 200 miles.

At the other end of the scale the new radar apparatus has a minimum detection range of 10 yards—an advance on last year's minimum of 25 yards.

All this summer the Radel II will be engaged on experiments in the Great Lakes and other inland waterways, aimed at reducing the minimum detection range even further.

The experiments are designed to enable radar-equipped vessels to dock safely at crowded piers in to enter narrow harbor gaps and thick fog.

Fire Marshal Under Attack

TIMMINS, June 29 (CP) — A delegation of Toronto firefighters Wednesday accused W. J. Scott, Ontario Fire Marshal, with seeking "favorable publicity" at the expense of Toronto fire departments and fire prevention bureaus.

The accusation was made at the 28th annual convention of the Ontario Fire Fighters Association.

Framed in a resolution by Toronto Fire Brigades, the accusation was voted too "powerful" by the majority of delegates and finally thrown out after several attempted amendments had failed.

The resolution, championed chiefly by D. Dunlop of Toronto, said that the parctice of the Ontario Fire Marshal could only be for the "purpose of proclaiming the efficiency" of his office and "belittling the efforts of the municipal fire prevention bureau."

It further stated that the convention should condemn the Ontario Fire Marshal "for his practice of using his office in a political manner to the detriment of local fire department fire prevention bureaus."

Elected President

BIGWIN INN, June 29—(CP) —D. E. MacFarlane, Toronto, was elected president of the Ontario Retail Druggists Association at the conclusion of a four-day convention here Wednesday. Also elected: J. C. Maxwel, Orillia, senior vice-president; W. A. Allen, Ottawa and J. B. Keating, Guelph, junior vice-presidents.

British Doctors Confer On Health Service

LONDON, June 29 (CP)—Representatives of Britain's 20,000 family doctors met today to consider the status of doctors under the national health service.

Doctors are said to have received confidential voting papers asking them to indicate whether they would be prepared to withdraw from the service if that action were thought necessary to obtain salary increases.

TRUMAN ORDERS U.S. ARMY TO KOREA

Canada Sends Destroyers To Hawaii

Ships Will Operate On U.N. Orders If Needed At Korea

OTTAWA, June 30—(CP)—The government today ordered the Navy to speed three West coast-based destroyers toward Pearl Harbor to be ready to head for Korea if the United Nations asks for their aid in its police action against North Korean aggression.

Defence Minister Claxton said they will leave the Esquimault, B.C., naval base within the next week—naval sources said probably Monday—and that their movements from Pearl Harbor will depend on U.N. directions. It will take them about a week to reach Pearl Harbor.

The navy said the destroyers going are the Athabaskan, the Cayuga and the Sioux and said they each carry 200 to 225 men, are fully armed and "ready to go." A naval spokesman said they will exercise in the Pearl Harbor area anyway if the call to Korean action does not come.

If they are ordered into Korean action—it would take at least three weeks to get there if they went direct—it would be Canada's first peacetime military action, her first part in a collective international effort to restore peace through fighting aggression.

Suspend Plans

Meanwhile, Mr. Claxton elaborated on a statement by Prime Minister St. Laurent in the Commons. Mr. St. Laurent said plans to send Canadian naval units to Europe on a training cruise have been suspended.

Mr. Claxton said the cruise has been suspended for the three Pacific coast ships and that they will sail west instead of east. But he said the three east coast ships, including the aircraft carrier Magnificent, will still go to Europe, as planned, late in August unless the world situation forces a change.

Naval sources confirmed that this is so.

The disclosure of Canada's act came in the Commons shortly before prorogation. Mr. St. Laurent said the three ships will only be used if the U.N. feels they should be used and that that would not mean Canada would be involved in a war against another state but in collective U.N. police action to restore peace.

Will Call Parliament

In a statement to the Commons, shortly before prorogation, he promised that parliament will be immediately called back if the international situation deteriorates.

Mr. St. Laurent said Canada's responsibility in Korea arises entirely from her membership in the U.N. and from U.N.'s call, through the Security Council, for collective action by all members to contain the aggression.

It would not be a war against states but part of a collective police action to restore peace.

Senator Says Money 'Slipped Across'

Charges No Time Allowed For Supplementary Estimates Study

OTTAWA, June 30 (CP).—Senator Thomas Reid (L-British Columbia) made a last-minute protest in the Senate today that no time has been allowed for study of supplementary estimates and charged that large amounts of money "are being slipped across."

"Not one Senator knows what is going through," said Senator Reid, speaking during second reading of the government's Supply Bill just prior to prorogation ceremonies in the Upper Chamber. The Senate then gave second and third readings to the money Bill "on division"— a way of showing objection without a formal vote.

The British Columbia Senator said a "new way" of money was becoming apparent. Departments of governmetn just "went on spending and then come back to Parliament and it makes up the deficits."

Senator Arthur Roebuck spoke for 35 minutes on the report of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms Committee of which he was chairman. The Senate then adopted the report, recommending parliamentary adoption of a declaration of human rights as an "interim" measure until a national Bill of Rights could be written into the Canadian constitution.

Senator W. M. Aseltine, Acting Progressive Conservative Leader, said he thought the Senate committees had "done a good job" of going through the estimates, put before them for the first time this year.

Turning to feed grain freight rate subsidies — a $13,000,000 item in this year's supplementary estimates—he emphasized that all the benefit did not go to the Prairie provinces. Between 1941 and the present these subsidies had amounted to almost $125,000,000 and Ontario and Quebec got the lion's share.

House Prorogues Throne Speech TouchesOnKorea

OTTAWA, June 30 (CP)—The speech from the throne, read today at the prorogation of the second session of Canada's 21st parliament, referred to the "serious threat to peace in Korea."

The speech, which reviewed the legislation passed during the session, referred to various developments in the international field said the United Nations recently had been "called upon to deal with the serious threat to peace in Korea."

It added: "Though the situation emphasizes the grav econcern which has long been felt over the failure of the security council to arrange for the provision of forces to implement its decisions in such cases, the prompt and energetic measures taken by individual members on its behalf and in conformity with its resolutions to restore and maintain peace in that area have met with general approval in all the free nations and will, I am sure, dispose them all to supply such form and degree of co-operation as may be required."

The 1,300-word speech was read by Mr. Justice Patrick Kerwin of the Supreme Court of Canada, acting deputy governor-general.

Must Be United

The government, said the speech, remains convinced that until there is "genuine good-will among all nations, the maintenance of peace will continue to depend upon the unity and strength of the free nations."

"The government is continuing to give close attention to the development of our defence forces."

The North Atlantic council had made a significant forward step at its recent meetings by the formulation of the principle of balanced collective forces as the basis for the defence of the Atlantic community.

In an effort to further the economic co-operation of the North Atlantic nations, Canada, along with the United States, had accepted an invitation to become associated on an informal basis with the organization for European economic co-operation.

Canada also was represented at the Commonwealth meeting held in Australia to consider the means of assisting in the economic development of south and southeast Asia.

Canada Eases Regulations To Boost Immigration

OTTAWA, June 30—(CP)—Canada is swinging her doors open wider to new settlers. Aimed at reversing the immigration decline of the last few years, measures announced Thursday night by Immigration Minister Harris will admit new groups to Canada and provide stimulus for those in classes already admissable.

Starting Saturday, several new classes of settlers, now admitted only by order-in-council, may enter freely after passing the normal health, character and passport requirements.

For practically all other categories, the Minister will have power of admission, doing away with the cumbersome procedure of going through cabinet.

The program announced removes the order-in-council restrictions on the entry of immigrants brought in by employees where the number is not more than 25, of domestics and nurses' aides, of those recommended by the immigration department's settlement service, and of relatives sponsored by legal residents of Canada where satisfactory prospects are shown. Previously, the only persons admitted on this basis were first-degree relatives.

Bar Asiatics

Restrictions against the entry of Asiatics will remain in force.

The Immigration Minister is given power to admit all other classes, and he said this would expedite the entry of such immigrants as those bringing in capital to establish businesses; artisans or small business men wanting to establish themselves in rural areas; professional men, and other suitable immigrants.

There is no change in the free entry of British subjects, citizens of Ireland and the United States; citizen-natives of France; persons coming to Canada to be married and farmers with enough means to establish themselves.

Queuille Seeking Support As Premier

PARIS, June 30 (AP)—Premier-designate Henri Queuille goes before the National Assembly today for confirmation of his appointment. He is virtually sure to get it.

Queuille needs 311 of 621 ballots. He may well poll more than 400. Only the Communists are certain to vote against him.

Queuille served as Prime Minister for 13 months up to last October when he was succeeded by George Bidault. It was a post-war endurance record for the precarious post.

UN Meets Today To Study Korea

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., June 30 (AP)—The United Nations Security Council meets today (3 p.m. EDT) to review developments in the campaign to save Communist-invaded South Korea.

Any important issue must be decided soon by the Council, but delegates say they are not yet ready. This is the question of a unified command for all the miscellaneous types of assistance pouring into the UN.

The general belief is that Gen. Douglas MacArthur will continue in command, but his exact status and his relationship with the UN still is under discussion.

Trygve Lie, UN secretary-general, continued assembling information from the 59 member powers as to what type of help they are prepared to give. Lie was to have left today for Europe, but he cancelled his trip because of the Korean developments.

So far the only expressed governmental opposition to the council's sanctions resolution — adopted by a 7-to-1 vote Tuesday night—is from Communist countries. Russia yesterday declared the resolution illegal. A similar message was received from Czechoslovakia last night.

Remand Walker In Twin Slaying

SIMCOE, June 30 (CP)—The man charged with murder in the June 21 Sten-gun slaying of two Norfolk county farmers and the robbery of a bank at Langton, Ont., appeared in Magistrate's Court Thursday and was remanded for one week. He was not asked to plead.

In reply to questions by Magistrate H. P. Innes, the suspect identified himself as George Walker. When arrested, after a four day man-hunt, he gave his name as Frank West.

Walker, wearing grey trousers and a faded blue shirt open at the neck, appeared composed as he heard the charges read. He is charged with the murder of Arthur Lierman, 31, and William Goddyn, 24, and the $22,575 armed robbery of the Imperial Bank of Canada at Langton.

Earlier, police said that all but $800 of the stolen money was recovered.

An old-model car, believed used by two acquaintances of murder suspect George Walker, was found in a private garage in Windsor, Thursday. Provincial police said they are seeking to identify the two men. They were reported to have been seen with Walker in Windsor a few days before the June 21 robbery of a bank in Langton.

Aussie Fliers Loaned To U.S.

CANBERRA, June 30 (Reuters)—Australia today announced that the RAAF 77th Fighter Squadron based in Japan has been made available for the Korean campaign. The squadron has about 40 Mustangs.

Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies said the decision answered a request by Gen. MacArthur and followed day-long talks by telephone and radio with ministers scattered throughout the Commonwealth and with the British and United States governments.

The fighters would be placed at the service of the United Nations through the U.S. authorities.

"The United Nations, having decided to support the republic of Korea, the Commonwealth, as a signatory to the charter, is determined to honor its obligations to do what it can to support the Security Council's decision," he said.

Believe Langton Bandit Bogus Money Gang Leader

WINDSOR, June 30 (CP) — Police said today they believe the man accused of the Langton bank robbery murders was leader of a gang which turned out counterfeit 50-cent pieces in a downtown Windsor house.

They raided the house Thursday and seized several pails of the bogus coins. Equipment valued at $5,000 and $10,000 also was carted to headquarters. The raid netted no suspects.

But police said investigation links the counterfeiting plant to a 37-year-old man named Herbert James McAuliffe. They said he is the man held at Simcoe on charges of robbing the Langton, Ont., branch of the Imperial Bank of Canada June 21 and of slaying Arthur Lierman and William Goddyn, farmers who overtook the killer as he fled.

The suspect, arrested last Saturday after a full-scale manhunt, gave his name as Frank West. In court at Simcoe Thursday, he identified himself as George Walker. Windsor authorities now say his real name is Herbert James McAuliffe.

Police said they also found seven pistols and automatic weapons in a barrel partly filled with sawdust, together with hundreds of rounds of ammunition. Some of the live shells were said to be the same calibre as the slugs which killed the two Langton farmers.

The investigation started when Emile Lezure, owner of a rooming house, recognized a picture of the man arrested for the Langton robbery and murder. Lezure told police the man was McAuliffe, who had roomed at his home for the last 2½ months.

MacArthur To Decide Men Needed

Authorizes Blockade Of Entire Coast To Curb Invasion

WASHINGTON, June 30 — (AP)—President Truman today authorized the use of American ground troops in Korea. The President announced he has authorized:

1. The United States Air Force to fly specific military missions into Northern Korea wherever necessary.

2. "A naval blockade of the entire Korean coasts."

3. Gen. Douglas MacArthur "to use certain supporting ground units" in the efforts to turn back the Communist invaders of Southern Korea.

These new moves were announced after a cabinet-congressional conference at the white house.

There was no immediate elaboration here as to what these "certain supporting ground units" might be.

Dispatches from Korea have made it plain, however, that the South Koreans are particularly in need of artillery and anti-tank weapons.

MacArthur has in his Far East Command an army strength of 123,500 men.

Truman's decisions presumably were taken on recommendation of Gen. MacArthur.

On the basis of Thursday's reports of the Korean fighting, there had been strong hopes that there would be no necessity—at least not for the immediate future—of adding to the military strength already put into the effort to turn Communist invaders back from South Korea.

Say Heart Attack Strikes Stalin

SALEM, Mass., June 30 (AP)—Roland W. Estey, writing today in the Salem Evening News, says Prime Minister Stalin suffered a heart attack June 2 while on a plane bound from Chita.

Estey says he received the information from sources in Europe and that it had been turned over to the United States Intelligence Agency. Estey writes that the plane was en route for a conference in the town of Chita, approximately 100 miles north of the Chinese border.

"The heart attack apparently was of such a nature," Estey writes, "that it seemed wise to return him to Moscow and permit his impersonator to proceed on the trip."

A former U.S. Intelligence officer, Estey says that during the May 31 demonstration in Moscow Stalin became fatigued and his double again took his place.

Estey says he received a letter June 21 from Europe containing this message: "Watch Formosa or Chosen before one July."

Estey says his friend had the information six days before the aggression leading to the belief the Communists in Northern Korea jumped the gun.

Go Hunting Moose 9 Quebec Men Fined

LA TUQUE, Que., June 30 (CP)—Nine men from the La Toque area have been arrested and fined for hunting out of season and illegal canning and sale of moose meat.

Arthur Jacob, La Toque jobber and two employees, Alex Bellemare and Louis Perron, were fined $300 for illegal possession of moose meat and hunting out of season. Jean Charles Duchesne and Alfred Trembly of Bostonnais were fined $200 each for illegal possession and attempted sale of moose meat.

Roger Roy, a La Croche, Que., settler was fined $200 for illegal canning.

Sylvestre Laloche of Rapid Blanc, Que., and Francois Coo Coo of the Sanmaur Indian reservation were fined $200 each for hunitng, killing and possession of a moose. Daniel Laloche, Sylvestre's father, was fined $100 for acting as their agent.

Refuse To Back UN

ALEXANDRIA, June 30 — (AP) — Prime Minister Nahas Pasha of Egypt today announced this country's refusal to back the U.N. Security Council resolution on aid for Korea.

Admits Setting Circus Fire That Killed 168

COLUMBUS, O., June 30—(AP)—Harry J. Callan, Ohio fire marshal, today said Robert Dale Segee, 21, Circleville, O., has signed statements admitting he set the Ringling Brothers circus fire in Hartford, Conn., that killed 168 persons and injured 412 others in 1944.

Callan said Segee also admitted setting between 25 and 30 major fires in Portland, Me., between 1939 and 1946, other tires in New Hampshire and Ohio and that he is personally responsible for the slaying of four persons.

Callan said all of Segree's statements have been carefully checked by his investigators since Segee was taken into custody last May 17 on the farm of a relative near East St. Louis, Ill.

A grand jury today indicted Segee on two charges of arson, stemming from fires in Circleville, Ohio.

Circus Employee

Callan in a prepared statement said Segee was employed by the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus from June 30 to July 13, 1944.

It went on that the day Segee joined the circus at Portland, Me., "there was a fire on tent ropes that was extinguished without loss." Then the circus moved to Providence, R.I. and, "while there another small fire occurred on the tent flap." Again the fire was put out with no loss.

"On July 6, 1944, at Hartford, Conn., the major fire occurred, which took the lives of 168 people," Callan's statement added.

Jury Finds Rossler Guilty

MONTREAL, June 30 (CP) — Thomas Rossler was found criminally responsible for the death of RCMP constable Alex Gamman by coroner's jury here today.

The jury, hearing evidence on the fatal shooting of the constable in an attempted holdup of a branch of the Bank of Toronto here May 25, ruled Rossler responsible after two minutes deliberation.

Rossler was identified as the would-be-robber by Stanley Bickley, manager of the branch.

Another witness, Victoria James, identified Rossler as the man who shot Gamman as Gamman ran towards the bank.

Get Shorter Hours

OTTAWA, June 30 (CP)—Justice Minister Garson said Thursday night in the Commons that steps are being taken to provide a shorter work-week for staffs of federal penitentiaries. Speaking after William Bryce (CCF-Selkirk) had said that the staffs wanted a 44-hour week, Mr Garson said that extra employees now are being hired to permit a shortening of the hours of work.

Red Tank Column Smashes Through Han Line Threatens U.S. Headquarters

MacArthur Bombing Northern Korean Points In Effort To Halt Drive; Earlier Report Claimed Seoul Re-entry

TOKYO, July 1—(Saturday)—(CP)—An armored column of North Korean Communists has penetrated at least 15 miles south of the Han River, vital defence line in North Korea, it was reported tonight. The drive is threatening the American headquarters position at Suwon, about 20 miles south of the river, an authoritative military source here reported. The reverse came as southern troops fought desperately to stem the invasion until they received aid promised on an ever-growing stage by the United Nations.

As American bombers ranged far into North Korea to strike at air bases and military installations, a further pledge of all-out assistance came from President Truman at Washington.

Unofficial reports said Gen. MacArthur will begin flying troops to Suwon from Kyushu today.

It was believed the first troops to be flown into action would be specialists, such as anti-tank gunners and engineers, to bolster South Korean defences against armor.

Moving Closer

Authoritative informants claimed the Reds were no farther than eight miles from Suwon by 1 a.m. today and probably were closer.

There was no information whether American Field Headquarters had left Suwon. Loss of Suwon would deprive the defence of the last remaining good-sized air strip north of Pusan, in extreme southeast Korea 175 miles away.

The broad Han River is the principal natural barrier between the Red-captured southern capital of Seoul and the temporary southern capital at Taejon, 90 miles south of Seoul.

An earlier South Korean report said southern troops had re-entered the suburbs of Seoul on the heels of fleeing Communists. It was not clear whether this report still stood, although it did not necessarily conflict with the news of a Red breakthrough southwest of the city.

Hard American air blows were being directed against North Korean bases and installations.

Military informants said the Han River apparently was crossed by the Reds during darkness after two small advance bands of invaders had been wiped out by the

Topples From Plane Blames Air Currents

NEW YORK, June 30 (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Administration announced receipt of a report from its airways communications base at Norfolk, Va., that a passenger had been sucked out of a plane over Accomac, Va., early today.

The report said a rear cargo door of a plane owned by Argonaut Airlines blew open and air currents pulled out the passenger who was standing near the door.

The passenger was identified as James Trotter of Miami Springs, Fla.

Coal Industry Sees Deficits At End In 1950

LONDON, June 30 (Reuters)—Britain's nationalized coal industry today predicted that this year would see its deficits wiped out and the beginning of reserve building from current operating profits.

The National Coal Board, in its annual report for 1949, said the working profit—derived from high export prices—had been £9,500,000 ($29,450,000). The over-all deficit was reduced to £12,300,000. This would be made good by the end of this year, the report said.

Without high export prices for the 19,000,000 tons sold abroad or in bunkers here, there would have been no profit. Export prices are about £1 ($3.10) a ton above inland prices.

Production Cost Cut

For the first time in 15 years the cost of coal production decreased—by six pence (about 7¾ cents) a ton.

During 1949 the board spent £31,000,000 replacing old plant and on additions to collieries.

The labor force decreased but productivity increased and the piece-rate system meant increases in average miners' earnings.

Production, including that of strip mines, totalled 250,000,000 tons—5,000,000 more than in 1948.

Home consumption increased to a record 196,000,000 tons. The industry at the end of the year was exporting at an annual rate of 23,000,000 tons and the year's work on exports earned about £50,000,000 in foreign currency including some dollars from Canadian and United States markets.

Britain Appeals For Soviet Aid

LONDON, June 30 (Reuters)—Britain has appealed to the Russian government to co-operate in bringing about settlement of the Korean conflict.

The appeal was made to the Soviet government by the British ambassador in Moscow, Sir David Kelly, who called at the Russian foreign office yesterday, the foreign office announced today.

Sir David saw the head of the second European division in the absence of the deputy foreign minister, Andrei Gromyko, who was busy at the time.

Double Inspection Halted Canada-U.S. Ease Red Tape

OTTAWA, June 30 — (CP) — Canada and the United States today agreed to eliminate some of the red tape which slows up travel between the two countries.

In a move designed to make international travel by air and sea easier, the two countries agreed to put a halt on "double" quarantine inspection formerly necessary for ships and aircraft visiting both Canadian and U.S. ports.

The Health Department announced today that under new regulations, the quarantine will need to be carried out in one country only. A craft that receives an inspection certificate in the United States, for example, will not have to go through another inspection in Canada.

The new procedure goes into effect July 1 and covers all ships and aircraft in Canada and the United States from other countries.

Public health quarantine inspections are performed at ports of entry to prevent introduction of communicable diseases by persons or by ships, aircraft or other things arriving from infected countries.

Of chief concern to health authorities are the "quarantineable diseases," such as smallpox, cholera, plague, typhus and yellow fever.

Previously ships and aircraft receiving quarantine inspection in Canada had to undergo another inspection on arrival in the United States.

His Second Escape Brings 2-Year Term

SUDBURY, June 30—(CP)—A second escape from Burwash Industrial Farm Thursday brought 23-year-old Henry Lariche a two-year sentence In Kingston Penitentiary. The term will run consecutively with a two-year sentence imposed in Sault Ste. Marie for breaknig, entering and theft.

Escaping from the prison farm June 10, he was recaptured by guards 24 hours later on the shore of Lake Nepewassi, some six miles east of the jail farm.

Refusing to halt after a number of warning shots had been fired over his head, Lariche was brought down with a bullet in his right thigh. The wound was not serious.

He had previously escaped from Burwash in 1947 and was recaptured one month later in Toronto.

USSR Rejects U.S. Plea To Aid Peace

Does Not Approve 'Outside Meddling' In Korean Affairs

MOSCOW, June 30—(AP)—Russia Thursday night rejected a United States request for her help in getting North Korean forces out of South Korea.

A note said Russia does not approve of the "interference of foreign powers in the internal affairs of Korea."

The U.S. had also asked for assurance that Russia would "not take upon itself the responsibility for this unprovoked and unjustified attack."

Russia replied that responsibility for the fighting in Korea "lies with the South Korean authorities and with those who stand behind them."

No Elaboration

There was no elaboration of the phrase "those who stand behind them."

"The events which are going on in Korea were provoked by the attack of the troops of the South Korean authorities on the frontier areas of Northern Korea," the Soviet message added.

Russia said it had "confirmed its traditional principle of non-interference in the internal affairs of other states" by withdrawing its troops from Korea "earlier than did the U.S. Government".

Previously - announced United Nations findings showed that North Korea began the hostilities last Sunday by invading the southern area.

The Russians Dec. 31, 1948, announced that they had withdrawn all their occupation troops from North Korea, but a UN commission later was refused permission to visit Communist-dominated northern area. The U.S. last July 1 announced withdrawal of all its troops from South Korea except for about 500 military advisers requested by the South Korea Government.

AND ALL FOR NOTHING

Late Thursday night homeward-bound residents admired the aureb-ealis—araura-boralis—orora borealis—in any case, they were admiring an eye-catching display of northern lights. Weather prophets — quack and otherwise—immediately plunged on whether or not it boded ill for Saturday's centennial and Dominion Day celebrations. At one time, shortly before midnight, a bar of green stretched horizontally across the northern sky unbroken but for a single blip. And other shafts of shimmering light converged as though to the dome of the heavens.

Should Fair Move Elsewhere? Free Morrow Pk.

Discussion of a proposed building for Peterborough Exhibition, for which the city was being asked to contribute $15,000, switched almost immediately this morning to the broader and long-view question of a new site with adequate acreage.

Hugh Stewart, president of the Exhibition, participated in that sentiment with the expression: "My own feeling is that as we continue to grow where we are, we are likely to have all buildings and not enough ground."

Ald. Hugh Waddell remarked at the close: "There is more argument for relocating the Exhibition than there is for remaining where it is now."

The conference ended on an understanding that the Exhibition Board and the Council would separately consider the preliminaries of approach to provision for future development.

T. J. Carley, KC, speaking for the Morrow Trust, represented by R. M. Glover, Herbert I. Bradburn and himself, said: "The Trust will continue to co-operate as we have done up to the present."

Move Site?

Mayor Swanston promised that this Exhibition matter would be brought before the Council Monday night, and Hugh Stewart's remark was: "Our directors will take it up at our next meeting."

An earlier comment by Ald. Herbert Young was: "I think that the citizens of Peterborough would be more in favor of a contribution of $100,000 over a period of years for moving the Exhibition site, than they would be for $15,000 to the building the directors are thinking of."

Mayor Swanston presided, and those attending were, directors of the Exhibition, Mr. Stewart, G. A. Gillespie secretary-manager, Alex Huston, Norman McConkey, vice-president, Don Milburn; Mr. Carley, Mr. Bradburn, and Mr. Glover for the Trust; Aldermen Waddell, Young and J. A. Dewart.

The discussion obliquely approached the $15,000 building project by reference to use of the old drill for market purposes, which "enters into the picture," Mayor Swanston said.

Trustees Co-operative

Reported opposition by the Morrow Trust to the market transfer, apparently had nettled Mr. Carley.

"It is simply not fair to say that there has been any lack of co-operation by the Trust," he said. "If lack of co-operation means that we won't become trust-breakers, it is right enough. There are a lot of brilliant people who no doubt would make better trustees than we are, if they had the opportunity, but no one has the right to say that Morrow Park may be used for a different purpose than that for which it was given.

"If any of you gave a property in trust for public use, that is what you would require."

Recalling negotiations for a Community Centre site at the park, Mr. Carley said the Trust had obtained three legal opinions and they were adverse to the proposal.

Rental Policy

Something was said about the Exhibition Board's policy of renting the buildings at the park. Mr. Carley said that such use was not permissible beyond a short period of a week or 10 days.

On the other hand, Mr. Stuart and Mr. Gillespie said the city wished the park to be kept presentable. Maintenance cost could not be met except with the financial help of the rents. That was only a diversion from the main theme which was introduced into the parley by a comment of Mr. Carley that it appeared to him the city council was thinking about the possibility of moving the Exhibition from Morrow Park to another location.

"I'm glad Mr. Carley has brought out that point," Mr. Stewart said, and quiet promptly, too.

Mr. Gillespie recalled that directors of the Exhibition 30 years ago had scanned the countryside looking for an alternate site, but could not find one that appealed to them.

However, from that point the discussion widened into the site proposal, and the $15,000 building was not mentioned again.

Canada would participate in Korea if she were informed that her contribution to a U.N. operation under a U.N. commander would be important to achieve the ends of peace.

If she got that information, the government would immediately make such contributions.

Believes In Peace

Mr. St. Laurent said he believed peace could be preserved in Korea.

If that were done, he said, "Then the chance of preserving peace over a far wider area of the world than Korea will be immensely increased."

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, rose immediately after the prime minister finished to say the house welcomed his announcement that parliament would be summoned if the situation deteriorated.

He declared that a government supply bill to be passed today would permit the administration to make greater defence expenditures than were specifically authorized in the bill, and in the light of world events he was sure all members would support such action as was necessary to bring defence forces to the highest state of effectiveness.

Mr. Drew said the world now was seeing the first real effort to make the collective principle of the United Nations charter effective in the form of sanctions in a case of clear-cut aggression.

Far from feeling depressed by the gravity of current events, he said, "all should be greatly encouraged by the hope that is offered that the steady wave of aggression of the last few years may at last be stemmed by the vigorous joint action of free men throughout the world."

He was sure no one in Canada or elsewhere wanted to see suicide squads replace the armed equipment that could be produced by the industrial nations of the world.

Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre), acting CCF leader, said it was fitting that the prime minister take the House into confidence as he had.

The CCF welcomed the assurance that Canada will live up to her obligations under the United Nations charter and that any action taken will be under the auspices of United Nations. The plan to call parliament should the situation deteriorate was as it should be.

Mr. Knowles said that the way of collective security and the way of democracy in Canadian affairs was the surest way to peace.

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, said he also was glad of the assurance that parliament will be called in the event of a change for the worse in the situation.

Red Tanks

South Korean defence. The Red armor apparently was ferried across, as all bridges were reported destroyed.

A MacArthur headquarters spokesman said 40 or 50 North Korean tanks have crossed the Han River.

The highway route from the river to Suwon cuts through flat farmlands where there are no fixed defences.

Loss of Suwon would seriously cripple the American ability to supply the South Koreans with arms, for no other strip north of Pusan can handle big transports.

The main barrier to a deep southward sweep by the invader's armour at present appeared to be American war planes.

Re-enter Seoul

Earlier reports from the battle-front itself had not referred to the Communist penetration. In fact, Clarence Ryee, Korean director of public information, had reported that southern troops had re-entered the southern suburbs of Seoul, the fallen capital.

Tom Lambert, an Associated Press correspondent writing from Suwon, air base south of the front line, described "a thin, worried line of south Koreans" attempting to reorganize their forces. He said that enemy tanks were the main fear of the defenders, but did not report any crossing of the Han.

The South Koreans' main preoccupation seemed to be to hang on until aid promised by the Uniten Nations materialized. An Australian order placing a squadron of Mustang fighters at MacArthur's disposal was expected to have a tangible effect.

Naval forces for use along the coast were growing rapidly. Admiral Sir Patrick (Paddy) Brind, commander-in-chief of the Royal Navy's Far East naval station, said at Singapore that units under his command already had taken part in operations, but did not specify how.

Bomb North Korea

American air support now extends into North Korea, where enemy aircraft are being attacked "wherever they are." A Reuters correspondent who accompanied MacArthur on his visit to the front yesterday quoted the General as saying:

"I'm not going to have their planes killing my airmen without hitting them where they should be hit."

The South Korean commander, Maj.-Gen. Chey Byong Duk, was said to have attempted suicide at one point in the fighting. He now has resigned, and has been succeeded by Brig.-Gen. Chung Ill Kwa.

MacArthur's orders to hit Northern Korea bases and installations came after Britain, Australia, New Zealand, The Netherlands and Nationalist China pledged active support against the invaders. The pledges included air, sea and ground forces, the latter reported being considered by Nationalist China.

Drop 300 Bombs

Information director Ryee announced raids by "our air force" against Pyongyang, northern capital, last night. Tass news agency in Moscow attributed the attack to 27 U.S. B29s. Tass said 300 bombs were dropped and claimed many casualties were caused.

To carry the fight to the Communists, MacArthur will draw on American, British, Australian and New Zealand warships. The Netherlands has offered naval units now in Indonesia.

U.S. Navy carrier fighters and bombers also will poin in the assault.

Will Use Everything

"We will use all the naval and air units at our command," said MacArthur's chief of staff, Maj.-Gen. E. M. Almond.

U.S. troops stood by in Japan, on the alert. Headquarters would not confirm reports that U.S infantrymen would be sent to the front. But it is considered extremely possible that this will be done.

B-29s and other American planes pounded Thursday at North Korean positions around Red-captured Seoul. They made 183 flights, shot down five hostile planes, ripped up Seoul's Kimp airfield, smashed trucks and a locomotive.

MacArthur called it the most successful air operations since the Korean offensive began. He said there were no American casualties. Eyewitnesses saw 18 Superforts on one bombing mission.

Earlier reports said the heavy air attacks flushed North Korean forces out of Kimpo, 16 air miles west of Seoul.

South Korean units regained the damaged airfield but Seoul itself remained under Red control.

Destroy Last Bridge

O. H. P. King, Associated Press correspondent, reported from Suwon, advanced American headquarters 20 miles south of Seoul, that South Koreans blew up the last remaining bridge across the Han.

A second key railroad bridge spanning the river was destroyed Thursday upon MacArthur's orders after he observed the fighting front.

It was apparent during MacArthur's battlefront tour that some American foot soldiers will be needed to lead South Korean ground forces back across the territory grabbed by the northern Reds. This was corroborated by American officers on the spot.

Pope Decrees Excommunication In New Blow At East Europe

VATICAN CITY, June 20 (Reuters)—Pope Pius today decreed excommunication of all who "plot against legitimate ecclesiastical authorities."

Observers here regarded this as a major move by the Pope against the Communists governments of East Europe.

By a pronouncement of the Vatican's congregation of the council, the Pope declared automatically excommunicated those who:

1. "Plot against legitimate ecclesiastical authorities or who try to subvert their power."

2. "Occupy an ecclesiastical office, benefice or dignity, without canoical provision made in accordance with the sacred canons, or who allowed themselves to be so installed or who illegally retain them."

3. "Participate directly or indirectly in these two crimes."

Blow At East Europe

The Pope's measure was taken to be directly aimed at Eastern Europe Communist government and the Roman Catholic clergy who co-operate with them beyond a certain limit.

It came as the struggle between the governments and the estimated 60,000,000 Catholics behind the "Iron Curtain" was reaching a new pitch, with intensified persecution reported here from many countries.

The move was believed to be particularly directed at governments such as that of Czechoslovakia which recently nominated "administrators" to each bishopric.

The decision was announced in the Vatican's usual form, without comment or explanation. It was dated June 29.

On June 28 last year the Supreme Sacred Congregation of the Vatican — the Vatican's highest tribunal on matters of faith and morals — pronounced automatic excommunication against active Communists.

Today's announcement was regarded here as completing the line-up of the world's 400,000,000 Roman Catholics against Communism.

All Parties Advocate Better Pensions

OTTAWA, June 30—(CP)—All parties in the Commons Thursday night advocated better pensions for Canada's aged.

Clearing the way for prorogation today, members in 13 hours disposed of the remaining estimates of expenditure for the 1950-51 fiscal year. In the drive, attention turned briefly to the report of the parliamentary committee on old-age security.

That report advocated a $40-a-month pension to all persons 70 and over regardless of means and financed largely out of employer-employee contributions. The report also suggested a $40-a-month pension to needy persons in the 65-69 age group.

At present, the federal government pays 75 per cent of the cost of pensions up to $40 a month and the provinces pay the balance. Some provinces pay supplements, bringing the pension in those provinces up to $50 a month. To qualify a person must be 70 or over, a resident of Canada for 20 years and without any other sources of support.

Get Thorough Study

Health Minister Martin promised that the committee's report will receive "thorough" study from the federal government. He indicated that it will be submitted to the Dominion-Provincial conference scheduled this fall.

CCF and Social Credit spokesmen supported the report as far as it went, but suggested it should have gone farther. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said his party will continue to

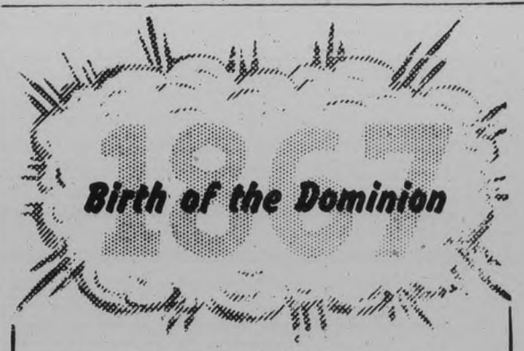
Market Leaders Edge Ahead On Exchange

TORONTO, June 30 (CP) — Market leaders edged ahead slightly as prices attempted a slight recovery movement of yesterday's sharp losses. Opening prices were best and interest lagged as the session progressed. Some easiness developed in leading base metals in mid-session. Volume for the first three hours was 1,618,000 shares.

Gains ranged from fractions to more than a full point in leading industrials. Activity slowed to a comparative crawl as selling orders dried up. Papers, utilities, agricultures and a few refining oils were higher. Steels, textiles and foods eased.

Senior and junior gold producers jumped ahead strongly in early trading and settled into a narrow price path at the higher level as the session progressed. A handful of low-priced issues turned active in mid-session.

A nervous list of base metal stocks slipped from plus territory into minus ground. United Keno Hill showed a strong opening recovery but the advance was reduced in later dealings.



Western oils also slipped from early advances. Home Oil and Royalite showed fractional gains.

Will Boost Fare

NEW YORK, June 30 (AP) — The city's Third Avenue transit system, whose buses serve more than 1,000,000 passengers daily, was authorized today to boost its fares to 10 cents, an increase of two cents. The board of estimate also granted a one-cent interim increase to other privately-operated bus lines, raising fares on them to eight cents.

Counties Put Campbellford In E. Northumberland Area

COBOURG, June 30 (ENS)—Bylaws setting up one high school district in Durham County and another in east Northumberland were passed Thursday by the United Counties council. Passage of the bylaw affecting the east Northumberland area followed weeks of controversy and the town of Campbellford is at present considering whether to break away from the Counties Council and form a separate municipality.

Len Gordon of Colborne, one time chairman of the special schools committee, told the consultative committee that Colborne village paid $2,700 for its high school education in 1949 but after it became part of the high school district, the armount was only $950. Brighton paid $3,200 before the high school district was set up and $1,500 afterwards. Cramahe had an outlay of $2,600 before and $2,590 after.

Reeve Ted Woodyard of Cartwright township pointed out that north Cavan, which is in the Peterborough suburban area, paid more because of low assessment and the fact that cost of education in the Peterborough suburban area was one of the highest in the province.

In the Durham bylaw, there was an amendment that Manvers be left out, at their own request from the Durham High School District. Accordingly the by-law was passed with this deletion and the area read Darlington, Hope, part of Cavan, Clarke, Newcastle, Millbrook, Bowmanville, and Port Hope and to discontinue the Port Hope, Bowmanville, high school district.

Try To Secede

The vote to set up the east Northumberland High School District did not proceed with such little opposition. Reeve R. J. Locke of Campbellford declared his municipality had decided that, if the bylaw was passed, they would try to secede from the counties. After a close vote, the bylaw was passed and formed a district made up by Brighton township, part of Percy township, Seymour township, Brighton village, Colborne village, Campbellford and Cramahe township.

Reeve Locke said he did not consider that this was the proper time to set the district boundaries. There was a strong feeling now between the north and south portions of Northumberland and it might take some years before they would reach the frame of mind necessary for union.

Deputy-Reeve O. Mason of Campbellford said Seymour township and Campbellford were not in favour of the district as set up, but that in time some agreement might be reached. Reeve Locke said they would favour Campbellford and Seymour as one district.

Called Councillors Nitwits

Reeve Art Wartman of Percy Township recalled that a meeting was held at Hilton at the request of the chairman of the Campbellford Board and that the chairman at that meeting had described the members of the counties council as nitwits.

The same man at the June session of counties council had phoned in and told his reeve that the by-law should be held up so that he could go to work on some of these people at Hilton. All the south area board voted to go into one high school district but Campbellford and Seymour voted against it.

"Before I came up to the June session everybody in Percy township was happy about it. The Dept. of Education, in spite of pressure that had been brought to bear against it, approved the bylaw so they must see that one area is the best thing," Reeve Wartman said.

Campbellford threatened to withdraw if one area were formed because they were opposed to helping to pay for a new school at Brighton.

Well Looked After

Contrary to the figures quoted by Mr. E. C. McKell in the press, Campbellford was well looked after by the counties, Reeve Wartman said.

In 1949 Campbellford received a special grant of $5,000 for their new hospital plus the $1,500 grant for their present eight-bed hospital. High school payments were $4,457; health unit, $3,360. Percy township gave up its health unit office in Warkworth so that there could be one in Campbellford. In addition they received other counties services.

In dollars, Campbellford received $14,643.27 and paid out $13,143.00, Reeve Wartman said.

New Cottage Site West Chemong Being Opened

Rev. Dr. Bruce Gordon of Trinity United Church has bought as a summer cottage site the western point of the long promontory off the south shore of Chemong Lake that is plainly and attractively visible from the Peterborough-Lindsay highway approaching Fowler's Corners and the Victoria county boundary.

Two Peterborough doctors are interested in another breezy point on the north shore, and prospective purchasers in Toronto have put their fingers on four other lots in the short time since Hugh Stewart decided to subdivide the property.

Mr. Stewart is himself building four cottages and several other Peterborough men have looked over the northern shore line which has been surveyed into 23 lots each of 14,000 square feet.

This lakefront land across the water from the old Tully farm property extending southerly to the 4th line of Smith, now No. 7 Highway, was recently surveyed by Mr. John Pierce. The plan of the subdivision has been approved by the township council, and the approval of the Ontario Department of Planning and Development was received by Mr. Stewart only this week.

Stewart Heights is the name he has given to the property, and the road he has opened parallel with the shoreline is to be called Maryland Drive. It is actually an extension of the fifth concession road from the vicinity of the summer home of Senator J. J. Duffus, immediately east of the 44 acres of Stewart Heights, to the tip of the "island" which Rev. Dr. Gordon obtained apparently as the first-comer.

Mr. Stuart said he had not done anything yet about subdividing the south shore and also upper and central sections of the Heights.

"This is the last lake property close to Peterborough that is being offered to the public, and I don't think it will be long until it is occupied in much the same way as the rest of Chemong Lake lots."

The Stewart property is in the 2nd lot of the 4th concession of Smith, which extends from the Peterborough-Lindsay Highway (the 4th line), west of Fowler's Corners, northerly across Mud (Chemong) Lake.

Thomas Mitchell received the southeast 50 acres from the Crown in 1823 and sold it to William Coon for £50 in 1824. The next transfer was in 1826 by W. Coon to Jeremiah Lapp for £30, and 1852 Lapp sold to Robert Tully for £50.

In 1825 Francis C. Turnouth received a Crown grant of the 50 acres adjoining the Mitchell property, and sold his land in 1832 to John T. Williams whose executors disposed of it in 1857 for £120 to Robert Tully.

In 1872 Robert Tully secured possession of all of lot 2 by applying for that north part, which is mostly the present Stewart land in the ing to the Crown and paying $24 lake. He sold it in 1879 to his son William, who in turn sold in 1897

Then in 1914 Joseph sold his to Robert J. and Joseph Tully. interest to Robert J. Tully. The property was bought in 1933 by the late Thomas S. Kerr of Toronto from the executors of R. J. Tully.

Mrs. Ruth Kelly was the next owner purchasing all of lot 2 from the Kerr interests in 1944. Four years later Hugh Stewart bought from Mrs. Kely, and then disposed of it to James and Loretta Shaughnessey, but retaining ownership of the lake part.

Our Eighty-Third Dominion Day

Tomorrow we shall celebrate our eighty-third Dominion Day. There have been attempts during recent years to alter the name of our national holiday to Canada Day, but they have not received much support, and properly so. There are people who feel that the word Dominion implies a degree of colonialism. Words, however, change their meanings with usage, and because this country is a free and autonomous one, voluntarily associated with the British Commonwealth and voluntarily subject to the Crown, we think that Canada has thereby given a new meaning to the word Dominion. It is a meaning of which we are proud. In our eighty-three years we have not disgraced it.

• • •

We have, in our short life as a united nation, risen in the estimation of the world. In 1862 a traveller from England, Anthony Trollope, was able to write, with perfect fairness:

In going from the States into Canada an Englishman is struck by the feeling that he is going from a richer country into one that is poorer, and from a greater country into one that is less.

There is still a measure of truth in such a statement, but it does not carry the weight that it did when Trollope wrote it. We are a poorer country than the U.S.A., but we are doing much to bring forth our great potential wealth. We have aroused the cupidity of the U.S.A., and that great and wealthy country does not waste its envy on trivial matters. As for passing from "a greater country into one that is less", that is far less true than it was, even so long ago as 1939. Canada has increased in the world's estimation both in war and in international affairs. And by the time we celebrate our hundredth anniversary of Confederation most of the truth will have been removed from Trollope's judgement.

• • •

During the month of June the Commonwealth Press Union met in Canada and editors and publishers from every part of the British Commonwealth cast an appraising eye upon Canada. They were agreed that its wealth was astonishing and its potential wealth incalculable. They were deeply impressed by the country which has grown out of that unpretentious confederation of eighty-three years ago. We have only to keep to our present course, and a great fulfillment will be ours.

Strawberry Festivals

Five strawberry socials were advertised the other evening in our Coming Events column. We are glad to note that they are as perennial as the strawberries themselves, now coming into their big fruity prime. And really, the strawberry socials hereabouts are festivals. The strawberries themselves are the best in ten counties—none of the hot-house, mushy, insipid kind, but great big fellows, with a tang and a texture fit for the palates of epicures as well as persons the palates of epicures These strawberries lapped in cream are the piece de resistance, but there are side dishes to tickle the appetite; currant buns, butter tarts and home-made chocolate cake. One of our advertisers this week was also offering salad and meat. Then afterwards, there is chat with the neighbours and a stroll—if such exercise is still possible about the lawn of the church or school, before the Entertainment begins; usually a hard-wrought play or concert. One Social this week offered a ball game, another a variety program, another a play "George Gets In A Jam". (Your guess what kind of jam.)

The Strawberry Festival is indeed a fine Ontario institution. We hope it lasts for ever. By the way, the old custom of charging half-price for children still lasts though everybody knows that children eat their way from one end of the table to the other at such spreads. The cut-rate is merely a genial annual June assertion that the fruit of this good earth is more than equal to the law of supply and demand, without regard for pinching principles of economics.

Special License Plates For Convicted Drivers

The provincial government of Saskatchewan has adopted a plan for dealing with traffic offenders which we shall watch with interest. Any driver convicted of a serious offence has his current license plate taken away, and a new one in a distinctive colour is attached to his car; therefore all other drivers on the road know when they are near a driver who has been found guilty of driving to the public danger. So far 461 of these "disgrace" plates have been placed on Saskatchewan cars; 170 other motorists have had their licenses suspended altogether. Plainly Saskatchewan means business.

Whether the plan will be completely successful or not can only be shown by time. If it is strongly enforced it should work very well, but the penalty is a severe one, bringing bad drivers into public disgrace, and legal authorities, who have to live with the drivers who come before them on traffic charges, may be reluctant to impose severe penalties. Too often it is not the weakness of laws themselves, but the weakness of those whose task it is to enforce the laws, which permits abuses.

It might be a very good thing if a man who had been convicted of drunken driving were ordered to have a red license plate on his car. Other drivers who saw that signal would take special care when they were near him. But we are afraid that such a penalty in Ontario would make it even more difficult to get a conviction on a drunken driving charge than is the case at present. Such a penalty would probably be effective if it were rigidly enforced, but rigid enforcement of any traffic law is difficult and upleasant.

Stock Market Fantods

As soon as the news was circulated that fighting had begun in Korea the stock markets began to drop, and for a day or two their condition was grave. Then, when it began to look as though the situation were not as bad as it at first appeared, and as though a third world war were rather remote, the market took heart but continues to be nervous.

This almost neurotic sensitivity of the stock market amuses us. If industrialists and business men were warmongers, as the Communists insist that they are, war rumours would encourage the market, instead of discouraging it; even stocks which would immediately benefit from war dropped at once.

We are amused, too, by the apparent instability of mind which investors in stocks reveal. They are so fearful, and so unsure of their judgement that they will not even trust it for forty-eight hours. They live, or think they live, upon the razor's edge.

One thing may be said for poverty: you never die of stock market heart.

How Old Is "Mediaeval"?

Surely one of the most misused words in common speech today is "mediaeval". It means, obviously "of or pertaining to the Middle Ages", and the Middle Ages may be roughly defined as the thousand years between the fifth and the fifteenth centuries. But great numbers of people use the word simply to mean "old-fashioned", without intending any joke. We have even heard buildings in Canada, built probably in the early eighteenth century, described as "mediaeval".

Recently we saw a picture of a couple of little figures which were being offered for sale; they were described as "a mediaeval lord and lady". If we may judge by the costumes the figures wore they missed the Middle Ages by a good three hundred years, and perhaps more.

We live in a world today so different from that of our fathers and grandfathers that we are losing our sense of time. We talk loosely of "Victorian" ideas when we refer to reforms which arose during the reign of Edward VII; of manners, dress and social habits before the reign of Victoria many supposedly educated Canadians have no notion whatever. They appear to have learned their history from the movies, in which every period earlier than our own is likely to be given a sharply and often cheaply contemporaneous flavour.

It is useless to argue that human nature has been the same in all ages; we are by no means sure that it is true. Certainly in many important respects the Middle Ages were as different from our time as the Age of the Great Sea Monsters.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The big trouble about people who lose their tempers is that they do not lose them for good.

The latest union weapon is a series of work stoppages of ten minutes each; this is called "a hiccup strike". The best cure for hiccups is a sudden fright, such as might be caused by hiccuping payroll.

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

EQUABLE ALPHA: I want to protest against the awarding of that new car last Saturday night to a mere baby. I submit that it was highly illegal, and that the Kinsmen's Club ought to be both persecuted and prosecuted. They should, in all fairness, have a new draw. Here's the reason: To win the car you had to hold the stub of the lucky ticket drawn. Well, the grandfather bought the ticket in the baby's name. So that part of it is all right; the ticket was the baby's. But all raffles are illegal in this province. To make them seem legal, the holder of the drawn lucky ticket does not get the car; he, and only he, gets the opportunity to answer a question. (All car raffles are like that.) If he answers the question correctly, then he gets the car; not because he holds the ticket, but because he gives the right answer to the question. Now, what I want to know is this. How can a baby aged 17 months, answer the question that was supposed to have been asked: "What city is the gateway to the Kawarthas?". Can a youngster that age understand the question? Can he even pronounce the word "Peterborough"? I say, NO. Was the question asked? Did the baby give the right answer? My guess is NO. Therefore, let's have another draw. Or to save all the trouble, why not ask me the question? I could use the car. Would you advise me to get my lawyer on to this?

RESPONSE: A quiet giggle. And for your private information, I have myself interviewed the baby. He talks a hundred words to the minute. Asks questions. Gossips. Quotes Shakespeare. Has Latin tags at his tonguetip, like: "Non nobis solum, sed Ford". As a matter of fact, after the interview, he drove me to the office in his new car, while I told him about your objections. As I got out of the car, he snapped his fingers, relapsed into the colloquial, and said: "Say, what's that geezer think he's up to? So he'd have a lawyer on me, would he, the punk! I'll snozzle him on the snoozer if he doesn't trap his beak". Then he started to use words which do not bear repeating. Let me assure you, that baby is some baby. He can pronounce "Peterborough" at the drop of a gear. As he drove away, he was singing "Peterborough is the place for me, tee-hee", at the top of his lungs. As a matter of fact, though I shouldn't tell it, Constable MacKay gave him a ticket for disturbing the peace. The police officer doesn't approve of childish trebles on Water Street shrieking "Peterborough tee-hee".

DEAR ALPHA: Why has our five-cent piece been called a "nickel" for many years, although the large coin made of nickel came into use in Canada only after the first Great War? Even today the small silver coin occasionally turns up.

ANSWER: A "nickel", meaning a five-cent piece, is American slang, imported from across the border. The U.S.A. coin has for a long time been big, and made of nickel. The Canadian five-cent small silver piece was a decimal-system version of the three-penny bit.

Interestingly enough, the Canadian five-cent piece soon to be minted will for the first time bear the word "nickel" on it. But that does not give official sanction to calling it a "nickel". The word appears on the design to commemorate the 200th anniversary of the isolation of the metal nickel. It is the winning entry in a trans-Canada competition for artists. The winner of the $1,000 prize was Stephen Trenka of Thornhill.

SIR: Peterborough is celebrating its hundredth birthday as an incorporated town. I just wonder what is the oldest place in Canada?

ANSWER: There is a difference between founding and incorporating a place. For instance, Peterborough was founded in 1825, but did not receive its charter until 1850. The oldest city in Canada is Quebec, founded in 1608 by Champlain. But the oldest incorporated municipality is St. John, N.B., which was chartered in 1785. Quebec and Montreal followed in 1832. Toronto was not incorporated until 1834.

DEAR SIR: I was reading somewhere recently about the curse of golf courses, how they use up good land which should be farmed. I think this modern craze for golf has gone too far.

RESPONSE: (The writer continued at length, but there is not space to walk around her eighteen holes in this column:) My dear lady: golf is not modern. It has been played in Scotland since before 1600. It is probably a Dutch game originally (the Dutch word for a club is 'Kolf'). In 1618 James VI of Scotland passed a regulation about importing golf balls from Holland so the game was still played then in the Low Countries. Golf has been known in Canada since about 1760. It was first played in this country near Quebec after its occupation by the British in 1759, by Scottish officers accompanying General Wolfe. I do not go so far as to say that these officers fought more valiantly because they had an eye on the Plain of Abraham as a good golf course. As for the waste of land: Canada has still lots for both golf and farming.

DAVID FITZGERALD: A correspondent asked a couple of weeks ago about an Irish gentleman named David Fitzgerald who is buried in St. Peter's cemetery and was reputed to be of titled family. Several relatives of this man have offered information. He was not titled, but did own a town land, Lyresure, in the parish of Templetenny in the county of Tipperary. He came to Canada with his entire family about 1852, lived in Toronto for a short time, farmed in Asphodel for four years, and thereafter resided in Peterborough. He died before the turn of the century at the home of his daughter, Bessie (Mrs. Thomas Desatueal), 40 George Street. The house still stands. A granddaughter, Mrs. Joseph Heffrenan, 843 Water St. (whose mother was Jane Fitzgerald), and a great-granddaughter, Mrs. Patrick O'Brien, Swanston Ave., have given me some information. My questioner could refer to either of them for further details.

FOR INFORMATION ONLY: My silent partner Omega has persuaded me that (a) I talk too much, (b) a rest is as good as a cure. Therefore I respectfully ask my readers to cease and desist from further questions until the end of August, for I am going to button up my tongue for eight weeks and go to work as a riveter on the new City Hall. I shall return from that noisy Coventry the first week in September. There are one or two serious questions on my desk which should be answered, and a score of frivolous ones which I have not ventured to bring to light yet. I shall dispose of most of these next week. The rest is silence, until Sept. So next Friday, my wind is up, for the summer.

FOR THE RECORD: The Summer Theatre opened its second season this week with the comedy "Harvey", strawberries and Americans have returned to these parts, beef is so high that merchants are afraid to advertise it, and haircuts have gone up to 75 cents.

Mad Dog!

The Lunatic Fringe In Congress

(THE MANCHESTER GUARDIAN)

THE odd mentality of some Republican members of the House Committee on Un-American Activities is shown in the latest intervention of Representative Harold Velde, of Illinois. He suggests that "the British authorities would not be wrong in making a careful investigation" into the circumstances of the death of Miss Agnes Smedley in an Oxford nursing home last month; "events lead me to believe she was liquidated." Mr. Velde admits he has "no evidence whatsoever but her health apparently was good and her death unexpected." Why, one wonders, should Miss Smedley have been "liquidated"? Because, the Congressman would answer, she was to give evidence before himself and the other American patriots on his precious committee.

IT is hard to know which is the greater, Mr. Velde's innocence or his ignorance. Poor Agnes Smedley died of a duodenial ulcer from which she had suffered for years; she had been brought to a state of nervous exhaustion and had come to England because of the persecution of such witch-hunters as Representative Velde. She left the United States because, after a scandalous slander on her published by General MacArthur which his civilian Cabinet head had unconditionally to withdraw, her chances of livelihood were diminished. She earned her living by writing and speaking, but her market dried up. After great pressure had been used on the State Department she was given a visa to come to England to stay with friends—and, though Representative Velde may not credit it, eminently respectable friends.

The worthy Congressman, however, seems to imagine that some wicked Red crept into the Oxford nursing home and "liquidated" the poor woman. Why should he? Mr. Velde's friends had driven her out of the country. If she had anything important to tell she could have been asked before she left. Mr. Velde hints that she was "liquidated" before she could make "valuable disclosures on Soviet espionage in Asia." Even if she could what on earth has that got to do with the Un-American Activities Committee? Has it decided to investigate the whole history of China? It might be interesting, but what bearing has it on the safety of the Union?

THE truth is, of course, that Congressmen like Mr. Velde have little sense of responsibility and less of evidence. They are engaged in a roving inquiry in the course of which they hope to stir up dirt with which to "smear" the Administration and, particularly, the Secretary of State. Agnes Smedley was a woman journalist who became deeply attached to China, who saw (as her dispatches in our columns showed) the weaknesses of the Chiang regime long before others did, and who was impressed (perhaps over-impressed) with the cleaner spirit of the Chinese Communist army.

That was enough to damn her with the lunatic fringe of Congress. Her epitaph is rather that suggested by Mr. Harold Ickes, Roosevelt's Secretary of the Interior, when in an appreciation of her he asked, "If there can be 'guilt by association' might there not be 'death by association'?" This penalizing of people by wild charges of "association" with Communists has become one of the most unpleasant and least creditable things about American political life.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Now as he walked by the sea of Galilee, he saw Simon and Andrew his brother casting a net into the sea: for they were fishers. And Jesus said unto them, Come ye after me, and I will make you to become fishers of men. . . And they went into Capernaum; and straightway on the sabbath day he entered into the synagogue, and taught.

And they were astonished at his doctrine: for he taught them as one that had authority, and not as the scribes. . . And forthwith, when they were come out of the synagogue, they entered into the house of Simon and Andrew, with James and John.

But Simon's wife's mother lay sick of a fever, and anon they tell him of her. And he came and took her by the hand, and lifted her up; and immediately the fever left her, and she ministered unto them. (Mark 1: 16, 17, 21, 22, 29-31.)

◇ ◇ ◇

For God speaketh once, yea twice, yet man perceiveth it not. . . .

If there be a messenger with him, an interpreter, one among a thousand, to shew unto man his uprightness: then he is gracious unto him, and saith, Deliver him from going down to the pit: I have found a ransom. . . . He shall pray unto God, and he will be favourable unto him: and he shall see his face with joy: for he will render unto man his righteousness. (Job 33: 14, 23, 24, 26.)

A popular referee, asked to be M.C. at a charity boxing display, appeared in the ring for the first time in his life wearing full dress clothes.

When the first bout was due to start, he jumped into the ring and turned slowly round, arms outstretched, to demand silence.

As a deep hush settled over the audience, a man called out: "Yus, Mike, it fits all right. What about buying it?"

Canada Must Have Immigration

(Ottawa Citizen)

Whatever the possibilities or the goal, leaders of all parties in the House of Commons seem agreed that more immigration is desirable. Only about 379,000 persons have come to Canada to settle since the war. If immigration had been at the rate achieved by Australia, this total would have been larger by 100,000. Australia's objective this year is to bring in 200,000, more than twice as many as came to Canada in 1949, and its aim is to increase its population from approximately 8,000,000 to 20,000,000 within a few years. Mr. Walter Harris, the minister of citizenship and immigration has conceded that statistics "seem to indicate that employment has been aided by immigration." Surely he has enough evidence of opinion and economic fact on which to proceed vigorously.

A BRITISH OPINION

"Break it up, girls—the cops!"

Brothers Meet For First Time In 55 Years

When George and James Miller parted in Rochester, N.Y., in 1895, little did they realize that they were saying goodbye for 55 years. This month they met again for the first time since they each went their separate ways, James went to British Columbia, and George to the north. The meeting was in Wilberforce at Mr. George Miller's home and they are both hoping to come to Lakefield on July 9, to visit Mr. George Miller's daughter, Mrs. Alfred Dunford.

Mr. James Miller has already made plans for the trip to Lakefield and is hoping to persuade his brother to accompany him.

Before they went to Rochester in the 90's Mr. James Miller was working on the railway between Cameron and Kinmount with his father. He spent only one day in Peterborough, which was the day the first street car was operated here.

Mrs. Dunford's father has spent 47 years since that time as a sawyer in the north country, and Mr James Miller, whose home is in Robert's Creek, near Vancouver, has been a railroad builder along various sections of the coast of British Columbia.

Mr. George Miller went to Wilberforce when it was still known as Pussey Post Office and has lived in Haliburton County ever since. He married on Christmas Day, 1902, and had seven children, five of whom are still living. They are A Delbert Miller of Wilberforce, Mrs. Albert Dunford of Lakefield, Mrs. Clifford Inglis (Hazel) of Haliburton, Gordon of Toronto, and Jim, at home.

Mr. James Miller was married 51 years ago and one daughter and five sons, all of whom are living. His wife died in March last year. He lived at Chilliwack, B.C. until recently, when he has made his home with his daughter at Robert's Creek.

His children are George of Seattle, Ed. of New Westminster, Jime of Quensel, B.C.; Bill of Vancouver, Norman of Abbotsford and Lila at Robert's Creek.

Swimmers To Train In Community Pool

Advanced swimmers in the Y Swimming Club are planning to match their prowess with swimmers from many parts of Canada and the United States this summer. The Y Club is being reorganized for the summer months and training will take place at the Lions Community Pool with Bill Lech taking the place of Gord Minty, who will be out of town during July and August.

The most important meet they will enter will be at Verdun, Quebec. The 1950 Canadian Swimming and Diving Championships under the auspices of the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association, Quebec Section, will be held there, August 16 and 17. This meet is open to all registered swimmers in Canada and the U.S.A.

An international meet will take place at Watertown, N.Y., July 29 and 30 under the sponsorship of the Amateur Athletic Union of America and will be open to swimmers from both Canada and United States.

Tomorrow is Canada's birthday. Speeches, fireworks and functions of all sorts . . . school is out . . . summer living and loafing at lakeside cottages in full swing . . . finish of drift fishing for pickerel in these parts . . . opening day for black and green bass and 'muskie season.

Dyed-in-the-wool fishermen have been preparing for this great day for a long time, all spring to get their tackle boxes and gear in shape and Sunday drives to look over the old spots where lunkers lie. Those who know the score, know that he who takes the wily 'lunge must organize the most deliberate campaign. Only the most inventive cunning will boat the brute. You don't fish for 'lunge, you hunt 'em.

• • • •

Greatest Lunge Hunter

Guess I've seen as many muskies as any man, from Kawartha boyhood days to various remote spots in Northwestern Ontario and Manitoba. I've visited large lodges built on a muskie-fishing reputation and nothing else. They're still very much in business, only more so. Nearly every time I see a 'lunge, a memory flash takes me back many years to Stony Lake, to Alex Sharp of Gilchrist Bay, the greatest 'lunge hunter the Kawarthas has ever seen. In addition to that, he had an exotic personal background.

Alex was an old man when I was a gaffer. From under a black lumberjack's fedora, a fierce white walrus moustache sprouted from his full pink face. A clean red bandana neckerchief was the only jaunty note in his sombre bush clothing. And his right leg was missing. He stumped around on a peg leg, a homemade affair that was held to his waist by a broad leather belt. Rumour had it that Alex lost his limb when a tree fell on him and that he chopped off the mangled member with his own axe. It was probably the result of a hunting accident. He was handy with guns. Too handy.

During his middle age, romance entered his life. A relative and common law wife lived in a nearby cabin. This no-gooder deserted his paramour and after a lapse of time, Alex did the noble thing and married her. But the wolf returned and lured the bride away to their former love nest. In reclaiming his lawful spouse, Alex shot the wolf and did eight years in the digger and returned to Gilchrist Bay to live out his span hunting and fishing. His defense lawyer F. D. Kerr, K.C., and Court House records confirm this story.

With Peg Leg In Bottom Of Boat

No one could take muskies like Alex. Sharp. With his peg leg lying in the bottom of his canoe and the stump resting on a wooden box, he paddled as effortlessly as an Indian, trolling the weed beds at Upper and Lower Stony and White Lake with the line wrapped once around his left paddle hand and the slack and the slack end in his teeth. Even the splashing finish of a fighting 'lunge was cold and calculated, right down to a solid smack on the noggin with a red cedar club.

Nearly all the solid citizens in those parts of a generation ago were Alex' "customers". He would drift in silently to private docks and exchange his huge fish for pieces of silver. In those days before rigid fishing laws, even a man like Alex had to buy grub and chewin', somehow. A few lucky people to whom he took a shine were rewarded by being guided to his pet 'lunge lairs, personally. These people liked him. He was a character and his entree into decent society was possible because it was known that this black sheep came from "good old stock"—his aunt, Lady Sarah Sharp, lived in Ashburnham.

So, when some fisherman tries to get me enthused about writing or photographing some 20-pound piddling prize, suppose I do not respond as I should. I knew the champion 'lunge hunter of all times

Self-Grading To Be Tried

In an effort to rate summer resorts in four classifications as to their attractions and efficiency, a promotion scheme of self-grading is being tried out this year by the Association of Tourist Resorts of Ontario. Supplied with questionnaires, operators who wish to participate, will mail their data with a cheque of specified amount to a tabulation pool which will classify each resort. This information will be published in book form and distributed throughout government reception centres and travel offices. Jack Tressider of Torpitt Lodge, Sparrow Lake, will be inspector to double-cheok the written word. This seems to be the only satisfactory way of securing such vital information, long needed in Ontario. The onus is on the owners, from now on. May the idea spread.

After four days of futile phone calling to Apsley to confirm a story of a monster pickerel caught in Chandos Lake, I'm still on the hook. It was reported that Frank Rusaw, near resident of the village, snagged a 15¼-pounder last week-end. This may be a great-grandfather fish for County records, to say nothing of the lucky angler being eligible for the Vacation Edition Luck Strike Fishing contest. Must have a witness who saw it weighed, must have a picture. To have its head mounted and displayed in John Coones village barber shop is not enough. As radio fellers say, I'm putting out a wide appeal for more dope on this particular story. Any readers up Apsley way?

Good Bass: Proof Has Been Hooked

They're catching bass out of season, but putting them back. Clarence Roth and Carl Decker, both of Kitchener and hometowner Murray Pontin brought three blacks and two greens to hook off the Chemong Causeway last week-end. They hated to return them to the water, but did, in true sportsman style; the largest black went 3¾, just to give you an idea of things to come.

Young chaps with a flair for the outdoors are going to get a taste of it on Baldwin's Bay, Lake Catchacoma, at the Junior Forest Ranger camp. They went under canvas early this week to work for two months for the Department of Lands and Forests relocating and rebuilding bush telephone lines and reserve forces if, as and when they are required for fire fighting. With wages and free board, a summer in the bush may impress the more serious to follow various woods occupations as a career, it is hoped.

Fishing guides are getting high-hat about accepting customers. Last week the first American cruiser, AL-JOE II, docked southbound at George St. Wharf and owner C. M. Hammond of Indiannapolis and his guests wanted to go pickerel fishing. They favoured Rice Lake but guides did not see fit to accept one day's work because they thought some week-term parties might pop in at any time that would pay them for seven. If this isn't the height of poor business acumen and downright discourtesy, try and top the tale for me. Incidentally, the visitors were finally accommodated at Camp Cleveland, Pigeon Lake. On the other hand, local citizens went all out to make their two-day tie up pleasant, such as Karl Duffus putting a new car at their disposal at the wharf.

• • • •

IT'S THE LIMIT: Black and green bass, minimum length ten inches, six per day. Muskie, minimum length 30 inches, two per day or 14 per season. Pickerel, minimum length 13 inches, six per day; drift fishing clause is off on July 1st. Perch, 25 per day . . . Gratifying news come from Dr. J. O. Brown of Elwood City, Pa., who has fished the Pigeon Lake and River waters since 1928: "The muskie crop is coming along better every year. I estimate there was one keeper for every seven undersized ones in '49, but five years before that the ratio was keepers in favour of young fish."

Find Russia Co-operating About Weather News

By PHILIP CLARKE

PARIS, June 30 — (AP) — Russia is co-operating wholeheartedly with the rest of the world in the exchange of weather information, says Dr. Charles F. Brooks, director of Harvard University's observatory and one of the top weathermen in the United States.

"Hundreds of Russian weather stations furnish daily reports," he said in an interview. "These reports are telegraphed to central collecting stations which broadcast them in international code at agreed-upon hours."

Brooks said other eastern European countries and Communist China also broadcast weather reports. These are collected in Washington, London, Paris and other principal cities where meteorologists draft daily weather maps showing general weather conditions in all parts of the world.

"Russia co-operates in this work because she realizes it is to her advantage to do so," Brooks added. "Only by getting reports from all over the world can weathermen plot the course of cold waves, high and low pressure areas and other phenomena."

Brooks has been attending a conference of meteorologists from six countries, representing the 55-country International Meteorological Organization. The conference has revised a world "cloud code," redefining in more precise terms the 10 general cloud types and their species.

Brooks, a weatherman for the last 38 years, said the Russians have gone along in all international decisions standardizing weather observations. They agree also at a Washington conference in 1947 to establish a new world meteorological organization to take the place of the 53-year-old IMO.

Petes Turn Back Staffords In Viaduct Major League

Viaduct Standing

Aces	16	11	5
Oshawa	17	11	6
New Toronto	13	9	4
Petes	14	8	6
Dovers	14	7	11
Staffords	16	3	13

Danny Brown's two-run homer in the ninth at Toronto last night clinched matters for the Petes as they took an 8-5 Viaduct Baseball League triumph over Staffords in a see-saw struggle. The lead changed hands several times in the lengthy tilt, but the Petes climbed closer to third spot in the standing at the finish.

With Doug Plunkett taken out in the sixth for a pinch-hitter, and the Petes down 4-3, Gunner

GUNNER WINS — Hurling the last four frames for the Petes at Toronto last night, Gunner Ed Whitehill was in fine form to gain a victory as his side came from behind to beat Staffords 8-5.

Ed Whitehill took over the visitors' mound the rest of the route and pitcher masterful ball to earn the win. His control was nearly perfect and he broke a sharp hook that struck out six in four frames. There were a lot of scratchy hits on both sides, the official scorer being lenient in view of a slippery diamond after an earlier rain. A pickup by Garvey and a line drive grab by Winkle were fielding features, along with a throw-in by Johnny Baumgardner —new Petes' player—from left to nip a runner at the plate.

Al Menzies continued his hard hitting for the Murphyites with three for three, Fred Garvey, Howie Dalton and Danny Brown getting two each, including a double by Garvey. Pat Wilson also hit for two bases. Whitehill had one in his one time up. Winkle conked two doubles for Staffs in three tries, Weir got two for three, and Ford two in four attempts. The losers used two twirlers also, Dan Windley pitching the last inning when Pete Wright was replaced for a pinch-hitter. Wright had quite a bit of stuff.

Staffs got a run in the first on an error, a walk, an out and a double steal. Wilson doubled for Petes in the fourth, took third on a hit by Menzies and tied the count on a passed ball. They went up two next heat on a walk, sacrifice by Plunkett, double by Garvey and timely single by Dalton. Staffords got three back in their half on two miscues, a walk, steal and singles by McLoughlin, Heyes and Weir. Two more counted in the seventh for the Petes on singles by Lowrey, Dalton, Menzies and Brown, with an out and a wild pitch tossed in, to make it 5-4 for the visiting crew.

Hurls Neat Ball

With Whitehill twirling nice ball, the homesters were held to one run the rest of the way, scoring it in the eighth on hits by Weir, Winkle and Ford. The Petes clinched matters in the first of the ninth. Garvey was hit by pitcher but forced at second by Dalton. The latter stole, moved up when Wilson was safe on an error, and crossed the plate on a hit by Menzies, Wilson being nicked at third. Brown's 345-foot homer into the centre field stands scored Menzies ahead of himself and the Petes protected their lead during the last half for the victory.

FOUR STARS—These four players shared glory roles in Montreal Royals 5-1 triumph over Baltimore Orioles at Delorimier Downs in Montreal. LEFT, Clyde King, who hung up his seventh win of the season and the ninth straight of his career against Orioles. Next, Don Thompson, who belted a two run single to provide winning tallies. Third from left, Johnny Welaj, who added two more tallies with a double and at RIGHT, Ronnie Lee. He retired the Birds in order in the ninth. The Royals were on the tail end of a 1-0 score until the bottom half of the 8th inning when they finally bunched enough hits to score five runs.

Syracuse Dumps Buffalo In 16-6 Triumph

By The Associated Press.

International League pitchers wondered today if the circuit has purchased a carload of "rabbit balls" from their major league brethren.

The hurlers were doing a pretty good job of curbing the home-run craze until Thursday night.

Led by Garden Gillenwater and Syracuse Chiefs, four games produced 17 home runs to jack the total to date to 415. Last year 487 four-baggers were in the books at this stage.

Gillenwater belted three home runs, making five for the season, and drove in nine runs to lead the Chiefs to a 16-6 victory over Buffalo Bisons. One of Gillenwater's blows came with the bases loaded, Eddie Shokes, Elbie Flint and Gerry Burmeister also homered for the Chiefs and Gene Markland for the Bisons.

The last player to drive in nine runs in a game was Anse Moore against Syracuse June 20, 1948, for Buffalo.

Subdue Cubs

Home runs by Russ Derry, Don Bollweg and Del Wilber enabled the pace-setting Rochester Red Wings to subdue Springfield Cubs 8-3. The loss was Springfield's 10th straight and it dropped from into a fifth-place tie with Syracuse.

The victory enabled the Wings to stretch their lead to two games over the second-place Montreal Royals, who dropped a 7-3 decision to Baltimore Orioles.

Babe Barna paced the Orioles' nine-hit attack with a pair of home runs. Montreal's Turk Lown gave the Orioles a big lift by walking 11 batters before he was removed in the seventh inning. Lefty Bill Kennedy stopped the Royals on seven safeties to hang up his seventh victory.

Toronto edged Jersey City Giants 5-3 on a two-run, 10th-inning homer by Bill Glynn. Glyn unloaded with two out to send rookie George Spencer down to his first defeat after seven triumphs. Ed Sanicki also homered for the Leafs and Pete Pavlick and Chet Laabs for the Giants.

Counties Cricket Match Played Here Holiday

Carleton County plays Peterborough County in the first round of the competition for the R. C. Matthews Trophy, emblematic of the Ontario county cricket crown, at Nicholls Oval tomorrow afternoon. In 1948 these two counties met at Ottawa in the first round and the Petes won by six runs and proceeded to win out in the final over Wentworth County.

Last year these teams met again here and Carleton won by a run, they, too, going on to beat Wentworth in the finals. The Carleton team is selected from the Ottawa Valley cricket council, the match really being between Ottawa and Peterborough. Play would start at 11.30 with luncheon served at the Oval. After the match, the local club will entertain the visitors at Lakefield's Grove School.

The Matthews Trophy was donated in 1933 by a member of this well-known local family and a former minister in the Dominion Cabinet. It has now been competed for 13 times with no play during the war years. The first match went to a draw between Lincoln and Essex. Since then, it has been won by Wentworth six times, Lincoln has won it twice, Waterloo once, Peterborough once and Carleton once.

Weather being right, Owen Sound Crescents clash with the Petes at 8.45 tonight in Miller Bowl. This OLA senior "A" scrap should be a sizzler as the Crescents are leading the league while the fourth-place Creighton crew are mighty hard to beat on home terrain. Lou Vitarelli will be with 'em tonight, but fans shouldn't expect Lou or Ron Horton to be in peak form after just coming out of retirement. It'll take a few hard games to put them in the pink. Not much space between any of the top four clubs in this hot scramble and fans tonight will no doubt see one of the neatest struggles to date.

* * * * * *

An interesting angle during such a meeting of Owen Sound and the Petes is the fact that Jack Foote of Crescents and Jerry Fitzgerald of Petes will be on opposing sides. Interesting because Jack used to be head coach here for minor lacrosse, and Jerry now is. Both are competent coaches as well as outstanding senior players. It's also interesting to see such fine types actively engaged in the sport. Jack is a high school teacher, while Jerry is a student at Western University and will in time be an instructor in physical education. Foote left here only because he couldn't get the type of teaching job he wanted.

Champs Are Coming

In aid of minor baseball here, Tip Top Tailors of Toronto come to the Bowl on July 8, which is a week from Saturday, to play the Mutual men softballers. This tip top team will give Johnny Russelle's loop leaders their starry battery, and Mutuals will sure need it. You see, Tip Tops are world's champs, having won the title last autumn in Little Rock, Ark. (They'll defend it this year in Austin, Tex., in September, meeting the best senior softball squads in the United States. It's a great attraction and should pack in the fans and raise lots of do-re-mi for the PMBA.

UEW defeated Orphans in men's softball at the Bowl last eve, 13-6, getting good hurling by Hall and neat all-around work by his buddies. Mutuals had to go 12 innings to edge out the scrappy East Citizens 8-7 in a dandy before a fair-sized gallery. As neat a number as you'd care to see. Standing now has Mutuals with 11 wins and one loss, UEW with seven and five, East City six and six, whilst Orphans are still running into hard luck trying for a victory. Games July 4: East City vs. UEW, and Mutuals vs. Orphans. Johnny Russelle, Mutuals' manager, is serving a two-game suspension by Prexy Pat Calladine for pushing Umpire Bill Leggitt around after a tilt some two weeks ago.

Men O' Murphy Click

'Twas a see-saw senior baseball struggle up Toronto way last eventide with the Petes finally emerging on top with an 8-5 decision. First Staffs led, then Petes, then 'twas tied, then one went in front again, till finally the Petes got the winner over in the ninth and Danny Brown—just to make of it—belted a 345-foot homer into centre field stands for two more markers. Danny is here for the summer now and will coach the minors. Johnny Baumgardner, a Chicago college chap is here, also, and saw service in left field last night. Made a swell peg in to the plate once to nail a runner. He is a southpaw flinger and outfielder. Another expected infielder didn't arrive as yet. Petes play in Oshawa tomorrow.

* * * * * *

Doug Plunkett was removed in the sixth last p.m. for a pinch-hitter and Gunner Whitehill finished up in great style. Earned the win with a three-hit chore as he whiffed six. Had 'em breaking their backs on his sharp hook. Al Menzies again led the clouters with three for three, with Garvey, Brown and Dalton each good for two. Freddy had a big league pickup once, too, but all the fielders found the track heavy after a morning's rain. Many a player reaching for a ball found himself suddenly on the seat of his pants. Locals will find Oshawa tough onions tomorrow as they've brought in some more USA players—don't ask how many in now, we've lost count. George Ticcony is returning to the States for a summer course, but they've replaced him with another fine receiver, we hear.

Donkey Baseball Show Campbellford Carnival

CAMPBELLFORD, June 30. — (ENS).—Citizens of Campbellford will have the opportunity of witnessing a new and novel type of baseball on July 13, when the Rotary Club has its big carnival. The new game is "Donkey Ball," and is played in the same manner as ordinary baseball, except that the players are mounted on donkeys. For instance, after a batter hits the ball, he mounts his donkey and rides to first base. The infield and outfield are all mounted on donkeys, and the crowd should receive much enjoyment from the riders and their balky steeds.

Donkey ball is something new to this part of the country, and was introduced a short time ago in the United States, where it is becoming quite popular with the fans.

Orphans Beaten By UEW In Neat Tussle

UEW defeated the luckless Orphans in the second half of last night's men's softball bill at the Bowl, 13-6, as Ken Hall pitched well and his mates supported him both ways: Pagett was particularly good at short while the outfield played errorless ball.

Hall, Mackness, White and Legion led the attack on Hinton who twirled well enough at that and was not wholly to blame for defeat as his side kicked in some costly errors. Both twirlers showed signs of wildness in spots; Hinton passed six men and Hall five.

East City Lose To Mutuals In 12 Innings

Mutuals continued their winning ways at the Bowl last night with a thrilling 8-7 victory over East City in 12 innings of men's softball before a good crowd. East City held a fair lead for five innings, but the league-leaders staged a spirited rally for five in the sixth to send Woods to the showers and take the lead.

Ken Guilfoyle came in and twirled great ball for the Ashburnham crew who put over the tying run in the last of the ninth on a bad throw to third. Fate reversed the pendulum, however, and gave Mutuals the winner on an infield error in the 12th as Pryde scampered in on Hunter's rap to short that went for a life. Three homers were hit, by Carpenter, Giardino, and Leether, while Hunter banged three doubles. It was a great game, one of the finest from a spectator's standpoint.

The United States defeated England 1-0 Tuesday to add the latest and biggest upset in the world soccer championships at Belo Horizonte, Brazil.

The favored British team and the spectators were stunned by the result. The lone tally of the match was scored by Ed Souza of Fall River, Mass., at 39 minutes of the first half.

Brazilian fans swarmed onto the field after the United States victory and took the Americans on their shoulders while the victors were given an ovation.

The British forwards were uncertain in aiming for goals, but their general play appeared superior to that of the winners except on the scoreboard.

The Sugar Ray Robinson-Charlie Fusari welterweight championship bout scheduled for Roosevelt Stadium has been moved up to Aug. 9.

Robinson has promised to donate all of his purse except $1. to the Damon Runyon cancer fund.

Mrs. Fanny Blankers-Koen of the Netherlands Tuesday bettered the women's world record for the 220-yard run, scoring in 24.2 seconds at Brescia, Italy. The recognized record is held by Poland's Stella Walasiewicz with 24.3 seconds, set in 1935.

Internationally and nationally-known speedboat drivers have signified intention to participate in the Valleyfield, Quebec annual regatta July 1 and 2.

Entries so far received in the outboard class include Chester Olcott of Dover, N. H., who last year set the best average speed of 54 miles an hour, and in the inboard class, Sid Street of Kansas City, Mo., who set a Canadian record of 75.4 miles an hour last year, will be back. Others include Ed. Pine of Belleville, and John Haineault, Cornwall.

Gus Murray, general manager of the Galt Terriers of the Ontario Intercounty Baseball League has been signed as Ontario scout for the New York Giants of the National League.

Donald Campbell's son of the late speed king, Sir Malcolm Campbell, said Tuesday in England he has completed secret modifications to his speedboat Bluebird II, and now is ready for an assault on the world's speedboat record.

The record, 160.32 miles an hour, was set up this week by Stanley Sayres in his boat, Slo-Mo-Shun, in the United States.

Carl Furillo, star Brooklyn Dodger fielder, was discharged Thursday from hospital where he was under observation after being hit by a pitched ball.

Dr. Dominic Rossi, the club physician, advised Furillo to take at least one day off.

Boston Sox Making Mark As '50 Up-and-Down Team

By JACK HAND,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Nobody ever will forget the 1950 Boston Red Sox.

How Ted Williams and Company ground the record book to bits. How the Sox raced up and down the scale from heroes to bums and back in the glorious month of June, losing a manager in the process.

How they hit the 20-run mark three times in June and wound up on the last day of the month struggling in fourth place in the American League, seven games off the pace.

Take Thursday's 22-14 wrestle with Philadelphia A's. Never before in the American League had two clubs run up 36 runs in a nine-inning game.

In Fourth Place

But even with a seven-game streak going, the Sox are fourth behind Detroit, New York and Cleveland. And they trail the Tigers by 10 games on the all-important losing side.

In the weird adventure at Shibe Park Thursday Boston scored six runs in the first inning, the A's four. At the end of two innings it was 14-7. And no home runs until the seventh when Williams hit his 24th with a man on. That was the only homer of the day.

Williams Travelling

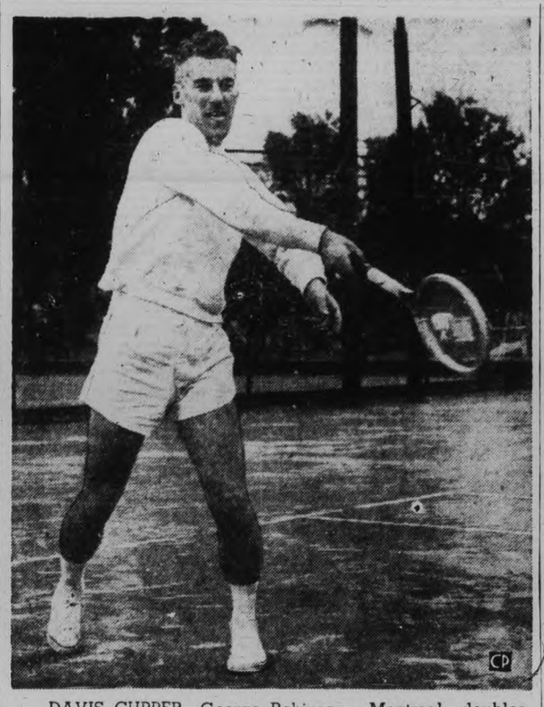
Williams made the most of the afternoon, driving in six runs with his double and homer. Now his RBI total is 80 in 62 games. When Lou Gehrig set the league record in 1931 he drove in 184 for the season.

Al Papai, second of four Red Sox pitchers, was the winner over Bob Hooper, first of five Philadelphia throwers. The clubs raked the nine pitchers for a total of 34 hits and drew 21 walks. They scored at least once in 13 of the 18 half innings, also breaking a record.

Williams' double in the ninth drove in two runs to smash the record. The old high for the American of 35 runs also was set by the Red Sox and A's in 1901. It had been tied three times.

Detroit maintained its 4½-game lead over New York, as both lost. Young Bob Cain of Chicago White Sox survived a shaky first inning to trim the Tigers 7-3. Sid Hudson also weathered a first-inning blast to give Washington a 12-7 verdict over the Yanks.

Steve Gromek set down St Louis with six hits while Cleveland rapped Duane Pillette for a 4-1 night-game victory. It was the Tribe's 13th win in their last 16 starts.



Brooklyn retained its half-game lead in the National while losing to New York 11-5. Vern Bickford helped the Dodgers by pitching Boston to a 3-2 night decision over the Phillies.

Chicago hung another loss on St. Louis Cardinals 6-1; behind Bob Rush's five-hitter. Hank Sauer's 14th homer was the big gun in the nine-hit attack on losers Al Brazle and Fred Martin.

By The Associated Press.

Batting—Ted Williams, Red Sox: drove in six runs with homer and double in Boston's 22-14 victory over Philadelphia, boosting season RBI total to 80.

Pitching—Bob Rush, Cubs: pitched 10th complete game of season for ninth victory, 6-1, limiting St. Louis to five hits.

DAVIS CUPPER—George Robinson, Montreal doubles star, has been named a member of Canada's Davis Cup team to oppose Australia in the first-round American zone tie in Montreal July 14-16. Robinson, who will join teammates Brendan Macken, Lorne Main and Henri Rochon, won the Ontario and Quebec provincial doubles titles with Rochon last year.

HOCKEY IMMORTAL—Mike Grant, one of Canada's hockey greats, has been named to Hockey's Hall of Fame at Kingston. Grant, always an amateur, played defence with the Stanley Cup-winning Montreal Victorias in 1899 when the cup was contested by amateur teams.

Williams Studies Air Currents To Help Improve His Batting

By JOE REICHLER

BOSTON, June 30 —(AP)— Ted Williams, the highest paid player in baseball, probably is the greatest student of the game. The Boston Red Sox slugger works at it, plays it, thinks it, lives it.

When he's in a batting slump he practises for hours. He'll resume this after the game.

He'll stand for an hour in front of a mirror swinging a bat.

Ted knows more about opposing pitchers than any manager. He has become somewhat of a meteorologist. He studies the wind and air currents. He has made a study of the pitching mounds in every ball park.

During the eight years that Ted has worn the Red Sox uniform, prior to this season, he has never failed to finish at the top or close to the top in those all-important departments of batting—average, home runs, runs batted in and total bases.

Wins Crown Four Times

He has been four times winner of the batting crown, is possessor of the third highest batting average in the history of the game, four times runs-batted-in leader, four times home-run champion, five times leader in runs and perhaps, most significant, six times leader in walks received.

What makes Williams so great a hitter?

He has the keenest eyes (brownish green) in baseball. United States navy doctors said his eyes would occur only six times in 100,000 persons.

Williams has schooled himself not to swing if a ball is a fraction of an inch outside the plate.

He is deceptively fast afield. He has a true if not powerful arm. He is a good judge of a fly ball.

He is accused at times of not hustling and he resents that charge.

"I always hustle," he said. "I have no use for anybody who dosen't."

Players Admire Him

The men who play alongside Williams, and against him, admire and like him. Their chorus of approval is significant when regarded against the background of his feuds with baseball writers and baseball fans.

Not a single Red Sox player has an unkind word for Ted.

Williams never has had an argument on the field either with an opposing player or an umpire. He's never been ejected from a ball game. Opposition players ride him but only good-naturedly.

Canoe Co.: Doughty, Carven, G. Brooks, R. Robinson, Hunter, Burne, Bryan, L. Robinson, F. Brooks.

Tug Crew Drags Lake For Bodies

SMITHS FALLS, June 30 (CP) —Crew of the Departmental Transport tug, Agnes Phillips, dragged Rideau Lake Thursday for the bodies of John R. Drew, of Smiths Falls, and William Lake, of Portland, Ont.

Both men are believed to have drowned May 18 when their launch apparently exploded and burned near Horseshoe Bay on the lake, a few miles from the Village of Portland, 70 miles southwest of Ottawa. The body of Dr. John Lewis, of Youngstown, Ohio, was recovered two days later.

The tug Agnes Phillips is equipped with special weighted grappling hooks and 300 feet of heavy cable. The crew has been instructed to conduct a four-day search for the bodies.

Previous attempts have been foiled because of the great depth of the water, believed to be 600 feet in places.

TV Interference To Be Studied

TORONTO, June 30 — (CP) — Sources of interference to television reception will be studied in Southern Ontario next month by Transport Department engineers, assisted by a group from the CBC's engineering division.

Two rural areas normally free of interference have been chosen for the survey. The party will start its study in the Wallaceburg area of Southwestern Ontario, where it has access to television programs from Detroit, and then move on to the Picton area of Southeastern Ontario, where programs from Rochester and Syracuse can be picked up.

After mobile receiving equipment is set up in a given spot, an undistorted image will be studied. Then interference from such electrical sources as commutation motors, razors, warming pads, fluorescent lights, automobiles and power lines will be introduced and the effect, if any, on the screen will be studied.

Fingerprint Passengers

HELMSTEDT, Germany, June 30 (Reuters)—Russian guards on Thursday night fingerprinted all passengers and held up their inter-zonal train at Murienborn, zone frontier town, for three hours after finding a pistol in a toilet.

Junior Lacrossers Win In Toronto 8-5

The local junior OLA squad yanked out an 8-5 victory over the Maitlands in Toronto last evening in a fine tilt. They had an edge in the first quarter to lead 3-1 on goals by Roundpoint (2) and Whitnall. Penfound scored for Toronto. The latter got one early in the second in an even heat, with Roundpoint getting a nice one on a breakaway to make it 4-2 at the half.

Heffernan drove in the third to tally from Batley but Nickle got it back. Roundpoint got his fourth goal on a pass from Burns, and Bond added one to make it 6-4. Whitnall counted from Robinson in the fourth but Nickle again got it back. The Filter Queens finished stronger as Beavis and Heffernan tallied to clinch it. Whitnall, and Roundpoint were most effective and Nicholls made many tough stops as the team went good. Penfound and Nickle for Toronto got four of their goals. Teams:

R. T. Jones, Jr., better known as Bobby Jones, won his third United States open golf championship 20 years ago today in most lop-sided title playoff of all times. Posting 294 scores, Jones and Abe Espinosa went another 36 holes, honors going to the great Bobby by 23 strokes, 141-164.

Threat Of War Seaway Boost

WASHINGTON, June 30 (AP) —Senator Alexander Wiley (Rep., Wis.) said today developments in Korea underscore the "desperate" need for the St. Lawrence Seaway and power project.

Were the seaway a reality, Wiley said in a statement, the United States would be in a position to obtain badly-needed iron ores from Labarador through the protected St. Lawrence route.

Wiley said the Mesabi iron ore range in Minnesota, from which the United States for decades has drawn the bulk of its supplies, "simply does not contain" enough high-grade ore to feed U.S. steel mills in the event of another war.

"Obviously," he said, "if we had to import ore from South America the ships would be 'duck soup' for the torpedoes of Russian Snorkel submarines."

Wiley said there still is "ample time" to start construction of the seaway and its allied power project now.

Wiley said arguments of seaway opponents that it would be vulnerable to attack "do not hold water."

"The truth is," he said, "that (bombs) could put the Soo Locks (at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich), the TVA (Tennessee Valley Authority), boulder dam or almost any one of our other installations out of commission."

UK Newsprint Supply Described At 'Grim'

LONDON, June 30 —(CP)—F. P. Bishop, general manager of the Newsprint Supply Company, said today Britain's newsprint supply is "grim," despite a new Canadian order.

Bishop, who recently visited Canada, was commenting on the announcement in the House of Commons Thursday night that the British government has authorized the importation of 37,500 tons of Canadian newsprint in the first half of 1951.

Bishop said 37,500 tons will help, but will not assure that newspapers will be able to maintain six pages daily to which they are being reduced starting this week-end.

The supply company he heads allocates newsprint among British papers.

Tie Up Traffic

TORONTO, June 30 (CP) — Traffic in suburban New Toronto was held up for half an hour Thursday while police rounded up a Mallard duck and her five week-old ducklings who tried to cross the road. Two policemen halted the traffic while they rounded up the duck family and took them in a box back to Lake Ontario where they belong.

250 Go On Strike

TORONTO, June 30 (CP) — Some 250 employees of the suburban Etobicoke plant of the Aluminum Company of Canada went on strike Thursday after failing to reach agreement with management on a new contract. The United Steelworkers of America (CIO) is asking reduction in working hours from 44 to 40 weekly, a general wage increase of 10 cents an hour and compulsory checkoff of union dues.

Noted Artist Dies

SAN FRANCISCO, June 30 — (AP)—Peter Alexander Ilyin, noted San Francisco portrait artist, died Wednesday at the age of 63. Ilyin served with a Czarist Russian aviation unit in 1917, when the Bolshevik revolution forced him to flee to Siberia. He came to San Francisco in 1922.

Miners To Strike

PORTHCAWL, Wales, June 30 (Reuters)—Delegates of 100,000 South Wales miners Thursday decided to strike July 24 in protest against increased bus fares. The proposed strike affects the whole coalfield—largest in the British Isles.

Eat More Of Own Meat Countries Finding

LONDON, June 29 (Reuters)—People in meat-producing countries are generally eating more of their own meat than they did before the war, though world production is still below pre-war level, the Commonwealth Economic Committee reported today.

Only in Australia and New Zealand, among major producers, is the population eating less meat than in 1938, the committee said.

In a summary of world meat production and trade, the committee said that in 1948 — when the latest complete figures were available—the average person in Canada ate 127 pounds of meat, compared with 111 pounds before the war, and in the United States, 146 pounds compared with 127 pounds—despite vastly increased prices.

Britain was still by far the largest meat importer in the world.

Sea Cadets Train At Summer Camps

OTTAWA, June 30 — (CP) — Canada's future sailors will gain a broad insight into naval life this summer.

Some 4,000 Royal Canadian Sea Cadets will take part in an intensive training program at five summer camps and two special courses scheduled during July and August under RCN supervision, naval headquarters announced Thursday.

The cadets will attend a series of 14-day camps beginning July 3 and ending Aug. 26. The program is sponsored jointly by the Navy League of Canada and the RCN.

The five camps are Camp Major, near Lunenburg, N.S.; Camp Ewing, at Choissy, Que.; Camp Princess Alice on Georgian Bay about 10 miles north of Midland; Camp Ruttan, near Kenora, and Camp Latona, on Gambrier Island, 15 miles north of Vancouver.

Remanded One Week For Wounding Friend

SIMCOE, June 30—(CP)—A side issue to the double murder in the Langton bank robbery was hooked in police court Thursday when George Parker, 70-year-old woodcutter, was charged with wounding his long-time friend, John Fick, 71. He was remanded in custody one week, without plea.

Parker is alleged to have shot Fick last Sunday with a shotgun during an argument over the methods used by posses in hunting the Langton killer. Fick was not injured seriously.

Captured Saturday, George Walker, 37, has been charged with the crimes.

Barbara Ann Scott Arrives In England

LONDON, June 30—(CP)—Skating star Barbara Ann Scott of Ottawa arrived by air today from New York for a two-month stay.

She will take the lead in the ice show "Rose Marie," which opens here in two weeks.

Barbara Ann was accompanied by her mother and Michael Kirby, Canadian skating star who will take the leading male role in "Rose Marie."

Can't Tell Difference

TORONTO, June 30 (CP) — The court called in an expert Thursday on a tricky question: How do you tell a wild Mallard from his raised-in-captivity cousin. L. Snider an ornithologist, said there is no way to determine the difference. So Magistrate O. M. Martin dismissed a charge against T. J. Agar of keeping migratory — wild—bird after March 31, the legal limit.

Decision Delayed

OTTAWA, June 30 (CP) — A high government source said Thursday night the fluid Korean battle situation and development of United Nations plans for joint military action are likely to delay at least until this weekend any decision as to what military aid Canada may give.

Elmira Student Awarded Calder Trophy

BRANTFORD, June 30 (CP)—Earle Weichel, 19-year-old high school student of Elmira near Kitchener, is the first winner of a trophy awarded by the Western Ontario Sports Writers Association in memory of Jack Calder, a former member killed overseas in the Second World War.

Alan Rose, association president and sports editor of the Brantford Expositor, announced the selection today. Weichel was chosen as an outstanding athlete and student who best exemplified the qualities which Calder showed in his own career.

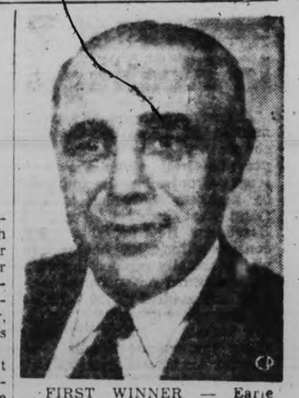
The trophy, to be awarded annually to a high school student in southwestern Ontario, will be presented to Weichel in the fall. He will receive a rose bowl as a permanent memento.

Calder was a member of the association when sports editor of the Chatham News. He was Ontario editor and sports writer with The Canadian Press at Toronto when he joined the RCAF early in the war. He was killed in 1944.

Football Captain

Weichel has been a member of the Elmira school's football and basketball teams for the three seasons, being captain of the football squad in 1949. He played on the town's junior hockey team last season and captained the midget team which won the Ontario championship in 1947.

Weichel is an outstanding track and field performer, competing in the 100-and 220-yard dashes, the hop, step and jump and the running broad jump. He was intermediate and senior champion in his own school.



He was named the outstanding athlete in the Highland Games at Ripley, Ont., in 1948 and the same year set a record in the intermediate broad jump at the Waterloo College Invitation Games. He was a member of the relay team which ran the mile in record time at the Western Ontario Secondary Schools Association meet at London.

Mt. Pleasant Wins

An eight-run drive in the first inning last night at Mount Pleasant gave the home fastballers a 10-6 win over Woollens. They added one run each in the fourth and sixth. Baseboard System Proved In Heating of Homes

A new and thoroughly proven method of home heating is a simple hot water system which provides heat along the whole length of outside walls and thereby blankets the home in satisfying heat comfort. Known as Baseboard Heating, this system consists of long, low heating units which actually replace the wooden baseboard on walls to which they are applied. With buildings of average construction, usually the heating elements are placed along the outside walls only. Special conditions, such as extra large window areas or lack of insulation, may result in additional application to interior walls.

The heat from the baseboard is mild and is distributed efficiently over the exposed wall area. Low air velocities reduce wall discoloration to an absolute minimum and prevent the collection of dust on draperies. There is no concentrated point of heat delivery and therefore the well known condition of overheating in some sections of the room, combined with underheating in other sections, is a thing of the past. Air stratification and objectionable drafts are eliminated. Ceiling temperatures are very little higher than floor temperatures. All this results in two very important advantages to the discriminating home owner—clean, comfortable heating, and fuel economy.

Heating elements are easily accessible. They are not buried beyond reach in the building construction which can proceed independently of the installation of the heating system. Furthermore there are no limitations on the building materials to enable Baseboard to provide comfort heating.

Simple Control Device

The temperature of the hot water is not limited but can be changed as rapidly as necessary to keep in step with the demand for heat. Highly satisfactory results are obtained from the use of simple control devices.

There are no restrictions as to the type of fuel to be burned. Baseboard Heating works equally well with oil, gas, hand or stoker-fired boiler. In addition, modern hot water heating boilers are compact and attractive and may be easily located in utility rooms or furnace rooms as desired.

The heating units are somewhat similar in appearance to conventional wooden baseboard and they may be painted to suit individual needs. They are available in a variety of types and designs although there are two general classifications.

The first type of baseboard consists of hollow sections of cast iron cored out to allow the passage of hot water. The hot water heats the cast iron sections which in turn radiate heat to floor, walls and occupants. A modification of this type is manufactured with fins along the back of the unit. Air from inlets near the floor, passing over these fins, is warmed and circulates into the room through outlets at the top of the Baseboard. This results in higher heat output than would be obtained from previously mentioned cast iron units.

The second type of Baseboard unit consists of finned tube heating elements mounted in attractive steel enclosures. The fins are usually copper, steel or aluminum, and are mechanically bonded to copper tube or steel pipe. Hot water passing through the piping heats the pipe and fins. Air enters the enclosure through an opening near the floor, is heated on its passage over the fins and is convected gently and slowly out into the room through an opening in the top of the enclosure. The types of Baseboard which provide heat in this manner are known as Baseboard Convectors.

Most Baseboard enclosures are manufactured for recessing to the studding or furring of the building construction. This reduces the projection of the unit into the room and allows the maximum use of room living space. Where units are recessed, manufacturers recommend the use of insulating wall board between studding. This need be only a few inches higher than the Baseboard but pays high dividends by cutting heat losses.

Numerous tests performed by impartial groups on Baseboard Heating Systems have shown the superior advantages available with this method of heating. The National Bureau of Standards in the US performed research on a four room test bungalow heated with Baseboard Convectors. The test bungalow was enclosed in an insulated outer shell and it was possible to produce temperature conditions outside the bungalow down to 0 degrees F. This allowed testing to be performed under a wide variety of conditions. Temperature readings were taken at all important locations—floor, ceilings, on wall surfaces, etc. The results showed lower temperature variations from floor to ceiling than with any heating system that had been previously tested by the Bureau.

Another interesting series of tests were performed by G. S. MacLeod and C. E. Eves, respectively test engineer and former test engineer of Sears, Roebuck and Company. These tests were performed on five occupied houses heated by Baseboard Systems. The houses differed in size, shape, construction and number of occupants. Tests were performed under winter conditions. The number of rooms heated ranged from five to fourteen and the number of occupants ranged from two to six. Air temperature, air velocity, relative humidity and comments of the occupants were evaluated. Results showed that ceiling temperatures were less than three degrees higher than floor temperatures. This was compared with twelve degrees difference with a gravity hot water system and standing radiators and 20 to 30 degrees with intermittent circulation of forced warm air as found by the National Bureau of Standards in a test bungalow with similar heating characteristics to two of the homes tested with Baseboard. Temperatures across the rooms and from room to room varied only slightly. Low air velocities were noted and there was little difference in velocity above the Baseboard and in other parts of the rooms. There was however, no complaint of stagnant air conditions. Relative humidity was found to be satisfactory without the use of special equipment.

Many homes in recent years have been constructed without basements. A utility room is provided on the first floor for the boiler and fittings. this arrangement creates a problem because of the difficulty in heating first floor rooms and maintaining uniform room to room temperatures. Baseboard Heating is admirably suited to this type of building construction because an even, gentle heat is distributed uniformly along walls and at floor level. There is no piping problem, Baseboard element is the heating main. Generally, trenches under the floor are not used because the Baseboard Units and connecting piping are all within the Baseboard enclosure. The piping and elements are easily accessible without need for removal of sections of the building construction.

Heat output to rooms may be regulated as desired by a simple damper control, available, with most types of Baseboard Convectors. These dampers serve to close off either the inlet or outlet and thereby prevent air flow over the heating element. They are easily adjustable by hand and may be of the spring operated type which gives a positive snap action, or chain operated type which uses an unbalanced damper. When fully open, the damper permits maximum heat flow through the Baseboard and when fully closed heat is cut off.

Dampers provide additional heat control over that exerted by the automatic control of the thermostat. This feature is desirable during sleeping hours without reducing room temperatures in other parts of the house.

Avert Strike At Gold Mine In N. Ontario

TIMMINS, June 30 (CP) — A threatened strike at the McIntyre Porcupine Gold Mine at nearby Schumacher was averted Thursday when agreement was reached in a contract dispute between the mining company and the Porcupine Mine Workers Union (CCL.)

The union dropped a demand for a voluntary revocable dues check-off, a major issue in the two-month dispute. The company agreed to changes in the pay structure to provide for wage increases and extended its holiday benefits.

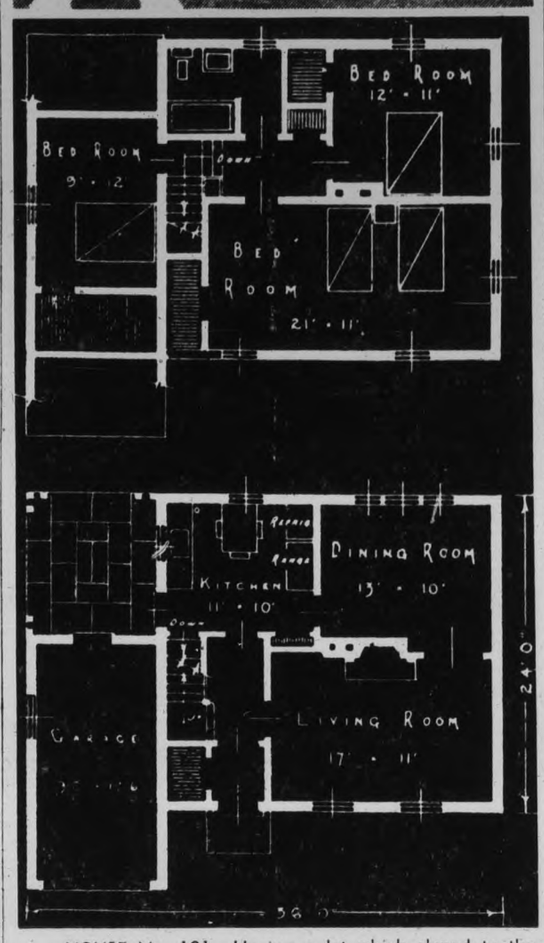
Union officials said the company's 1,200 employees approved the pact at a mass meeting soon after the terms were announced.

A 15-cent hourly cost-of-living bonus now being paid will be incorporated into the wage structure, boosting the miners' rate from 85 cents to $1. The company agreed to pay an additional cost-of-living sum of up to seven cents according to a scale based on any future rise in the official cost-of-living index.

The contract also provides for a week's vacation for employees after one year's service and two weeks after five years. The company and union will explore jointly the possibility of setting up a pension plan to give retired employees $50 a month.

Four Holidays

The miners will have four statutory holidays—Dominion Day, Christmas, New Year's and Labor Day—with double pay for any statutory holiday worked.



The wage, vacation, pension-study and holiday points were recommended by a conciliation board which studied the contract dispute. No agreement was reached on the issue of voluntary revocable checkoff of union dues, also recommended by the board.

The agreement was reached at a meeting called by municipal officials of Timmins and neighboring townships. It was attended by Balmer Neilly, president of McIntyre-Porcupine, and C. H. Millard, Canadian director of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO), which has CCL jurisdiction for the Porcupine miners.

HOUSE No. 181—Having a lot which sloped to the rear, with a pleasant view, it was only natural that the architect would design house to take advantage of this situation. He started off, quite understandingly, with the basement. Here he created a huge recreation room with open fireplace and windows overlooking the back garden. A french door leads from this room to a flagstone terrace. On the same level is the laundry room, which has easy access to the clothesline. Living room, dining room and kitchen complete the picture on the first floor, except that there is a 10' square porch adjacent to the kitchen which overlooks the view to the rear. Here would be an ideal spot for summer-time meals! Upstairs are three bedrooms, each convenient to the bathroom. The master bedroom is unusually large, has three windows and a good sized closet. Anyone with small children would appreciate the picket fence enclosing a good-sized portion of the front lawn. Here is an ideal play yard within full view of the living room. Vancouver Folk Like Latin American Beat VANCOUVER —(CP)— A guitar-strumming ambassador of goodwill is bringing a Latin-American beat into the lives of Vancouverites.

He is Mario Larenas, who recently joined the staff of the Mexican consul here. And the handsome Latin admits he spends as much time strumming the songs of his people as he does at more formal gatherings.

Almost nightly he can be heard at informal gatherings in private homes or at service club affairs.

His object: To "bring a bit of Mexico" into Vancouver daily life."

Calgary Member Wants To Give Speaker Break

OTTAWA, June 30 (CP)—A. L. Smith (PC-Calgary West) wants the Commons to do right by its speaker.

As the Chamber neared prorogation, he suggested Thursday amid applause, that the government provide a $5,000 annual entertainment allowance for the Chamber's presiding office, Ross Macdonald (L-Brantford.)

He said the Speaker, a man of "fairness and good judgment," discharged his responsibilities "better than any other individual I know." He received $3,000 a year in lieu of an official residence and, said Mr. Smith, he was sure the Speaker had to spend two-thirds of that in entertainment costs.

The House should see to it that the presiding officer could entertain with dignity and without paying for it out of his own pocket. Both the British parliament and the United States Congress provided their Speakers with funds.

Mr. Macdonald thanked Mr. Smith for his "very complimentary" remarks and termed them "greatly exaggerated," but said he would obtain several copies of Thursday night's official report and hand them to his children so they could hand them to their youngsters.

As Speaker, Mr. Macdonald receives $6,000 yearly as a member of the Commons, $7,000 as Speaker's salary and motor car allowance and $3,000 in lieu of residence—a total of $16,000.

See Few Signs Across U.S. Of Slow-Down in Industry

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Sam Dawson of The Associated Press, writing of the American business scene, has this to say:

"The curtain is falling on a lively first half-year.

"Almost all signs of the business indicators are rising or still high. But a few signs of a slowdown are reported:

A washing machine factory lays off its second shift as sales drop . . . Television set sales go into the expected summer slump . . . Farm income is running behind last year, although prices have been rising in recent weeks . . .

"But most of today's news points the other way. Employment is up and basic industries are booming. Soft goods industries are stirring. The 'Korean' war scare will have to get more tangible to affect most of these right away."

Miscellaneous

New ordinary life insurance put into effect by Canadians in May totalled $110,723,000, up nearly $4,000,000 from the previous May.

Dividend payments on shares traded on the Montreal stock exchange and curb market amounted in June to $68,017,167, up $5,374,601 from last June.

A new issue of $4,250,000 Dominion Tar and Chemical Co., Ltd., 3½ first mortgage sinking fund bonds, series B, will be used to acquire the fixed assets and inventories of a salt plant at Goderich, and another at Nappan, N. S., and for other corporate purposes.

Business In Canada Continues At Hot Pace In Last Six Months

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Business in Canada continued at a hot pace in the first half of the year, cheered on by a virtual boom in the United States and signs of recovery in Europe.

Exports continued a worry, but even there, increased sales to the United States largely overcame losses in overseas markets.

And a brighter economic picture and generally more hopeful and aggressive attitude in Britain and Europe, gave indication that the worst of the currency difficulties that have handicapped trade may be drawing to a close.

All around the Western world there were signs that the emergency measures of the last few years, the stop-gap here and the stop-gap there, were fulfilling their purpose, and that the shaky structure of the post-war era was being welded into something solid.

Perhaps the most hopeful word to business anywhere are the current plans by a half-dozen European countries, including France and Germany, to pool their resources to form one great productive area which may become not only an assurance of European recovery but of European peace.

Bring Competition

The plan will bring competition, but it is the best recent hope for the re-establishment of a healthy trading world.

As the first six months drew to a close, the world faced perhaps the greatest threat to its peace since the close of the war. The Cold War of the last few years flared into fighting in Korea, with unforeseeable consequences. What-ever it means, it means no slackening in the pace of business and is almost certain to mean the opposite.

If war should come, either soon or later, it would, of course, bring ever greater demands on business and industry, though probably under a system of controls which would make those of the last war look pale.

Sensitive Markets

Apprehension over controls and curtailment of profits is one explanation for the stock market break which greeted the fighting in Korea. Stock markets are necessarily sensitive and their reaction is not surprising.

Actual business itself is somewhat different. It, in effect, must go on about its "business," which is taking care of demand, whatever the cause. No one knows what would develop in case of war, and scarcely any business man tries to guess; but he knows he will be busy.

The United States boom was perhaps the greatest influence towards recovery in the last six months. For one thing it sent her buying raw materials and paying out dollars which are helping the currency situation in the sterling area. It has boosted her purchases from Canada; it has taken the British Columbia lumber industry out of a slump.

Not Much Change

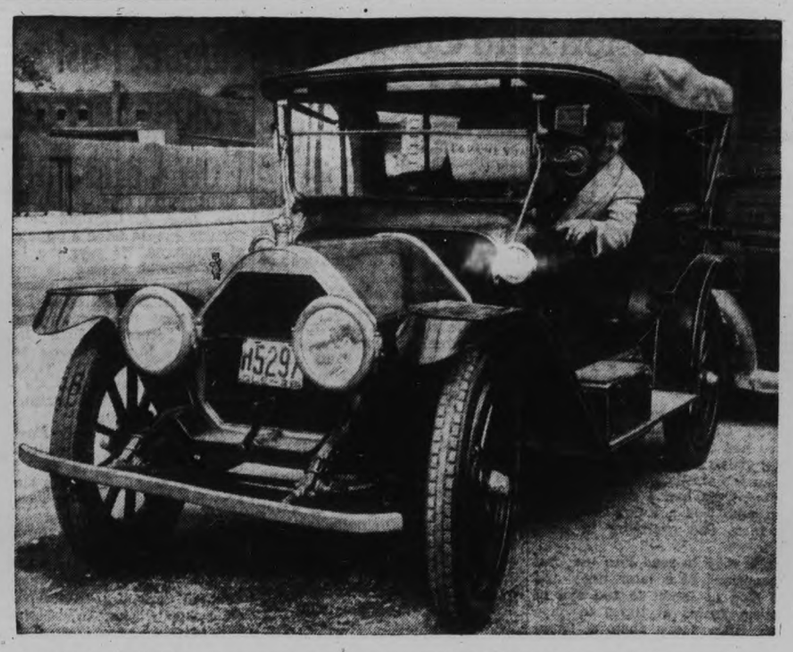
In the meantime, Canada's own internal expansion continues at about the same pace as during the last two years; in fact her captial expansion this year in the building and maintenance of plants, machinery, houses and other things may be the greatest yet.

Western oil developments continue to shoot a flow of money into industry across the country. Iron ore developments are hardly more than under way. Though vast projects have been completed across the country, other great ventures are or may soon be on the drawing boards.

It is this great internal activity, including the increased demands of larger population, which has enabled Canada to take care of the shocks of overseas export losses and other post-war jars.

The Bank of Montreal noted recently that Canadians are consuming half again as much in goods as they did before the war, and at the same time are saving at a greater rate.

Use Isotopes To Help Improve Farm Land



CHARLOTTETOWN, June 30—(CP)—Radioactive isotopes from Canada's atomic energy plant at Chalk River are being used to determine what kind of fertilizer is best for certain types of soil, Prof. C. F. Bentley, of the University of Alberta, said Thursday.

He told the Agriculture Institute of Canada that radioactive sulphur is used by the soils department of his university studying the fertilization of soils with insufficient sulphur.

Other speakers included Prof. R. O. Ribbey, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph.

Heads P.E.I. Party

CHARLOTTETOWN, June 30.—(CP).—R. R. Bell, Charlottetown barrister and member of the Legislature for 2nd Queen's, Thursday night was elected leader of the Prince Edward Island Progressive Conservative party. He succeeds Dr. William P. J. MacMillan, former premier and long-time island leader of the party.

LUCIEN GAGNON, who operates a second-hand car lot in Montreal, has a convertable in good running order. It hasn't been used for several (well 22) years. The car has a Quebec licence plate (1928) and can be seen daily. Seen but not touched. For on the windshield he has a sign "Ne touchez pas, S.V.P." which means "Hands off." Mr. Gagnon bought the car, a 1910 Russell, two weeks ago from an estate to put on his lot. Since then he has had many requests from prospective buyers. But he hesitates to part with it. "After all," he said, "this thing attracts more people than a big neon sign."

Changes In Home Trace To Man's Happiness

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER

The evolution of the modern home from crude shelter to today's planned comfort is a story of "the pursuit of happiness."

Today's homes are as different from the first houses in the U. S. and Canada as the new automobile is from the Conestoga wagon. From primitive log walls and a roof, the home has evolved into its modern happy combination of indoor and outdoor living because people want much more than pure utility.

Ask any owner why he has this or that embellishment on his house and his honest answer will be: "Because I like it." Whatever it is, it makes him happy.

This has resulted in many interesting architectural changes in houses, through the years. In one generation it brought a rash of Grecian columns. In another period only Gothic decoration was considered beautiful. In later periods houses had to look like Mediterranean villas or Tudor English mansions to be rated up to date.

• • •

Sometimes you'll hear houses criticized for being copies of historic prototypes. But even the first houses in this country were copies. Homesick early settlers built their houses to look like the homes they loved in the old world.

New Englanders copied the overhanging upper stories which had added extra space above crowded streets of English towns, even though such construction was not needed in the wilderness. The Dutch of New Amsterdam reproduced stone homes of Holland and established a style that remained in New York even after the English took over.

Scandinavians knew how to build log houses and found a rich supply of material in the woods of Delaware. The French set the architectural tone that still prevails in Louisiana and Quebec. In the southwest the Spanish found native building techniques that could be blended with their own heritage.

Old world ties were so strong in Virginia that the first building of William and Mary College in Williamsburg was erected from plans by Christopher Wren. Wren's Georgian influence marked homes throughout the colonies. Until kilns could be built, bricks were imported from England. But wood was so plentiful that even designs for stone houses in Europe were imitated in wood.

As prosperity increased, homes became more ornate. Fanlights appeared above doorways. Pediments were added, and by the time "the pursuit of happiness" was written into the Declaration of Independence, the influence of the Georgian era was being replaced by Classical trends.

In those days window panes were small of necessity, but such windows were happy ideas. The panes were grouped so attractively that the idea has lived through the centuries. Shutters or blinds closed such windows at night, for there were no window shades or Venetian blinds. The shutters survive today merely as decorations. Many a modern picture window is a copy of a small-paned Colonial shop window.

After the American Revolution, homes began to grow elegant. Greek columns caught popular fancy by 1820. Wealthy plantation owners and northern merchants liked homes that looked like Greek temples. This wave of Greek revival swept the country until the 1860's. The columned porticos of the south and throughout the Finger Lakes region of New York State are relics of that period. The style penetrated New England, the midwest, and it remains today in old houses that face Washington Equare in New York City.

Then came a Gothic revival with long, narrow pointed arch windows extending to the floor. High pitched roofs had gables decorated with ornate wood carvings. Intricaet barge-boards draped houses like frosting on a cake. Even smokestacks of locomotives and river boats blossomed with filigree trimming.

This style was becoming to Victorian customs and dress. Lace and ruffles were the vogue, so houses were lacey. Such gingerbread cost money and served no useful purpose, but it was considered cultured.

It was cultured to have a home library. No bookcase of that period was complete without a copy of "The Last Days of Pompeii," and when "Ben Hur" was published in 1880 it not only became a best seller, but did its bit to set the mood for Romanesque architecture. Chicago's lakefront grew up in the massive, pretentious style. Italian villas were a logical by-product, until the pendulum began to swing toward stark simplicity.

Mission furniture seemed to incite this change, and before World War I so-called California bungalows followed the mission fad. Almost any house with a wide roof overhang was called a California bungalow. But the wide roof overhang proved to be a real contribution that could be remembered by home designers.

Through all these styles, basic interior layouts changed little. Aside from the development of central heating, which displaced the gorgeous coal stoves in living rooms, you'd have a hard time telling the interior of a house built in 1900 from one built in 1800.

The early 20th century house still had its front parlor, closed off in reservation for formal callers—the minister, or funerals. Many of those houses that remain today have had partitions knocked down to merge parlor, front hall and sitting room into one L-shaped living room, setting the pace for modern open planning.

But other forces soon revolutionized the house. The automobile knocked off the old front porch. The automatic refrigerator and other electrical equipment remade the kitchen. National advertising and industrial enterprise tiled the bathroom, wired the house, and aided and abetted the revolution in all design.

Architects and builders who served in World War I came home with ideas of cubistic designs they had seen in France, Germany and Sweden. They gave the flapper era its first samples of modernistic houses. At the same time the Florida boom of the 1920s got under way and Spanish styles, competing with importations of Tudor English and French provincial themes, succeeded at least in proving that stucco could be used satisfactorily.

It looked like a free-for-all race for a while, but Colonial styles won out. During the 1930s anything with green shutters was labeled Colonail—when out of the west rode a new Lochinvar on a rodeo maverick, introducing the ranch house.

This is not where we came in, but everybody now seems happy. The ranch house arrived in the nick of time to exploit broad picture windows, double glazing and all that, indoor-outdoor gardens, city apartments convenience with all rooms on one floor, scotching the basement for new radiant heating.

Because of its true American background, the ranch house brought a combined heritage of New England shutters that had emigrated westward, a Spanish patio that came up from Mexico, a corral fence picked up in Texas, colors from the Pacific coast and materials from virtually every state in the Union.

And the modern home is still evolving. Kitchens are veering away from sterile white. You can buy a pink refrigerator. Dining rooms which had shrunk to dinettes with the loss of Diamond Jim Brady appetites, are staging a comeback. Telvision is luring the family back to the living room—some architects thing it may displace the fireplace. Heat pumps can warm your home in winter from the bowels of the earth and, when reversed, they can cool the house in the summer time.

Where do we go from here in this purpsuit of happiness? Let's just stay home where we like it.

Attach No Blame

Holland Guilty Jewelry Theft Gets 16 Months

Inability to leave other people's property alone is "your big failing" Judge S. L. Smoke said Thursday as he sentenced William Holland, 24, Peterborough, to 16 months definite in reformatory.

Holland was convicted at a special sitting of the county judge's criminal court of stealing a diamond ring and brooch from his landlady, Mrs. Blanche Dixon, Rubidge St. Total value of the two pieces of jewelry would be about $265.

Judge Smoke read out a long list of previous convictions and remarked that Holland had been out of reformatory for less than a year when arrested for the April theft.

"I hope that at the end of this sentence you will realize that the only way to do is carry on as a decent, respectable citizen and leave other people's property alone," said Judge Smoke. "That seems to be your big failing."

Holland who pleaded not guilty to the theft had nothing to say before being sentenced.

Talk of Pschiatry

His legal council, B. J. Spencer Pitt, thought it might be a good idea to "send him to an institution where there is psychiatry."

"The crown would like an adequate penal term," countered Crown Attorney John Bradshaw. Then he added: "Kingston penitentiary has a full-time psychiatrist."

Holland told the court he had picked up the diamond ring in the hallway at Mrs. Dixon's home. He thought it resembled a ring worn by a friend of his, Ruby Ford, who had visited the house the night before. Because of this, he said, he put it in his pocket and showed it to Miss Ford at a movie.

Miss Ford corroborated his evidence and told how she could not identify it in the dark and dropped it into her purse to examine later. At home she found her own ring and returned the other next morning in an envelope to Holland's business address.

He was unable to explain why he didn't inform Mrs. Dixon of his find or entertain the notion the ring might be hers.

Gave Her Broach

The other defence witness, Miss Myrna Langille, testified she found the brooch near the Dixon home late at night as she and Holland were talking.

"I saw it lying on the ground," she said. "I picked it up and handed it to Bill and he handed it back to me."

She pinned it on the lapel of her coat. It was later recovered from her room by Holland under police escort. At the time she was away from the city and working in Toronto.

Mrs. Dixon and Detective Sergeant Clarke both testified that Holland had admitted taking the jewelry and that he had asked for "a break" or "a chance."

Mrs. Dixon's son, Roy Dixon of Stewart St., also said the accused youth has asked for "one more chance." Mrs. Holland, the youth's mother, intimated today there would be an appeal.

Wood Siding An Economical Outside Finish For House

Outside sheathing is nailed to the framework of the house. It helps strengthen the structure besides adding to the insulating value of the wall. Immediately following application, the sheathing should be covered with tarred or asphalted felt or other suitable building paper to prevent moisture from reaching the structural frame and interior finish. This paper must be lapped at least four inches at all points. The size or type of finish siding used depends upon personal taste, desired architectural affect or economy. Wider siding usually gives a better appearance than narrow siding and for this reason it is generally preferred. A building materials dealer can show you the various styles most suitable for your intended location.

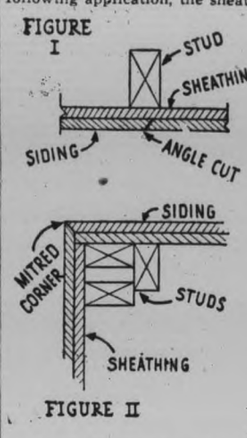

FIGURE II

Where two pieces of siding must be joined together, the joint is usually made vertically. The actual cut, when made on an angle as shown in Figure 1, makes a better joint and one which is more easily covered when painted. Good practise requires that the joint be made over a stud.

Special consideration should be given to corner joints to prevent moisture from reaching the back of the siding. A mitred joint, shown in Figure 2, will adequately serve the purpose. An alternative is the use of corner boards —vertical pieces which are nailed at the corners before the siding is applied. The vertical end of the siding is then fitted snugly against the corner boards. Careful workmanship is required around the door and window casings to ensure tight joints.

Stand In Italy Big Error For Nazis, Alexander Says

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON

LONDON—(CP)—Hitler's decision late in 1943 to make a stand south of Rome is described by Field Marshal Viscount Alexander, former Allied commander in the Mediterranean, as the major error of the Italian campaign in the second world war.

Britain's master strategist reached this conclusion long ago, but his views have just been made public with the release of his official report in the London Gazette.

In a stirring account of the so-called "holding attack" in Italy, the present Governor-General of Canada tells of the victorious march of his troops from the first landing at Calabria in September 1943, to the final annihilation of the German forces in May 1945.

During this period he led his armies, including the Canadian formations and units representing 25 other nationalities, on four successful assault landings and three full-scale offensives. Despite handicaps of limited reserves, shortage of ammunition and equipment, the Allies forced back a retreating enemy for more than 1,100 miles in treacherous terrain and against fierce resistance.

Viscount Alexander pays glowing tribute to the efficiency and courage of his officers and men in carrying through to a successful conclusion the two-pronged directive of administering a knock-out blow to Italy and in tying up the maximum number of German divisions. In the main his praise is generalized, but of the Moro River crossing in December 1943, and the drive against Ortona he has this to say about the Canadians, leading the attack:

Hand-to-Hand Fight

"For over a week the Canadians were engaged in a most violent hand-to-hand struggle. Street fighting, especially in a town of masonry houses, calls for the greatest skill and courage as Stalingrad had shown. The Canadians came triumphantly out of a test as severe as any in the war."

The former commander believes Hitler blundered badly in electing to fight it out after the surrender of Italy.

"We had the initiative in operations," he wrote, "but the Germans had the initiative in deciding whether we should achieve our objective.... Had they decided to withdraw altogether, they could have defended the line of the Alps or one of the strong river lines in North-eastern Italy with the minimum of forces. Instead of us containing them, they would be containing us."

All danger of such an alarming result, Viscount Alexander says, was removed by Hitler's decision. From that moment, he adds, the German army undertook a commitment as damaging and debilitating as Napoleon's Peninsular campaigns of 1808-1814. The following summer the Germans were forced to pour troops into Italy to retrieve disaster at the very moment when Allied invading forces were storming the breaches of a crumbling Western Wall.

A month after the fall of Rome the British commander suffered a stinging setback to his plans—not at the hands of the enemy, but from the combined chiefs of staff for the urgent release of seven divisions from the Italian sector. These forces were to be employed in an assault against Southern France as a diversion to the invasion of Normandy.

Cancel Balkan Thrust

Failure of the Allies to capture Bologna according to plan, transference of the entire Canadian Corps to the western front and diversion of other forces expected from the Middle East had forced cancellation of a possible thrust into the Balkans.

While expressing no opinion on the correctness of the decision, Viscount Alexander admits disappointment in his inability to exploit victory to the fullest.

"Whatever value the invasion of southern France may have had as a contribution in North-western Europe, its effects on the Italian campaign was disastrous," he says.

"The Allied armies in full pursuit of a beaten enemy were called off from the chase. Kesselring — the German commander—was given a breathing space to reorganize his scattered forces and I was left with insufficient strength to break through the barrier of the Appenines.

"My armies which had just been built up into a strong, flexible and co-ordinate instrument, inspired by victory and conscious of their own superiority, were reduced once more to the shifts and improvisations which had marked the previous winter. They were faced again with the problems of overcoming not only the difficulties of the Italian terrain and stubborness of the enemy's resistance, but also the lack of manpower on their own side."

At the very time the Allies were withdrawing seven divisions, the Germans, he says, were rushing to Italy the equivalent of eight divisions, some of them from the threatened west front.

Faith, Vision And Courage Required In Great Leaders

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, DD.

No account of Bible characters is complete that does not begin with Abraham. He was to the land of Palestine, and to the people of Israel, something of what Columbus was to America, but a great deal more.

In a sense he was a discoverer and pioneer, laying the foundations of the life of a people in a new environment, but he was a spiritual leader, a man of vision in things of the soul, far beyond his time, as well as a physical leader of resourcefulness and courage.

His great trek to Palestine from far-off Ur in Chaldea seems to have had its inception in a spiritual vision and awakening. There in an idolatrous home and environment, he had a conception of God who was a living Being, of goodness and character in worship.

It is easy to read into the past conceptions of a later time, and the God of Israel to the eye of realism seems at times to have been little more than a tribal deity. But if so, it was a relapse into something far less than the lofty and noble conception of God, and man's relation to God, clearly manifested in the story of Abraham.

Consider these things. Here (Genesis 18: 23-33) is Abraham pleading for the righteous minority against the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah. The great significance of that incident should not be missed. How different is the conception of a God with whom man can reason, especially about rightness, from that of a god of wood or stone to which man bows in blind fear or superstition!

How real was Abraham's religion was manifested in the remarkable story of the strife between Abraham's herdsmen and Lot's (Genesis 13). Here was a man whose hatred of war and strife was so deep that he was willing to forego his own interests, and what he might have considered his rights, to prevent strife. In that respect the world has a long way to go to catch up with Abraham.

Whatever was great in Isaac and Jacob was chiefly an inheritance from Abraham. Neither was as great in his own right, and the story of Jacob is of outstanding interest because of the struggle between good and evil, and the ultimate triumph of faith and right in a man of shifty character and a checkered career.

It is something when a man of selfishness, grabbing for himself, becomes a man of faith. Jacob suffered for his sins, but the story of Peniel (Genesis 32: 24-32) has preserved a memory of what was best in him.

Hope To Revive Indian Culture

VANCOUVER.—(CP).—Increasing pride in their culture is in store for Canadian Indians if a three-fold program can be carried out by Ian Eisenhart, newly-appointed supervisor of physical education and recreation for the Federal Government's Indian affairs branch.

Mr. Eisenhart, instigator of physical recreation in British Columbia and teacher of sports to the United Nations, is happy to be back in Canada and impressed with his cross-section view of Canadian Indians.

"They are wonderful athletes. They've had wonderful help from the church schools and other agencies. I think they're good enough to take a few pounds off me," he said after his glimpse of some of the country's 125,000 natives.

Wants To Lose Weight

The tall, tanned athlete confided he could stand to lose a little weight before getting into his new job.

Mr. Eisenhart has been in Europe with UNESCO for the last few years. Before that he organized recreation at Lake Success, working with scores of workers from different countries.

His three-fold plan for the Indian calls for recreation in school, out of school and in the community. He hopes to revive the native game of lacrosse and extend interest in soccer, hockey and baseball.

"It will all help to maintain good health, develop fine Indian athletes and give them an increasing pride in their own culture," he said.

LOS ANGELES, June 30 (AP) —Los Angeles has the fastest-growing metropolitan area in the United States, preliminary census figures show. The population in this 4,866-square-mile area has jumped 48 per cent in the last 10 years—from 2,916,403 to 4,330,962

FUNNY BUSINESS —By Hershberger

Quebec Pastor Values Services New Canadians

NORANDA, Que. —(CP)— The Rev. John A. Caufield believes Canada should have a population of 50,000,000. He says the Dominion should "bring in many, many more displaced persons."

The pastor of Blessed Sacrement parish has several reasons for the necessity of a larger population but he knows better than most people the value of these New Canadians. Of the 1,900 persons in his parish, 600 are New Canadians.

The parish, the only English-speaking one in northwestern Quebec, was formed in 1946. About a year later, DP's started arriving in the area to work in the local mines.

Father Caufield took the newcomers under his wing and inaugurated English classes for them. The town's three teachers donated their time and the New Canadians flocked to the classes.

Attendance soon started to fall off, however, and Father Caufield will never forget the answer he got when he asked his new friends why they weren't taking advantage of the courses.

"We don't feel like accepting charity—we believe people will not look upon it kindly."

Follow Pastor's Advice

"Well," he replied after a pause, "you are part of the parish and the classes are being held in the Parish Hall and there can be no charge for its use. However, our teachers are not too well paid, so if you feel like giving them something I think they would appreciate it."

That was the last he heard on the subject, but the classes are full again, with no-one seeming to have any compunction about attending.

Father Caufield has helped the Canadians to take interest in community affairs and to become good citizens. He has, however, encouraged them to retain their own traditions — Lithuanian, Latvian, Estonian, Polish or Ukrainian.

Bass, 'Lunge Season Opens

THE LID IS OFF ON SATURDAY FOR LUNGE and black and green bass in the inland waters of southern Ontario. Thousands of Canadian and American fishermen will take to their favourite haunts to fulfill winter dreams of catching that big one that got away last season. Some of the above scenes are typical of Kawartha sportsmen and what they hope to catch. Dr. J. O. Brown of Elwood City, Pa., UPPER LEFT, rigs his rod with a bass plug from an ample bait box selection. If his luck and technique are right, he may come home with a string of bass like those shown in CENTRE. The thrilling moment when a bass strikes at a lure under the lily pads is marked by the foreground splash, UPPER RIGHT. The very business-like end of a monster Kawartha muskie. LOWER RIGHT is the prize all fishermen fight for and often get. This fish will make material for the mantel piece.

Record Fishing Week-End Shaping Up

By NICK NICKELS,
Outdoor Editor

At the rate tourist cars, both American and Canadian are pouring through Peterborough late today over Highways 7 and 28, Canada's birthday week-end in the Kawarthas may be the largest ever. Most of the visitors are fishermen, or, if summer-term cottagers, will turn to fishing very shortly. No other district in the Province offers such a variety of places to go or such good chances of getting limits of 'lunge, bass and pickerel.

A survey of resort bookings shows that most lodges will have capacity houses, not only for the July 1st-4th weekend but through all of July and well through the month of August. It is the same story wherever you inquire; on Rice Lake from Bewdley east along both north and south shores and as far down the Trent River to Campbellford and beyond; in the Crow Lake country, Marmora way, two of the largest resorts report their capacities filled. Stony, Buckhorn, Pigeon Lake and River,

MUSKELLUNGE

Kosh and Jack's Lakes hope to hang out "No Vacancy" signs. There's no doubt about it that Saturday's opening of bass and 'lunge season accounts for this huge trek in great measure.

Where do they go to snag the fighting muskie? Rice, Buckhorn and Pigeon Lakes are 1, 2 and 3 on the list followed closely by Deer Bay, Stony and the Trent and Otonabee Rivers. Both district fishermen and visitors are wondering what their chances are of boating that mantel trophy. After listening to biologists of the Department of Lands and Forests, the outlook would seem to be excellent.

Excerpts from their conversations are as follows: "Surface waters are cool, about 64 degrees today; water weeds, on account of the cold spring, are not high; the young crop of under-size muskies of '49 will be over the limit this year."

This is encouraging sort of talk, especially when going a bit deeper on young muskie statistics that show near-limit sized fish ranged in a ratio from 7 to 20 last year before a 30-incher could be kept.

LARGEMOUTH BASS
Huro salmoides

It is obvious that this condition of fishing into a rising market, as it were, is the result of the rigid enforcement of our fishing laws over the past several years and the gradual education of fishermen themselves. If this were not so, only keepers would be taken in the Kawarthas with no crop coming along to replace them. We are in an excellent position, biologists say.

Many fishermen prefer bass fishing. It is a known fact, and an old cliche worth repeating, that Black bass are the scrappiest game fish for its size to be found anywhere in the country. Again Rice, Stony and Pigeon will produce their quotas and although rod busters may not be plentiful, average 2½ to 3½-pounders will give most sports a thrill of a lifetime on light equipment.

Pickerel (Walleye) will quite naturally by their force of numbers, make up the bulk of boated fish over the opening week-end. The Kawarthas are producing some mighty hefty numbers and Chandos Lake in the County's north-east corner, seems to harbor larger ones than most places. In '49, pickerel weighing 10, 10½ and 12 pounds were recorded while a week ago an Apsley man took one that scaled 15¼ and has witnesses to prove it.

This week-end should be a record breaker but the only one we do not want to participate in is assisting that Old Man with a scythe in chalking up any marks in this district. His chances are very good, too, with the highway traffic pressure that is shaping up adding to the possibilities of water accidents. Driving, boating and swimming with care are the first considerations for a happy holiday.

Mrs. Wm. Smith Dies 98th Year

Mrs. William Smith, one of the oldest native residents of Peterborough County and granddaughter of two pioneers who made their way from Smith's Creek, now Port Hope, through the woods to North Monaghan Township in 1818, died at her home, 30 Aberdeen Ave., on Thursday.

Mrs. Smith, who was in her 98th year, was born in Smith Township, daughter of George Tully and Jane Fowler. George Tully was the son of John Tully and Jane Fowler the daughter of William Fowler, two of the pioneers who came to North Monaghan Township in 1818, spent a couple of nights in the woods picking out their lots, and then returned to Smith's Creek. They came back the next year with their families.

Mrs. Smith was born on the Tully homestead on the second concession of Smith Township, near Lily Lake, and attended the Lily Lake School. Some few years after she finished school a young teacher by the name of William Smith came to the school to teach. Salaries in those days were very low, being often very little more than $100 a year in the rural schools, and chances of getting married were poor. Mr. Smith received an appointment to the Peterborough staff, where the salaries were a little better, and he and Ann Tully were married. For 30 years Mr. Smith taught in Peterborough, first as principal of the old West Ward School and later principal of Central School.

Mrs. Smith's two grandfathers, William Fowler and John Tully, were among the first to establish the Presbyterian Church at Springville, and then in later years when the Tully families moved to Smith Township they became the founders of the Lakevale Presbyterian Church. Thus Mrs. Smith had a staunch Presbyterian background which remained with her throughout her life. She was the oldest member of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, and through the years she was a loyal supporter and was always keenly interested in the congregation. She was the first president of the Ladies' Aid, an organization which celebrated its 60th anniversary in 1944.

Mrs. Smith resided in Peterborough until 1943 when she went to Toronto to live. However, she always wanted to return to the family home on Aberdeen Ave., and in March her wish was fulfilled, and she again took up residence in Peterborough.

She is survived by four daughters: Mrs. G. V. Gould (Lotta) and Mrs. E. K. Mahon (Georgie) of Peterborough; Mrs. J. J. Buchanan (Edith) of Brandon, and Miss Francis Smith, Los Angeles, and one son R. G. "Tully" Smith, Los Angeles.

The remains will be resting at her late residence from noon on Saturday where the funeral service will be held on Monday at 2 o'clock, with the Rev. C. G. Boyd officiating. Interment will be in the family plot in Little Lake Cemetery.

City Agog For Fireworks Big Dominion Day Climax

Workmen are busy today setting up forms for Peterborough's $1,500 display of fireworks at Point St. Charles Saturday night. It will be a double celebration—Dominion Day in Peterborough's centennial year. A wide variety of pyrotechnics is promised—rockets, fixed fireworks, bombs and pin wheels. The show, which should illuminate Little Lake, will last about an hour, beginning about 9.30 p.m.

Fireworks will be set off at Point St. Charles with the rockets zooming out over the lake. Should the odd flaming rocket tumble into Ashburnham and start a fire there the Fire Department will be on hand to douse it immediately.

A special truck will tour the area to ensure that there are no accidental outbreaks caused by fireworks. Extra police will also be on hand.

Should there be rain Saturday night it has been arranged with T. H. Hand Fireworks Co. of Hamilton to hold the show Monday night instead.

Spectators lining the shores of Little Lake all should get a good view of the fireworks. Those situated at Burnham's Point and Crescent St. will be in the best sight-seeing spots.

This display will climax a full afternoon and evening of other entertainment. A soap box derby has been sponsored by the Y's Men's Club for the afternoon, the course being down the Hunter St. hill from the Western Clock Co.

Then at night, commencing at 7.30 o'clock there will be aquatic sports including water skiing and motor boat racing, sponsored by the Peterborough Canoe and the Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Co.

The centennial committee is anticipating an enthusiastic response from the public and with a large influx of celebrating visitors and tourists the city is expected to assume a carnival air.

Attorney-General Launches Appeal Against Sentence In Zahodnik Assault Case

An appeal against sentence in the Zahodnik case has been entered by the Attorney General, on the advice of Crown Attorney John Bradshaw and the case is expected to come before the Court of Appeal in the fall session. On June 9 when the jury found the two Zahodnik brothers guilty of assault, they were fined a total of $400. The Crown had asked for "an adequate prison sentence". James Zahodnik was fined $300 when the jury at the Court of General Session found him guilty of assaulting James Hogan at the Melody Inn near Lakefield last fall and he pleaded guilty to a second charge of assaulting Mrs. Hogan.

John Zahodnik was fined $100 when he was convicted of assaulting Mr. Hogan, the only charge laid against him.

"Adequate Prison Sentence"

The sentences were imposed by Judge D. B. Coleman after the Crown Attorney had asked for "an adequate prison sentence."

The charge arose out of a rumpus at the Melody Inn, one-and-a-half miles north east of Lakefield on November 17, the night when Jack Loucks was killed in Lindsay.

Evidence at the Court of General Session this month revealed that the incident arose when the two Zahodnik brothers, with their younger brother, Paul and William Yuzwa, went into the Melody Inn for coffee.

Mr. and Mrs. Hogan were proprietors and alleged that they had asked the four men if they would mind waiting while more coffee was made.

From this point the rumpus started and the two convicted brothers then committed the assaults, the proprietors alleged.

City Firm Builds 207 Army Houses For $2 Million

Contract for construction of 207 additional houses at the Barriefield miltiary housing project, Kingston, was awarded Thursday to E. Reynolds and Son of Peterborough.

The announcement was made by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation. Estimated cost of the houses is set at more than $2,000,000. Construction will start immediately.

The Reynolds firm have built the last two government housing groups in Peterborough: last year 227 houses, and this year 100 which are now nearing completion. These houses are almost entirely in the new southern section of the city.

TWO TRUCKS DAMAGED

A single accident was reported from Thursday, in which two trucks were slightly damaged. Jack Loucks, 461 Hunter St., told police he was driving west on Otonabee St., when a bicycle he was about to pass pulled out to the centre of the road. Loucks braked his truck, and it skidded on the wet road, making a complete circle and coming in collision with a truck driven by Eric Jackson, 9 Adelaide St., Lindsay.

County Farm Notes

By HARRY THEOBALD

Young Members of Three Calf Clubs Going to OAC Wednesday, July 5, Guests of Kiwanis Club and Federation of Agriculture—Grass Silage New Evidence in the Higher Standard of Living for Livestock — Splendid Program Lined Up for Poultry Conference at OAC.

Electric lights and running water have become ordinary improvements in the higher standard of living which Ontario farmers have been providing for their cattle in the last generation, especially the last ten years.

Recent innovations have been the milking parlor and the loafing barn, still in experimental use, but getting occasional mention in farm journals and contemplated practice.

Down on the common level, the manger menu isn't what it used to be. The dairy cow hasn't seen a turnip in so long that she mightn't recognize that strongly flavored vegetable as once a staple in the fare of her mothers.

And as for hay, it is only the under-privileged cow that has to munch interminably on the dry and toughened timothy that used to be forked into the mow in midsummer days when the emphasis of husbandry was on quantity and appetizing element of quality was largely taken for granted. For that matter, there used to be a time when an OAC graduate was rurally suspect. Some farmers didn't want them around the place.

There was a day when the Twelfth of July often marked the busiest time in the haying season. By that date the moisture content of timothy, clover and the odd grass was close to zero. As a contrast, some of Peterborough's farmers have been haying for the last two weeks, even before the late planting of corn that used to be exclusively stored in silos along in the fall.

Grass silage is a recent departure from a long established way of storing fodder for winter. Its processing is complicated by the necessity of supplying a preservative to take the place of the natural sugar in corn. To the urban observer who knows virtually nothing of the advancements in agricultural practices it would probably be amusingly strange to see a shot of molasses being mixed into finely chopped grasses.

Another problem is to know when this modern haying should get under way. A writer in the American Agriculturist said recently: "It is practically impossible to judge accurately the degree of moisture in the grass." But, there are already local farmers to have done their own experimenting and have settled on methods and timing that have produced the results they sought.

Agricultural Representative Frank Paterson has long been an advocate of earlier cutting of hay especially by those who have been indifferent or dilatory in accepting the idea. But, actual practice has been striding forward into grass silage, not generally across the farms, and Mr. Paterson has been expressing some concern this season about the possibility of the trial and error method costing some farmers substantial quantities of silage.

Some farmers have been using molasses, others grain in ground or other form for correct fermentation in their ensiling program. Getting the right mixture of molasses and the most economic method of accomplishing it, are phases of this problem.

The barn today is just as clean as the individual farmer desires to keep it. Insecticides have reduced flies to comparative strangers in the best establishments. Mechanization of farm methods, accelerated by the scarcity of labor during the war years, extends from the milking machine through refrigeration and cooling out into the fields. But, that is another chapter. The advances in the poultry industry is again another story.

There is no likelihood of farmers generally rushing into grass silage, but the experimenters of the brotherhood, those who are enquiring into new methods and new advantages, especially on the side of cost and nutriment, have already been making hay without waiting for the sunshine, or at least so much that it dries out the succulence. Cows today on advanced farms are getting a new deal in feed, and as an evidence of the broader recognition of the importance of better cured hay, nutritious and palatable in the newer practice of maturing, is the $100 first prize for the best bale at the Peterborough Exhibition.

This could be silage story or a survey of haying, but that calls for practical experience and objective knowledge. It set out to sketch the extent to which farmers have raised the level of the living of their stock. Haying is only one phase, chiefly aimed at the question of feed supply, and economy, with nutrient factors and palatability of silage.

There is a new and higher standard of health in farm stock. The recent report of Dr. George R. Penhall carries the assurance of the eradication of tuberculosis in the second test of Peterborough county herds, and that is only one phase of the health campaign.

JUNIOR CLUBS TO OAC

The boys and girls of the three Peterborough calf clubs, comprising a party of seventy-five, are going on an educational trip to Ontario Agricultural College Wednesday July 5.

Two buses have been chartered. They leave the King St. terminal at 7 a.m., and Robert E. Bell, assistant agricultural representative, assures the parents of the young folks that he and the club leaders will keep a watchful eye on their charges until they are back in Peterborough.

This outing is being sponsored by the Kiwanis Club and the local Federation of Agriculture. It has been a Kiwanis project, but the junior club membership has increased so much this year that the Federation directors decided that it would not look right if they left the whole bill of expense to the city club.

The buses are due at OAC at 11 a.m., and from then until 4 p.m. there is a full program of visiting various departments of the College, where some of these children will be students when they grow up. Lunch will be provided at the College, and dinner will be in Toronto at 6 p.m. where Canada Packers will be hosts to the young folk from Peterborough.

The program at OAC begins at 11 o'clock in the Department of Agricultural Engineering. After lunch the youngsters will go on the live stock section, Animal Husbandry; following by horticulture and poultry and finally field husbandry to see the experimental and other crops.

The club leaders, Lorne Pimmet, beef club; Keith McIntyre, east dairy calf club; and John Edmison, west dairy calf club, are going along with their juniors.

Incidentally, these clubs have held preliminary meetings. Their officers have been introduced to club procedure and the manner of conducting meetings. Mary Wood is president of the east dairy calf club whose first general meeting was held at the home of her father, Stanley Wood.

Jim McMullen is president of the west dairy calf clubs. Their meeting was at the farm of Clarence Mann. David Stewart is head of the beef calf club. They met at the farm of M. H. Pimmet and Sons.

Some of the parents accompanied the boys and girls to those meetings. Programs were similar, demonstrating typical animals, desireable points and conformation, with introductory talks on feeding and management.

Mr. Bell is hoping that all the club members will be on time at the King St. terminal. For some of them it will be a beginning in visiting afield and acquiring information and knowledge, ambitions probably, and also building up confidence in themselves.

PLOWMEN MUST QUALIFY

Ontario contestants at the International Plowing Match in Simcoe county next October will be restricted to those who have already won a prize at a local or county match.

Roy Shaver of Finch, president of the Ontario Plowmen's Association, recntly made this announcement as a regulation that was intimated a year or more ago. It is designed to improve the quality of the workmanship of Ontario entrants, who comprise the majority of the plowmen taking part in the big match.

Directors have decided that these competitors must produce some evidence of qualifying work.

Mr. Shaver stated that only plowmen who have won a prize at a local or county match at some time will be eligible to compete in the international event. It may be necessary in future years to tighten the regulation to the extent of accepting entries only from winners at county matches immediately preceding the OPA contests.

The purposes of the present change is to improve standards of plowing. One effect of this restriction should be to focus more attention on the county and district matches, most of which are held in September or October, preceding the International.

The dates this year are Oct. 10-13, near Alliston. Directors are eliminating the walking of long distances from the exhibits area to the fields of competition, an accommodation that should remove a criticism of the arrangements at the matches in recent years.

Races, Softball At School Picnic

Under the auspices of the Parent-Teachers Association of Immaculate Conception School, a picnic was held on Tuesday for the children. It was estimated some 240 juniors ranging from pre-school age to entrance class enjoyed the afternoon of events, of which Father O'Sullivan was in charge. Picnic chairman was Frank Butler.

Mrs. J. Anthony and her committee prepared lunch for Fathers Greenan and O'Sullivan and guests Msgr. P. P. Butler and Father Garvey, of St. Peter's parish.

After a busy afternoon of sports events, mothers prepared lunches for the children and for the fathers who arrived after work.

Prize for the largest family on the grounds went to Mr. and Mrs. Joe McCarthy, who won a ham, donated by Montgomery Bros. New Post Office Opened in Minden

LINDSAY, June 30. — A new post office on the corner of Main and Water Sts., Minden, was opened this week. The old office was burned in 1942 and since then temporary quarters have been found in the old Masonic Hall and in a building beside the Bank of Commerce, owned by Sam Welch.

Due to the war and scarcity of building materials, new permanent quarters couldn't be started until last year. At this time, Bert Hartle offered to erect a building in which a post office could have its quarters.

The exterior will be completed with stone siding, and the inside contains a spacious lobby with walls of cream stucco. More than 300 lock boxes are available to the public. A modern and attractive layout has been provided behind the wicket for the staff to carry on their duties.

City Camp Plans For 75 Boys

A limit has been placed on the number of boys attending the Peterborough YMCA City Camp this year, Al Clark, physical director, announced today. Last year more than 110 boys attended the two-week camp in the city. This group was too large to handle efficiently and this year the registration will be only 75.

A program for each day of the two-week camp, July 10 to 21, has been planned by Mr. Clark. Each morning the boys will meet at the YMCA auditorium for a general assembly period. During this time the boys will hold competitions, sing-songs and skits. They will also have a period of hobbies such as square knotting, plaster modelling and kite building.

There will be tours through the local industries, Mr. Clark said, and hikes, bicycling and canoeing will be held. Swimming lessons will be held in the morning with a swim ending the camp each day. For those who can handle a canoe properly through periods of instruction on Little Lake, all boys over 12 years will take an overnight hike along the river.

In 1938 the YMCA City camp, first known as the YMCA Vacation Club, was started by the boys' wor ksecretary, Cam Gorrie.

Stone Age Music

PARIS (CP).—A lithophone, believed to be the oldest musical instrument in the world, is being shown in the Paris "Museum of Man." It is a kind of xylophone made of 10 stones varying in length from about 18 to three feet and was found in Indo-China.

Films, Records At Oval Sunday

A film and record concert will substitute this Sunday night at Nicholls Oval for the weekly band concert. This concert is sponsored by the Recreation Commission and conducted by the Peterborough Film Council and the Public Library by William Graff, librarian.

The musical portion of the Sunday night concert will be confined mostly to classical records. The first record will be selections by Eric Coates by the New Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Mr. Coates. Others to follow will be: Ballet Music from Faust (Gounod) by the City of Birmingham orchestra under the direction of George Weldon; The Great Elopement (Handel) by the London Philharmonic orchestra under the direction of Sir Thomas Beecham; Fascination Waltz (Marchetti) by the Bohemians. The musical concert will conclude with a selection from Brigadoon.

Movies on the program will include travelogues, cartoons and historical films. They will be: a cartoon, Chimp and Fireman; an early history of Canada in colored animation, Family Tree; the only Canadian ballet film, the Ballet Festival; travelogues in color, Land of the Blue Waters and Ticket To Jasper.

DOROTHY DIX

Husband Refuses To Help Wife Bring Up Their Son

DEAR MISS DIX: I have a son, an only child, a bright, affectionate boy of 11. I need his father's help in bringing up the boy and I have not got it. My husband is a good man, nothing the matter with him except that he just seems to have no interest in his son. Never pals with him, never speaks to him unless it is to curse him and fuss at something he has done, never forgets any childish misdemeanor and brings it up on every occasion, never helps him with his lessons, but when his report isn't perfect tells him he is going to whip him if it itsn't better next time.

Dorothy Dix

What can I do to make my husband realize what a wrong attitude he is taking toward the boy, and that if he doesn't change the boy will grow up with neither love nor respect for him? MRS. B.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: It would seem that your husband is entirely lacking in all parental instinct. If that is the case nothing can be done about it. It is a natural defect and he will always feel that a child is a bore and an incumbrance. Also, it would seem that he is jealous of the boy. He resents your love for the little fellow and takes out his spleen upon him by neglecting and ill-treating him.

Jealous of Children

A great many more men are jealous of their children than we realize. Before there were children the husband was the little tin god of the household, the one the wife adored, the one she catered to, the one for whom she dressed up, the one she tried to entertain and amuse, but with the advent of the first baby all this is changed. If the man is as much a father as the woman is a mother, all is well. Nothing will seem more beautiful and touching to the man than his wife's devotion to the children because he shares it, but if he regards all babies as brats and nuisances he will resent her preferring the children before him and giving to them all her kisses and caresses.

Besides the jealous father there is the indifferent father, who for some inexplicable reason never seems to feel any responsibility for his children or to take any interest or pleasure in them. He is the kind of man who says, "I let my wife raise the children," although he knows perfectly well it is a job that no woman can do properly single-handed.

There can be no excuse for such a crime but it brings its own just punishment. The children who would have loved him if he had ever palled with them and shown them tenderness and sympathy have no affection for him, as why should they have for one who never has shown them love? And so his old age is lonely.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Our class in college debated the question: Which has the better chance to get married, as an average, an old maid or an old bachelor? Please solve this problem for us. FRESHMEN

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: There is no argument about this. The old bachelor has 100 per cent better chance of marrying than the old maid. But note that when I say "old maid" I mean a woman who is long in her fifties, for up to 40 she is a girl, and from 40 to 50 she is in the bachelor girl class and her chances of getting a husband are reasonably good. After a woman is 50, however, she never has a fifty-fifty chance with men in the matrimonial line.

Of course, as a matter of fact, a woman never at any age has as good a chance to marry as a man has, because a man has the advantage of being able to do the courting. But the girl has to sit on the anxious seat until some man comes along and notices her.

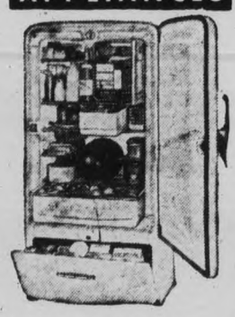
Another reason why it is harder for a woman to get married than it is a man is because men put so much more value on personal appearance than women do. A man rarely looks below the surface in choosing a wife. But if a man has intelligence and charm and kindness and is a jolly and good-natured companion, women don't care a hang about his looks. A man may be bald and bay-windowed and freckle-faced, but he can marry any woman he wants to if he has the right sort of mental and moral qualities.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Every girl dreams of getting an ideal husband. I have one. However, life is not so rosy as you would think. Every time he has a pain I am scared blue for fear I am going to lose him.

HIS WIFE

✧ ✧ ✧



ANSWER: Right you are. There is nothing for nothing in this world and what we get we have to pay for. And only too often the price of happiness is heartbreak. But enjoy your ideal husband while you have him and don't worry about losing him. Goodness is not a fatal malady and the mortality among faithful husbands is no greater than among rounders.

Here Comes the Bride

Of Rice, Old Shoes and Wedding Cakes

By VIRGINIA NELLE WILSON
Written for NEA Service

When we shower a newly married couple with rice we are saying we hope they will have many children.

Grain always has been the symbol of fruitfulness and the throwing of grain in wedding rites has been a universal custom, appearing in every age and every land throughout the world.

It is believed that some type of marriage has existed from the beginning of time. At first there was no ceremony to the taking of a mate. Gradually the tribal rites devised magical rituals such as the throwing of grain and the entwining of a rope about the waist of a woman by a man. It was believed that her spirit entered his body, joining them together forever.

Cake is evidence of sharing

Through the ages more religious and man-made rites and customs were added to these simple ones. The throwing of old shoes after the fleeing couple reflects the ancient Hebrew and Egyptian traditions of exchanging sandals while changing authority. The Anglo-Saxon wedding concluded with the father giving a shoe of the bride to the new husband as proof that he had relinquished all rights over her.

One of the simplest and most universal of all marriage ceremonies is that of eating and drinking together. Early Hebrew and Roman rituals finished in this manner. Today we follow that old custom when the bride and groom cuts and shares the first piece of wedding cake together as evidence that they wish to share from that day forth.

The wedding cake is a direct survival of the Roman ceremony during which all guests ate cake to insure plentifulness for the bride and groom. At the early Anglo-Saxon wedding the guest brought richly spiced buns and piled them in a huge mound on the table. If the bride and groom succeeded in kissing over this mound they were assured lifelong prosperity.

While stopping in London a French chef noticed the difficulty of piling hundreds of these small cakes together, so he conceived the idea of icing them into a solid mass. Thus our tiered wedding cake was born.

The giving of wedding gifts is a remnant of the days when bride purchase still prevailed. During the latter part of that period it was the custom for a father to give properties or goods to his daughters with which to start housekeeping.

A lovely young girl in Holland was denied her dowry because a young miller could not pay the price demanded for her. The whole community loved this couple and showered them with fine gifts for their new home. Thus because a young miller could not pay the purchase price for his bride, the brides of this month, and all the months to come, will receive showers of lovely presents.

Canadians Study Alcohol Problems In US

NEW YORK —(CP)— More than 20 Canadians will take part this year in Yale University's summer school of Alcohol Studies, a four week course designed to make the most recent findings of scientific research available for application to the problems of alcohol in the community.

Three of them—Miss. D. V. Mullan of Toronto; Evelyn B. Moulton, Kingston, and Muriel Milligan, Hamilton, are attending under a scholarship plan sponsored by the Provincial Council of Women of Ontario.

This is the school's eighth annual session. A prospectus says that "the educational program of lectures and workshops is designed for the needs of men and women engaged in professions or activities in which a thorough knowledge of the facts about alcohol problems will be of particular usefulness."

After two weeks of general background studies, students are divided into groups which will concentrate on the aspects of alcoholism they are most likely to encounter in their particular branches of work.

165 Students

About 165 students will take the course, to be held July 8-Aug. 4. They include educators, physicians, nurses, ministers, public health and social workers, policemen and members of Alcoholics Anonymous. Ten representatives of the alcohol beverage industries also will attend.

Prof. Selden D. Bacon, director of Yale's section on Alcohol Studies, says Canada is sending its largest contingent yet—17 or 18 from Ontario, four from Quebec and three from other provinces.

He says his section was "particularly impressed" by the interest of the Provincial Council of Women of Ontario, and especially by its recent statement dealing with action to be taken in the field of alcoholism education and rehabilitation.

Believe Brides Should Revive Marriage Contract

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK —(AP)— Muriel Richter would be glad if brides would revive the old custom of drawing a marriage contract.

"They used to do it in the times of the Stuarts and the Bourbons," said the tiny, blonde divorce lawyer, "and I'd like people to do something like that now. Not in case of a future law suit, but just so they would know what to expect out of marriage."

Miss Richter, who is a wife, mother and chairman of the Domestic Relations Clinic of the National Association of Women Lawyers, thinks the time to learn the business end of marriage is when a couple is wildly in love and determined to wed. Their thinking then is pretty flexible.

Except in cases where there is a religious problem, Miss Richter says, the two important people to consult before the ceremony are a physician—"there are doctors marital advice"—and a lawyer.

Solve Potential Problems

"I think we've got away from thinking of the family lawyer as a family confidante, skilled in handling people and getting to the root of troubles," she says. "A good lawyer talking to a couple in love could solve a lot of potential divorce problems before they even got started."

Before marriage, the starry-eyed couple could absorb happily such information and advice—for instance—as to who would be responsible for the boy's or girl's debts if contracter before the knot-tying. They could talk over how the breadwinner or breadinners would split their income.

"Lets say a fellow is making $60.00 a week," she continued. "They could sit down and figure out how much they'd allow for rent, food, an insurance program, savings—all the rest, of it, dug out of any one of a number of books. Then they'd decide—on the basis of percentages—what the wife's allowance would be.

Ideas Change

"I'd hate to count the number of marriages I've seen that started out with the wife saying she didn't need an allowance because her husband gave her anything she asked for. When the bloom is off the peace, sometimes it's harder and harder to get a little spending money. Sometimes it's spending money. This is definitely a cause of serious friction."

Miss Richter thinks that such a little pre-marriage talk would not only familiarize the couple with their financial assets and liabilities, but would almost force the husband to be honest, about his income. Such financial talk referred by a lawyer, she maintains, would probably help avoid money squabbles later.

"A husband ought to be forced to pay his wife at least the allowance which he'd have to pay out to hire some competent person to do part of the same job," she said with vigor.

Good Bargain

"After all, in a wife he's getting a housekeeper, nurse, laundress, cook, hostess, chauffeur, social secretary and a dozen other employees. So many husbands think that they can have it all for free for a licence and a ring."

Miss Richter thinks the engaged couple should decide ahead of time to have a single checking account and savings account between them, and the ownership of most of their possesssions—including the house—in their joint names.

"The more things they do together the better chance the marriage has of working out," she maintains.

Bride, Bachelor Girls' Hints For Using Small Amounts

By KAY REX

OTTAWA, June 29 —(CP)— The business girl, the bachelor and the June bride all have one problem in common—how to cook for one or two without leaving a collection of leftovers in the refrigerator.

Actually recipes do exist for the individual dish. Here are a few calculated to turn that "twosome" dinner into a special treat.

Baked onion casserole—ingredients: four medium onions; three tablespoons tomato ketchup; three tablespoons water; one tablespoon butter; salt and pepper to taste.

Cook onions in boiling water 20 minutes. Place onions in casserole and add remaining ingredients which have been combined. Bake in a moderate oven for 20 minutes. Serves two.

Special salad—ingredients: one cup cooked, cubed, veal, pork or beef; one-third cup sliced carrots; one-third cup chopped celery; two tablespoons mayonnaise; two tablespoons chili sauce. Salt to taste.

Combine all ingredients and chill. Serve on lettuce cups. Serves two.

Sandwich suggestions:

Chicken and egg sandwich—ingredients: one-half cup cooked chicken (diced); one hard-cooked egg (chopped); three tablespoons mayonnaise; one teaspoon prepared yellow mustard.

Combine all ingredients and mix well. Yields three-quarters of a cup.

Egg and bacon sandwich filling —ingredients: three hard-cooked eggs (chopped); three slices bacon, fried and broken into pieces; two teaspoons finely chopped parsley; two tablespoons mayonnaise; one-half teaspoon prepared yellow mustard.

Combine all ingredients. Yields three-quarters of a cup.

Wiener filling — ingredients: one-half cup grated Canadian cheese; two tablespoons milk; four wieners minced; one teaspoon prepared yellow mustard.

Combine cheese and milk. Heat over hot water until cheese is melted. Blend. Add wieners and mustard. Mix well. Yields one cup.

Hints:

After chopping onions rinse hands in vinegar to take away that "oniony smell."

Remove rust from cotton or linen by squeezing a little lemon juice over the spot and holding it over steam. Launder as usual.

Flowers Color Friday Market

Selling was slow on the holiday market this morning. Farmers loaded their booths with flowers, homebaking and vegetables but the buyers were scarce.

Peonies dominated the flower market. They started at 75c a dozen but soon dropped to 50c a dozen, then selling slowly. Roses, a few white, went quickly on the inside market at 10c each while Canterbury bells, nearly equal with the peonies in quantity, sold fairly quickly between 50c and 80c a dozen. Other flowers offered were tiger lilies at 5c a spike, lupins, 10c a spike, and sweet William 50c a dozen.

Vegetables continued to increase in quantity over previous weeks. General prices throughout the market were: radishes, rhubarb and onions, five cents a bunch; cabbage, 10c, 15c and two for 25c; asparagus, two bunches 25c; fresh peas, two quarts for 25c; cauliflower, 25c each; beets, fresh, 10c a bunch; leaf lettuce, 10c; spinach, 25c a peck; new carrots, 50c a six-quart basket; head lettuce, 10c each; new potatoes, 60c a six-quart. A few cabbage plants were offered at 20c a dozen.

Strawberries sold quickly at 30c a quart. The high for the morning was 38c but for exceptionally large berries. The starting price was 35c.

Eggs were general at 55c a dozen for Grade A large and 58c for Grade A extra large. A few emidums were 50c a dozen. Spring chickens were 45c and 48c and year olds 40c.

Puppies were the main drawing card on the market. Four male puppies part spaniel and part terrier, seven weeks old were offered at $3 each. Two tan collies, also seven weeks, were offered at $5. One black and white collie was priced at $4.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP). —One spectator found it easy to get a free grandstand seat at the horse show here. When a skunk walked into the show, the crowd made room for him. "Stinky" calmly perched himself in the stands and didn't leave until the show was over.

All Phases Forestry Work Taught In Dorset School

By FRASER MacDOUGALL, Canadian Press Staff Writer

DORSET, June 30—(CP)—The men who guard Ontario's fish, wild life and forests go back to school here in the forset-clad highlands of Haliburton to learn more about their jobs. They get a minimum of theory and a maximum of practical training in forestry at the Ontario Forestry Training School, an attractive layout beside St. Nora's Lake, eight miles south of Dorset and about 90 miles south of North Bay.

The training centre, operated by the Ontario government's Department of Lands and Forests, is in an 18,000-acre forest owned by the University of Toronto whose faculty of forestry has a hand in mapping out the curriculum of the three terms of 11 weeks each. The university also uses the school for its forestry, engineering and architecture students. An annual course for guides is in the making.

Just now a class of 51—all but one of them employees of the Forestry Department—is in the second term of the forestry course. It took the first term earlier in the year and the third is slated for later.

The forest ranger course, inaugurated in 1947, is open also to employees of forest industries. One of the present class works for a private firm.

Veteran At Head

Head of the school is Peter McEwen, a veteran forester who was in charge of the Sudbury forestry district before he was assigned to his present post. Each of his four-man instruction staff was in government forestry work for years.

Jim Ruxton, secretary of the school, joined the department in 1927 and served for some 20 years in northwestern Ontario. Bill Stinson cruised timber in the Sudbury area before he entered the government service in 1929. Aubrey Dunne's service, mostly in the vast Algonquin Park preserve, dates back to 1931. Earl Goodman started his service in 1935. Each took special courses before embarking on their instruction career.

The students take their indoor class work in a modern, two-storey brick school building with a spacious auditorium. They live in a comfortable dormitory complete with showers and an attractive lounge. Each of the rooms has two built-in beds and the cupboard and closet space would make any housewife's eyes gleam with envy. The separate dining hall is fully equipped with all the latest refrigerator and cooking devices. Married members of the staff live in a row of pretty five-room houses. There is central steam heating for all the buildings.

The students represent all types of personnel in the forestry department — forestry specialists, game wardens, timber cruisers, some are veterans — men like Tommy Woodside of Sault Ste. Marie who was an Ontario provincial air service pilot for 20 years or so before he became a forestry specialist. Others are just starting out on a forestry career.

Comprehensive Course

In the forest rangers' course, all students follow the same general curriculum for two terms. They study mathematics, letter and report writing, forest protection, fish and wildlife, surveying, how a tree grows, tree identification, tree measurement, timber cruising (actually a survey of quantity, size and type of trees in a given area.)

The third term brings special training for the type of job the student holds with the department. For instance, the game warden devotes his time to his particular branch of work—such as wildlife and trapline management and similar subjects. The third-term curriculum includes such subjects as steam-flow measurements, tree planting and nursery work, camp construction and sanitation, stream improvement and dam construction, timber management, saw filing, soil analysis, public relations, woodlot management.

Much of the work is in the field. For example, in timber cruising students learn the basic principles in the classroom and then set out to cruise the timber in allotted sections of the university forest.

It takes a 31-member staff, including director and instructors, to operate the impressive school. There are three office workers, 10 maintenance men, a nurse, six kitchen workers, two laborers, a mechanic and a carpenter.

De Laval Manager Breaks Leg In 'Peg

C. L. Upper, vice president and general manager of the De Laval Company, fractured his leg on Tuesday evening while in Winnipeg on a business visit. He was expected home today, after a month's business trip which took him as far as Vancouver, but the accident will delay his return four or five weeks.

Speaking over the telephone from his bed in Winnipeg General Hospital yesterday, Mr. Upper told his wife that he tripped on the curb in front of his hotel on his way in from the plane, which had brought him from Vancouver. He was accompanied by the manager of the Vancouver office of the De Laval.

The accident was at night and he was taken direct to the hospital, where he is expected to stay for at least a month.

It is a compound fracture right at the knee cap, Mrs. Upper says and his doctors have advised him against any attempt to come home.

Dr. Harold Worton Named Ringmaster

Dr. Harold Worton, who has acted as ringmaster for the Peterborough Exhibition for the past several years, will this year have the full backing of the exhibition's board of directors.

Decision was made Thursday night at a meeting of the board. Several directors suggested it would be better if Dr. Worton were officially appointed by the board. Motion was made by Burritt Mann, and seconded by Harry McIntyre.

It was also decided Thursday night to invite Rex Hughes, of Grand Valley, to be the exhibition's master of ceremonies.

Relief Rolls In Lindsay Show Increase

LINDSAY, June 30 — Despite the fact that there are few unemployed males in the district, Lindsay's relief roll for the month of June is exactly double what it was last year, reports F. Williamson, tax collector and relief administrator.

There are jail sentences imposed on the heads of only four of the 30 families that are receiving assistance from the own. Last year this was reported as a major cause of families requiring relief.

H. F. Brown, of the National Employment Service, says that "things are good" in spite of the fact that so many families are on relief. Jobs are plentiful in construction lines and at present his office is in receipt of an order from Oshawa for labourers between the ages of 25 and 35 who can meet certain specifications.

One of the big factors in the unemployment situation in the town is the textile industry. The female employees recently laid off have not been absorbed into other lines of work. Mr. Brown stated that few firms in the district employ a large female staff.

The new post, a full-time job, was created earlier this year at the Festival's annual meeting in Calgary. He will move into permanent headquarters in Ottawa by Sept. 1 and will later tour Canada to meet regional committees.

BREAST-FED BABIES

Less illness is encountered among breast-fed babies than among those fed artificially.

CINDERELLA'S FAIRY CASTLE in cardboard was the project made by Grades 1 and 2 pupils of Queen Alexandra school in their history and social studies program. Correct in detail from the time on the clock tower to a small glass slipper, it took three weeks of hard work to construct. George Boucher, 8, of 650 Bethune St., was chief architect and building supervisor.

Queen Alexandra Juniors Make Castle for 'Cinderella'

Grades 1 and 2 pupils of the Queen Alexandra School under Miss Gertrude L. Cox, find their housing and social studies an interesting and intriguing subject. The subject is taken along with art and handicrafts, box sculpture being used as a medium for expression to illustrate the principles of proportion and good design.

The children are asked to look for the basic forms in furniture and architecture and to reproduce them from cardboard cartons and boxes of every size and shape drawing upon their own imagination for details, collecting of boxes and carton is continuous and year round.

During the past week a three-foot square model of a fairy castle to illustrate the story of Cinderella has been on display in the main hall of the school, the model is the sole work of the pupils, who unanimously voted George Boucher, age 8, of 650 Bethune St. to be chief architect and supervisor of the project.

As a starting point each row in the class was taken in turn and asked to construct a castle of their own. The best features of each were then discussed and a trial model built incorporating the best features of all the castles. After a few final rearrangements the work of assembly was commenced, all the work being done in spare minutes after lessons.

George kept a watchful eye on all his assistants and directed them in the making and placing of the various features.

Miss Cox assisted by devoting an entire art lesson to the subject of stained glass windows and flagstone court yards. The best of the pupils' work from this lesson went to the decorating of the castle.

Story emphasis was given by a small glass slipper and the time shown by the face of the clock in the clock tower.

Interest in the work can be gathered from the remark of a girl from grade three who stood gazing at the model in the hall: "Isnt's it a beautiful castle," she said, "how long did it take?"

When informed that it had taken about three weeks she remarked:

"My, they didn't waste much time, did they!"

Derby Teacher To King Edward

Miss M. F. Mutton, teacher at King Edward School, who is going on an exchange visit to the U.K. for a year, is exchanging schools with Miss Nellie Richardson, Practising Girls' School Derby. Miss Richardson is expected to start at King Edward at the beginning of the fall term.

Miss E. J. Redner of Campbellford public school, will exchange with Miss Janet Copeland, M.A. of Hyndland P. School, Glasgow.

A list of 40 exchanges, mostly between teachers in the U.K. and Ontario, has been published by the U.K. Information office.

Unlike the pre-war exchanges, which were mainly confined to public and secondary schools in Britain and independent and private schools in Canada, the new scheme embraces all types of teachers in all types of schools, from nursery to high school.

Drunk Driving Case Adjourned At Oshawa

OSHAWA, June 30—(CP)—A drunk-driving charge against Lloyd Alldread was adjourned yesterday after Constable Harry King said he didn't know whether Alldread had been drinking liquor or beer.

"Don't you know the difference?" asked Defence Counsel Russell Humphreys.

"Yes," said Constable King, "but not second-hand."

Says Tahiti As Beautiful As In Movies

By BOB THOMAS,

HOLLYWOOD, June 30 (AP) —Allied servicemen were disillusioned in the Second World War to discover that the South Pacific was not like Dorothy Lamour movies. Maybe that's because they didn't get to Tahiti.

Charles Mauu, a Tahitian chief, says the south sea movies look like home to him.

"We have four movie theatres in Tahiti," said the husky 31-year-old prince. "The people like those pictures with Dorothy Lamour and Ray Milland. They didn't seem exaggerated at all."

Mauu, son of a chief and descendant of the bounty survivors of Pitcairn Island, described his 1,000 acres of ocean frontage at Tahiti.

"We grow everything and from the ocean we can get shrimp, crab and any kind of fish. The weather is perfect the year around. It rains a little, but that makes everything green."

But are there any girls to match Dottie Lamour?

And Girls Too

"Oh, yes," he replied. "There are many, many beautiful girls in the islands. And they are very friendly. They wear sarongs, or in the bigger towns, dresses made from sarongs. Not many of them go around without tops any more as they do in Bali."

After a few months in Hollywood, Mauu speaks English fluently. He also speaks French, Tahitian, Fijian and Chinese.

May Play French-Canadian

"I had no idea of a movie career," he continued. "But I was given a job as an Indian in 'Annie Get Your Gun.' Then I played a south sea islander in 'Pagan Love Song.' Now I may play a French-Canadian in 'Across the Wide Missouri' and I am going to test for the role of Jim Thorpe. He was an Indian, you know.

"I like working in the movies; it is very stimulating. There is plenty of time to settle down in Tahiti when I am old."

Fraserville WA Gives $15 To Manitoba Fund

FRASERVILLE, June 30 (ENS) —The WA group of Fraserville United Church met on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. B. Heywood, Bailieboro. The president, Mrs. R. B. Lobb, gave an opening reading.

It was decided to give $15 to the Manitoba Relief Fund.

Also, it was decided to have a play and perhaps a supper at a later date.

Supper was served by the hostess.

Flight Cadets Have Graduation

LONDON, Ont., June 30 (CP)—About 250 flight cadets Thursday participated in a ceremony at London airport which marks their first step towards commissions in the Royal Canadian Air Force.

The University Reserve Training School, only one of its kind in Canada, turned out its first graduates. Drawn from nine universities across the nation, they marched across the parade square as Air Marshal W. A. Curtis, chief of the Air Staff, took their salutes.

The cadets completed an eight-week indoctrination course at London's Air Force headquarters before continuing their summer training along specialized lines. They are members of the various university air training flights—graduates at universities of McGill, Montreal, Queen's, Toronto, Western Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia.

The men will continue training for two more summers, then receive commissions and either join the active air force or be placed on the reserve.

press for an over-all contributory old-age pension program which would provide pensions for all at 65 regardless of means.

During the busy sitting, there were these other developments:

1. External Affairs Minister Pearson said Canada is sending two military observers to serve on the United Nations Commission in Korea, but he was not yet in a position to say what other aid this country will put into the fight against North Korean aggression.

2. James Sinclair, parliamentary assistant to Finance Minister Abbott, said Canada has recovered about 59 per cent of her claims on European countries for $75,000,000 worth of supplies furnished to civilian populations following their liberation by Allied armies.

In the pensions debate, Mr. Drew said his party had opposed establishment of the joint Senate-Commons committee on the grounds that it would only delay implementation of the government's previous promises on old-age pensions.

Pension As Right

There was increasing agreement that everyone should be paid a pension as a right when his earning capacity has been greatly reduced. There was increasing agreement that the means test was unfair because it penalized those who put something aside for their old age.

Industrial employees had established 65 as the recognized age for retirement. If that was the retirement age, pensions were needed then.

Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre), said the committee had not gone as far as he liked, but he was ready to support the report.

F. D. Shaw (SC—Red Deer) said the committee's report marked a "vast stride towards the elimination of the iniquitous means test." Under Social Credit principles some of the contributory aspects of the pension plan could have been eliminated.

Board Warns Canadians Boost Coal Production

OTTAWA, June 30. — (CP). — Canada should become more nearly self-sufficient in coal production, the Dominion Coal Board said Thursday in its annual report tabled in the Commons.

The board said that during the last few years there have been times when Canada's fuel position was decidedly critical, even with generous treatment from U.S. suppliers.

"A wider range of utilization of our own coals is of paramount importance," the board said, "and while this cannot be accomplished by embarking upon hastily conceived plans, it is reasonable to expect greater improvement than that which has taken place in the past 20 years."

The board reported that in the fiscal year ended March 31 last it paid out $3,918,000 in federal subventions to aid the movement of eastern and western coal to the central Canadian markets.

Of the total, 2,086,067 tons of Nova Scotia coal were moved into Quebec and Ontario with $2,653,605 of federal aid, or an average of $1.27 a ton.

New Brunswick coal to the amount of 3,153 tons moved to Quebec with aid of $3,940—averaging $1.25 a ton.

Saskatchewan coal received $83,304 for the movement of 118,999 tons, or 70 cents a ton.

Coal from Alberta and from the Crow's Nest Pass area of British Columbia assisted this way amounted to 590,829 tons. Amount spent was $1,146,139—or $1.94 per ton.

Production for the 1949-50 fiscal year was 19,371,000 tons, down slightly from the 19,470,000 tons of the previous year.

Hope For Statement On Price Of Cheese

OTTAWA, June 30 — (CP) — Robert McCubbin, parliamentary assistant to Agriculture Minister Gardiner, told the Commons Thursday night he hopes an announcement on the price paid for cheese for export will be made "in the near future."

The question now is under consideration, he told John Charlton (PC, Brant-Wentworth), who recalled that the high price paid by concentrated milk producers is taking milk away from the cheese factories and jeopardizing the Canadian cheese contract with the United Kingdom.
